BEF PRICES will go up and fluctuate, but they'll level off close to where they were during the freeze, according to retailers.

Despite lift on price freeze

Area groceries, restaurants haven't raised beef prices

by the Herald staff

The price freeze on beef was lifted yesterday but many local grocery stores, butcher shops and restaurants did not hike prices as expected.

Retailers predicted that consumers probably will be faced with new meat prices at the end of the week or early next week. What the new prices will be is uncertain at this time, although most retailers said that increase would probably be marginal.

Any new prices would be determined by the end of the week, according to a spokesman for Dominick's Food Store. He predicted that there will be an up-surge and then a leveling off of beef prices.

William Newby, director of public relations for the Jewel Tea company in Melrose Park, said that they expect prices to increase, but not by much.

"Retail prices will reflect the wholesaler prices," said Newby. "We do expect the possibility of an increase later this week."

"ACTUALLY, THE price increase will be up to the people," said Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights. "It's the simple law of supply and demand. The farmer knows how much to rush to the stores."

Alfred Kruth, the meat manager of Jay's Quality Meats, Arlington Heights, agreed.

"The old theory of supply and demand will take care of itself," he said. "If people do not panic and buy only what they need, then it will all work out."

"We're basically a beef-eating nation and if it's within reasonable price it'll compel them to buy beef," said Kruth.

Most retailers, supermarkets and local meat markets predicted that prices are likely to fluctuate before leveling off.

"Packers and wholesalers will be getting back into operation and making adjustments after being laid off because of the beef price ceiling," said Newby. "In the long run, the prices would be fairly close to the price on beef now."

PRICES WON'T skyrocket either, like pork, veal and poultry prices did when the ceiling was lifted on those items, retailers contend.

"The current price is close to what's reasonable for the consumer to pay," Newby said.

Kruth said customers were accustomed to pay higher prices. "But they'll back away from items that go up, let's say, from $2.69 to $2.99 a pound. They'll turn to the item that is cheaper, like chicken

Imagine that

Virtually anonymous Civil Air Patrol provides area with numerous opportunities—at a minimal cost

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Imagine a local organization which provides members with the opportunity for flying lessons and aerospace education, campouts, leadership training and more, all at minimal cost.

The Civil Air Patrol (CAP) does all of this. Yet considering the lack of public awareness of the organization, it might as well be imaginary, according to Capt. James Houchens, a CAP commander. He would like to see the situation change.

CAP's long-standing place in American history should, by rights, make it better known to the public. Founded in 1941 as a civilian volunteer auxiliary of the U.S.

Air Force, CAP members flew famous air search and rescue missions during World War II.

Since the war, CAP has continued to provide emergency air search and rescue assistance. In addition, the organization has added an aerospace education function which extends to adults and youngsters.

IT IS THE CAP cadet program which is most active in the Northwest suburban area. By missing out on what the CAP cadet program has to offer, area youngsters, who wistfully dream of one day learning to fly, may be missing an invaluable opportunity.

It takes Houchens, who is the commander of the Wheeling Cadet squadron, a few minutes to describe all the activities which the program includes.

"If you took the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Civil Defense workers all rolled into one and made them aerospace nuts, that's what CAP is," he said.

The Wheeling squadron, which presently includes 16 cadets and three adults, meets at 8 p.m. every Monday at Wheeling High School. These meetings concentrate on aerospace education and leadership training.

ACCORDING to Houchens, a typical meeting includes classroom instruction on flying and some concentration on leadership training, through drills, guest lecturers, or classroom material.

The squadron also offers a range of activities, besides the Monday meetings, in which most cadets participate. These activities include orientation flights, which give cadets their first real taste of flying.

The flights are conducted by qualified instructors as a regular program. After an introductory flight successive flights acquaint cadets with landing and take-off procedures, stalls, turns and other maneuvers. Finally, the more sophisticated aspects of flying such as cross-country and radio procedures are taught to the cadets.

The cost to cadets is normally around $2 for each such orientation flight, Houchens said. This pays for gas expenses.

Other regular activities are camping and other scouting-type activities held on weekends, and a course on basic electronics and radio procedures.

FOR CADETS who are serious about learning to fly, the squadron also provides the opportunity for actual flight training. CAP owns a Cessna 150 trainer plane housed at Chicago's Midway Airport which cadets can use for flight lessons.

While flight lessons are expensive, cadets can achieve their private pilot's license for around $300, Houchens said. Normally, a license would cost more than $1,000, he said.

Beyond the regular activities sponsored by the squadron, cadets also may choose to participate in several special activities.

Every year CAP sponsors one- to two-week training camps at Air Force bases, which cost about $40. Although the sessions cover a variety of subjects, the most popular session is the survival course, Houchens said. In it, cadets are given survival training similar to that which the Army Green Berets receive.

CAP ALSO sponsors an International Air Cadet Exchange program which involves summer trips to a foreign country in Europe, the Near East, Central or South America and Southeast Asia.

Finally, CAP annually offers around $41,000 in college scholarships to deserving cadets. While the scholarships are not restricted to military schools, they are science- and engineering-oriented. In addition, CAP also offers scholarships to help defer the costs of flight training.

While Houchens said CAP "is trying to build leadership qualities and does have some military flavor attached to it," he stressed that CAP is a civilian organization. It is entirely privately-funded and membership has no effect on military status.

WHILE MOST cadets wear uniforms, the uniforms are not mandatory. Also, long hair need not prevent an interested youngster from joining, Houchens said.

In order to join the cadet program, a boy or girl must be between 13 and 18 years old, single, in school and a U.S. citizen. The Wheeling cadet squadron includes communities within a five-mile radius of Wheeling High School, excluding Lake County.

Adults wishing to join CAP must be over 18 and a U.S. citizen.

Annual dues are $8 for cadets, while adults must pay a $26 initiation fee, after which time dues are $21 per year.

Anyone interested in finding out more about CAP is encouraged to attend one of the regular Monday night squadron meetings, Houchens said. Further information also can be obtained by calling Houchens at 359-0408 or 965-4700 or by writing to CAP, P.O. Box 372, Wheeling, 60090.

Officials keeping an eye on population

Wheeling officials are keeping a close watch on the village population count so that a proposed special census to update the 1970 population figures will prove advantageous.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the village portion of state income tax money and motor fuel tax funds is based on population. He said, however, that an official census taken by the U.S. Census Bureau can only be conducted once every two years.

The manager said he is waiting for the population to hit 22,000 before requesting the special census. He said that by waiting for the anticipated population growth, the village will substantially increase its revenues from the state.

Based on developments currently under construction in Wheeling, Passolt said the village population is expected to reach "30,000 in the next year or two. I want to be halfway to that high point before I put in for a census," he said.

THE VILLAGE now estimates its population at about 19,000 based on the number of occupancy permits issued by the building department. Passolt said he thinks the village might reach 22,000 in the next five or six months. "But it's hard to tell," he said. "You don't really know how fast they'll go in."

The manager said deciding when to request the census was difficult. He said if he waits too long he will lose the advantage of being able to take a census every two years. He said by requesting the census too soon, the village would lose the revenue from the additional population growth.

The village has already waited 1½ years from the time an update of the 1970 census could be requested. In 1970, the village population was 14,799. These figures are still being used to determine the village's portion of state income tax and motor fuel tax funds.

According to Passolt, the cost of taking a census would be about $5,000. In taking a census, a representative of the regional office of the U.S. Census Bureau would come to Wheeling, hire local people to conduct surveys and then tabulate the official results.

Parks complete sales of $700,000 in bonds

The Wheeling Park District has completed the sale of the last $100,000 of a $700,000 bond issue authorized by residents in last December's referendum.

The bonds were sold last week to the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank. The other $600,000 in bonds were sold several months ago to the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago.

Because of the relatively small size of the bond issue, Roger Bjorvik, park district attorney, negotiated the sale with the local bank officials rather than seeking bids.

The interest rate on the bonds is 5 percent for the first five years and 5½ percent for the second five years of the retirement schedule.

The revenue from the bond sale will be used to complete the projects approved by voters in the referendum that include improvement to existing parks, expansion of park facilities and land acquisition.

Widening of Dundee Road on time despite delays

State highway officials said yesterday although there have been some delays widening and repaving of Dundee Road to four lanes will be completed by November.

Al Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said the state has asked Greco Contractors Inc., the firm doing the work, to increase manpower and equipment to make up for lost time.

Workmen have fallen about a month behind schedule due largely to rain in recent weeks, Sifrer said. On the average, every day of rain delays work about three days, he added.

THE STATE ORIGINALLY set completion of the project for next July, but eight weeks ago said workmen were ahead of schedule and could be finished by late October or early November. With the delays, Sifrer said the completion date will now be closer to middle or late November.

The amount of rain in the next two months will play a critical role in the completion of the project, Sifrer said. He said a lot of rain could delay the project still further.

Sifrer said even with a lot of bad weather workmen will finish two lanes of the highway by winter.

The widening of the road is between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53, in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

SIFRER SAID CREWS are working six days a week, 10 hours a day in an attempt to finish early. The contract with Greco states that construction must be completed by next July or a penalty will be assessed Greco. No bonus is provided if the project is completed early.

The $2.5 million project also calls for the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads south of Dundee Road. Both roads are being rerouted to meet the existing extensions on the north side of Dundee Road. The realignment of the roads is expected to eliminate two bottlenecks which hamper through traffic.

Sifrer said workmen are now removing the old westbound pavement of the road, while traffic moves through on the eastbound and a temporary lane. Workmen will finish tearing out the existing westbound lane Wednesday and will then grade and pave two lanes.

After the westbound lanes are completed, motorists will travel on the new lanes while workmen tear up and widen the eastbound side of the road. Thus, two lanes will be open at all times.

SIFRER SAID IT is less expensive to tear up the existing pavement and replace it than it would be to attempt to restore it. The new pavement is designed so that no major repairs will be needed for 20 years, he said.

Prior to the start of construction the speed limit on Dundee Road was 50 miles per hour in most places. Sifrer said the current speed limit is regulated by workmen. During the day it is about 25 m.p.h. with the speed increasing in the evening when workmen are gone.

State officials said the speed limit on Dundee Road will be 45 m.p.h. after the road is widened.

The freeze is over

So far, beef prices haven't risen much past ceilings—but how long can it last?

by United Press International

The freeze on beef prices began thawing yesterday, but the cost of rump, sirloin, round and other cuts did not rise appreciably in some areas from the ceiling levels of last month.

In Dallas, the Tom Thumb supermarket chain took out full page ads to announce that it would stop giving trading stamps, apparently so it could offer reasonably priced beef instead. The company listed meat prices comparable to those before the freeze and the shortage — rump roast $1.59, sirloin $1.79 — but guaranteed them only for today.

In New York, wholesale meat suppliers said meat supplies were back to normal because of the lifting of price ceilings and plants were running at near capacity for the first time in several weeks. The wholesale price of beef was reported to be the same today as last week, indicating that consumers will not experience an immediate increase in retail prices.

A spokesman for First National Stores in Somerville, Mass., said he expected a return to supply and demand with beef coming back in plentiful supply. He said he felt the market would be "fairly reasonably stable" in the near future.

NO ONE, however, is willing to predict just how much beef prices will rise during the next days and weeks.

The price will depend on how much more beef hits the market. Farmers had been holding back cattle during the early stages of Phase IV in hopes of getting a higher price when the freeze ends. A large supply hitting the market would hold the price down.

The Cost of Living Council announced Friday that the freeze would end today, two days before originally scheduled under Phase IV.

Charles Bradley, president of the Colorado Cattlemen's Association said the freeze had done "irreparable" damage to the industry, but said consumers might see a reduction in price. "The damage inflicted to the beef industry is irreparable. If the cattle market drops any lower, many cattlemen may be forced to liquidate their businesses," he said in Glenwood Springs, Colo.

THE CHIEF executive officer of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Arch Booth, said the beef price freeze had not halted rising prices.

"Once again an unlamented flirtation with controls has proven that artificial restraints cannot solve economic problems and continue to fulfill that most uncontrollable of all economic forces: consumer demands. And homemakers know there was a failure to halt rising beef prices," Booth said.

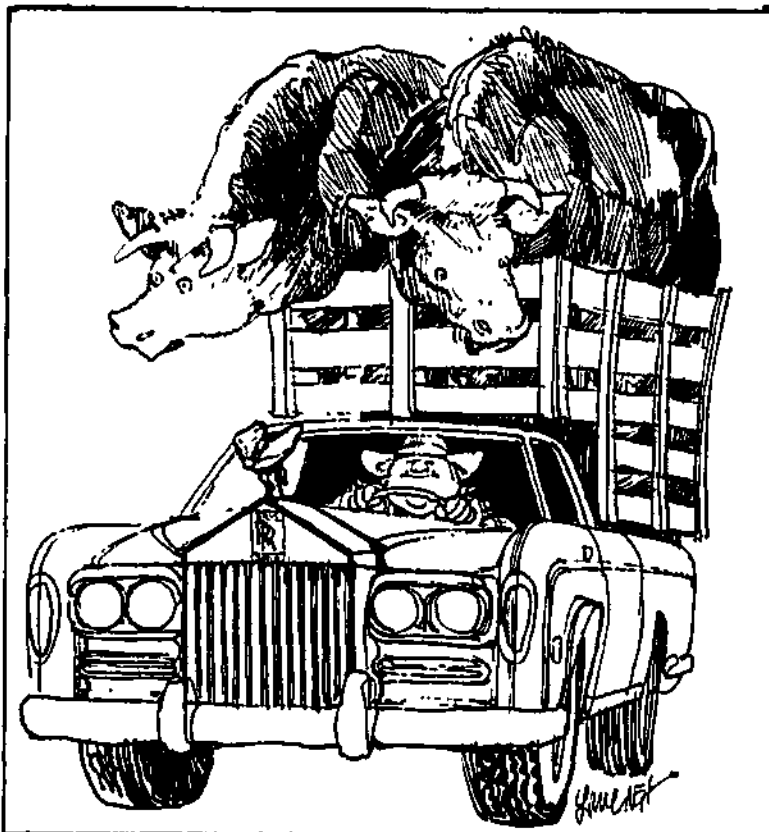

"Our only complaint on lifting the freeze on beef prices is that it was not accompanied by an end to all wage and price controls. An unfettered marketplace, coupled with restraints where they belong — on rampant federal spending — are the long run answers to checking inflation and restoring orderly economic growth."

A CHECK of Los Angeles area food stores opened on Sunday showed a small increase in the amount of meat sold. But there was no sign of hoarding by shoppers trying to beat price hikes.

Women United for Action, a consumers group in New York City, called for reinstatement of the freeze.

In a telegram to the Cost of Living Council, the group said "The consumers we represent consider your early lifting of the beef freeze as another piercing shot fired ... in an onslaught against us."

The women's organization, calling council chairman John Dunlap "a faithful servant of the beef trust," estimated early removal of the ceiling would cost consumers over $4.25 million.

Locally: no beef price increases yet

Beef prices could go down, according to a few meat market owners.

"Farmers have been waiting for the lift on the freeze to bring in their cattle, but it has been costing them 30 to 40 cents a pound to feed each one. It gets too wasteful and too expensive for the farmers," said Kruth. A large supply of cattle hitting the market would hold the price down.

"BEEF PRICES can bounce back down due to customer resistance," said Howland, who added that beef prices would be proportional to other meat prices after leveling off.

Contrary to what most consumers may believe, the supply of beef is substantial, according to the retailers.

People will choose between beef, pork or chicken, depending on which is cheaper during a particular week, said Kruth.

"It's sort of a balance. If something is too high on one side, they'll go to something else that's cheaper. Then the high prices will go down, and people will buy that."

Chicken will always be cheaper than beef, but if beef prices go down, people would pick beef over chicken or pork, despite the prices, said Kruth.

"I think there's going to be plenty of meat," said Herman Freund, owner of George's Quality Meats, Des Plaines. Beef producers who held back on supplies during the freeze will probably market what they held back, and therefore produce an oversupply, Freund said.

"ADD THIS TO the fact that the housewife has been making do with a little less meat, and there will probably be a 'soft' market," he said, adding that with the presence of beef, there will be less demand for pork and chicken.

Freezer orders on quarter or halves of cattle are still in demand, but in general, there has been no "panic buying," according to Howard Garrett, retail manager of the Arlington Packing Company in Arlington Heights.

Gustav Socher, co-owner of the Palatine Locker Service, said he has enough back orders to keep busy until the end of October. "It used to be a one-week wait to fill orders. Now it's five weeks."

At Howland's, there's 200 orders backed up. "We couldn't sell them at the going price at that time," said Howland. On the front of his store two signs had been pasted on the windows: Sorry, no more freezer orders.

Howland said that freezer orders have slackened off, probably because people are not worried about a beef shortage.

Some say that prices may increase from a few pennies to as much as 20 percent per pound, but most of the estimates were "highly speculative."

AREA RESTAURANTS have been managing under the beef problem by de-emphasizing beef and steak dishes, or adding other items, such as seafoods, to their menus.

Mr. Steak in Rolling Meadows has been de-emphasizing steaks on its lunch menu but they are still available to the customers who want them.

A spokesman for a Wheeling restaurant sees the beef situation as a "dog eat dog" kind of thing. He added that prices (on menus) will go up only "if we are forced into it."

Control of hospital boom may be seminar result

by STERLING MORITA

Somewhat tougher regulations on hospital building, and expansion were aired yesterday in Chicago by officials of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Health planning authorities from 12 Midwestern states attending a three day seminar at the Palmer House learned of proposed regulations.

The guideline affecting all new hospitals planned locally, would better define Illinois officials' power to regulate what has been called a virtually uncontrolled hospital boom in Chicago suburbs.

However, some officials indicated the regulations were less powerful than originally anticipated.

"We thought we had a law here, but as it turns out we don't," said Dave Johnson, executive director of an Indiana health planning agency.

CERTIFICATE OF NEED legislation, under consideration in the Illinois General Assembly, is tougher than the HEW standard, added George Lindsley, associate director of the Illinois State Comprehensive Health Planning Agency.

State agencies, under HEW guidelines, would coordinate local agencies and review expansion and building plans for hospitals. If hospital plans are turned down by the state's agency, a small amount of federal funds for Medicare and Medicaid could result.

Illinois has been operating since February under tentative guidelines set by HEW through legislation passed in December 1972.

Eugene Rubel, director of the Comprehensive Health Planning Service for HEW, said the regulations would bring consumers and public officials together in planning.

Although the general assembly has not approved strict hospital control measures, Lindsley believes state officials would support the agreement with HEW because "they are interested in good health planning for hospitals and cost containment."

THE STATE'S CERTIFICATE of need legislation proposes, in addition, that a hospital developer prove a need for their facilities before licensing.

Under the HEW standards the hospital developer would supply plans to both a locally approved agency and a state planning agency. The two groups would decide if the application shows whether the proposed project is needed and if it can be adequately staffed and operated.

The application would also have to substantiate whether proposed capital expenditures are economically feasible and if the facility will foster efficiency and productivity.

Penalties would include the curtailment of funds for depreciation, interest for borrowed moneys, and other expenses under Medicare, Medicaid and maternal child care provision in the social security act.

ONLY HEALTH CARE facilities (including hospitals) and health maintenance organizations are subject to the proposed HEW regulations. Capital expenditures for hospital facilities of more than $100,000 must be reviewed. But minor expenditures in changes of bed capacity or services must also be reviewed.

Exempt under the guidelines are facilities where plans were finalized before Dec. 18, 1970, or where obligations were contracted for prior to Dec. 31, 1972.

"There's going to be accountability for some things that haven't been accounted for before," Lindsley said.

ARGUMENTS, PRO and con, about hospital facilities in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates have been evident during recent years. Opponents of two hospitals planned for the villages have cited possible duplication of services and an over supply of hospital beds as reasons for more comprehensive planning.

The two are Rush Presbyterian St. Lukes, planned near Schaumburg and Roselle roads in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates Community Hospital planned at Higgins and Barrington roads.

Two other hospitals in the planning stages locally are a branch of Evanston Hospital in Glenview, to serve Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, and one in Barrington that would serve Palatine.

A 'court appearance for Agnew'

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, in the Chicago area Saturday for an appearance at St. Charles, spent the afternoon in a court appearance.

But it wasn't the type of court appearance he may face later. It was on the tennis court at River Trails Tennis Center in Mount Prospect.

The Vice President, called "a good 'B' player" by club head pro Ken Mackowiak, played on the indoor courts with Rep. Robert McClory, R-13th, of Lake Bluff, and two Secret Service men.

Agnew had wanted to play on the outdoor courts, but Secret Service men vetoed that because they desired the added security afforded indoors.

Ann Workman, assistant manager at River Trails, said Agnew was "most cordial," signing autographs and chatting with several children at the club.

The Secret Service had initiated strict secrecy on the visit, keeping spectators away from the courts used by the Vice President. The press also had been unaware of the impending visit.

Suit filed over tax assessments

Assessment of Northwest suburban and North Side Chicago properties was challenged in a court suit Monday that asks returns of millions of dollars in 1972 real estate taxes.

The suit, filed by Chicago attorney Richard Kissel, stated that an increase in assessment level from 10 to 20 percent in Niles, Wheeling and Palatine and other North townships is unconstitutional because the same hike was not applied in three other county tax quadrants.

Kissel headed a commission under former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie that investigated assessment practices throughout the state. The suit is supported by the Northside Tax Review Committee, headed by E. J. Feulner.

KISSEL REPRESENTS a Lake Shore National Bank trust that owns property at 909 N. Rush St., Chicago.

"We're saying that the assessor applied different levels of assessment in quadrant one than in other parts of Cook County," Kissel said. "You can't arbitrarily decide on a different level in only one area. We're saying that you doubled our taxes unfairly and we should get our money back."

Chicago attorney Alan S. Ganz unsuccessfully challenged a switch by Assessor P. J. Cullerton to a "fair market" tax system in a suit April 18. The case claimed that county assessment guidelines are vague and allow favoritism in assigning values.

Big Steel gets OK to raise prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government allowed the steel industry Monday a two-stage $8-a-ton price increase for flat rolled steel during the rest of this year which may translate into a $15 higher cost for a new car next year.

The Cost of Living Council permitted major steel producers to hike the price of flat rolled steel by the amount they sought but ordered that it be stretched out over the next three months rather than take place immediately.

The producers now can raise the price of flat rolled steel — a major ingredient of many consumer goods — by about $4.50 a ton on Oct. 1 and by about the same amount next Jan. 1.

Ten companies, representing 70 per cent of the industry, had sought to put the full increase into effect on Wednesday.

John Dunlap, chairman of the council, said the increase was stretched out "to have a minimum impact on the economy."

Other council officials said the increase could result in raising the price of a toaster by one penny and of a new car by up to $15 assuming the council permits the auto industry to pass along the higher price it must pay for steel.

Flat rolled steel accounts for about 40 per cent of the steel industry's output. The price ranges now from $150 to $200 a ton.

As part of its order the council postponed consideration of any application to increase prices for steel products not covered by Monday's action.

That meant that companies could not post higher prices before Jan. 1 for 60 per cent of their output.

Dunlap described the action on steel as "tough."

He said the price increases sought by the industry were "fully cost-justified" but said the council stretched them out to prevent a new inflationary cycle from starting through the economy.

Nixon—'olive branch' to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Extending an olive branch to Congress, President Nixon Monday called for a new spirit of creative cooperation that would bring swift remedies to inflation, the energy shortage and other pressing national problems.

In another attempt to put the Watergate scandal behind him and bring his scandal-scattered administration back into harmony with Congress, Nixon said he was willing to compromise on solutions to a whole host of issues.

"There can be no monopoly of wisdom at either end of Pennsylvania Avenue — and there should be no monopoly of power," Nixon said.

But in the lengthy document, billed by the White House as a second State of the Union message, Nixon said there were three non-negotiable issues — holding government spending within his $268.7 billion budget, maintaining a strong defense posture and preserving the power of the presidency.

He said he welcomed a "renaissance" of the Congress but not at the expense of the White House.

The 15,000-word message called for "swift and decisive" congressional action on 50 administration proposals, ranging from reforming income tax laws to giving elderly persons a break to making plans for the nation's bicentennial celebration in 1976.

Not only has Congress only passed three of the 13 appropriations bills necessary to run the government during the current fiscal year, he said, it was heading toward $7 billion in budget-busting expenditures.

He vowed he would not tolerate such inflation feeding extravagance and threatened to use the veto if acceptable compromises are not reached.

Also requiring immediate attention were four measures aimed at coping with the energy shortage, he said. They would provide for construction of the Alaskan oil pipeline, the building of deep water ports to handle giant tankers, the elimination of controls on natural gas prices and new regulations for strip-mining of coal.

Nixon offered to work with congressional committees to make income tax laws fairer and simpler and again proposed that old people be exempted from paying property taxes on their homes.

The President's message put forward no new proposals. Rather it set forth his own priorities for congressional action for the remaining four months of the current session.

...It's taken, cautiously

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic leaders in Congress Monday accepted President Nixon's peace overtures and took under consideration a package of 50 bills he wants passed, many of them before the end of the year.

But there was some Capitol Hill skepticism that Nixon's effort to smooth relations with Congress by his offer to compromise on legislation would work.

"The President feels he is trying to compromise his way," Speaker Carl Albert said after Nixon met with House leaders over breakfast. "He feels his willingness to compromise is genuine."

"But what we might call a compromise might go too far with him and his views might go too far for us."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who met with Nixon last week, said he feels the President is serious about averting confrontations and added "my impression is that the President intended to bring about a degree of cooperation" by meeting with congressional leaders.

Mansfield said Congress would give Nixon's new list of legislative proposals prompt consideration and Albert noted that "there was nothing much different from what he has submitted and what we have scheduled."

"It's just a question of details," Albert added. "We're willing to meet the President half way and in some cases, more than half way."

Many of the bills on the list, outlined in Nixon's State of the Union message Monday, are in the hearing stage, passed by either the Senate or House, or already in conference. Some others, like housing and national health insurance, have not been submitted by the administration.

One of the major confrontations may come from Nixon's threat in his message that he would veto any cuts in his defense budget.

"Well, that's too bad," Mansfield said. "We have no sacred cows," the Senate Democratic leader added. "I'm sure we can simplify that budget, maintain a strong defense posture, and get away from these exotic programs."

"We're going to defend ourselves right into bankruptcy," Mansfield said. Mansfield also predicted that Congress would reduce Nixon's fiscal 1974 budget and appeared undisturbed about possible clashes between now and final adjournment.

"There will be honest differences between us," Mansfield said.

Next court step today in fight for Nixon tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court today will hear oral arguments in the historic constitutional battle over possession of the recordings of President Nixon's Watergate-related conversations with former White House and campaign aides.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday received a round robin of briefs filed by President Nixon's lawyers, Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox, and Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who ordered Nixon to give him the controversial tapes.

In their 95-page brief, White House attorneys asked the court to ignore "the heat and excitement of an unprecedented political scandal" and uphold the secrecy of Nixon's Watergate tapes against demands that would cripple the presidency.

Suggesting that he could not have ended the Vietnam War or opened new relations with China without secret conversations, the President's lawyers urged rejection as "utterly without precedent" Judge Sirica's demand that the tapes be turned over to private judicial review.

Judge Sirica defended his decision in a brief charging that no one — not even a President — has the right to withhold evidence from a grand jury.

At the same time, Cox asked the appeals court to vacate Sirica's ruling and order the tapes to go directly to the grand jury because the judge "failed to articulate the standards he considers proper for determining what evidence will be ordered produced to the grand jury and what evidence, if any, will be kept secret."

The suit brought by Cox is being considered by the appeals judges under an accelerated timetable and could reach the Supreme Court shortly after it returns Oct. 1 for its fall term.

Meanwhile, the office of Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., said the Watergate committee will meet at 9 a.m. Wednesday for the first time since it recessed Aug. 7 after 11 weeks of public hearings. The committee will plan the format of the next stage of its hearings to begin early next week.

In Chicago, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., committee vice chairman, said Monday he thinks Watergate now has assumed "diminished importance" and predicted the Senate hearings on the subject will end by November. He also pre-

Paper tells White House role in bombing secrecy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon said Monday the White House approved raid-by-raid a total of 3,875 clandestine B52 bombing strikes in Cambodia four years ago and developed the basic plan to keep them secret, including a cover story to tell reporters.

The 32-page "white paper" prepared for the Senate Armed Services Committee also said the White House gave blanket approval for four other secret operations in Southeast Asia, involving 15,546 air strikes and 2,731 ground spy missions, which were also covered up by false operational reports.

Although the white paper was the most complete account ever given of secret U.S. operations in the Indochina war, it drew sharp criticism from Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa because it omitted many of the documents and orders requested by the Armed Forces Committee.

"We have been given second-hand summaries of key decisions rather than the documents themselves," Hughes said. "We need to see the raw data if we are to judge who was behind the massive deception and falsification."

The new report increased the number of acknowledged secret B52 strikes in Cambodia by 243.

The Cambodian bombing was so secret, the white paper said, that bomber crews were briefed "to make every effort not to bomb in Cambodia" but pilots and navigators were told separately to disregard these instructions.

The Pentagon report said a cover story had to be invented to "minimize the likelihood of public speculation or disclosure" because on some days the secret raids totaled 60 per cent of the B52 strikes flown and failure to report them at all would have made it obvious something was up.

Highlights of Nixon message

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Summary of the main points in President Nixon's new State of the Union message to Congress:

Budget
Congress, the President said, threatens to add $6 billion to his $268.7 billion budget in bills passed or now pending and has failed to make more than $1 billion in cuts he asked. "Thus, if the Congress continues to follow its present course, the American taxpayers will soon receive a bill for more than $7 billion in increased spending."

Defense
"I continue to be adamantly opposed to attempts at balancing the overall budget by slashing the defense budget. We are already at the razor's edge in defense spending . . . Further cuts would be dangerously irresponsible and I will veto any bill that includes cuts which would imperil our national security."

Economy
He asked for legislation to give him more flexible authority to raise and lower tariffs and to control exports of scarce foods and other goods. He renewed opposition to any tax increase, but urged tax reform to bring about a "fairer and simpler" system and a tax credit to help older people with low incomes pay their property taxes. Of inflation, he said, "Americans want and deserve decisive action to fight rising prices."

Energy
Called for approval of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline, construction of deepwater ports for big oil tankers, and an end to federal regulation of natural gas prices to encourage expanded exploration and production. Also, environmental standards to allow safe use of strip mining to exploit U.S. coal reserves, tripling of leases for offshore oil and gas wells, and cancellation of oil leases in the Santa Barbara channel off California along with developing inland oil reserves previously set aside for national defense.

Human Resources
• Shift of most educational programs from direct federal grants to giving money to states through revenue sharing.

• Health insurance program in which "public and private sectors join to bring the costs of quality care within every family's reach."

• Federal funds to demonstrate Health Maintenance Organizations, a kind of group medical care.

• Legal services for the poor.

Crime and Drugs
• Reform of the criminal code to bring clarity and consistency.

• Tough new penalties for heroin traffickers including mandatory prison sentences.

• Restoration of the death penalty for treason, assassination, certain acts of sabotage and espionage, and violation of selected federal laws in which death results.

People

• The search continued in the water off East Hampton, N.Y., for 23-year-old David Post Rumbough. Potential heir to two fortunes, presumed drowned in a boating accident. Among those who went through the second day of a so-far vain search: Rumbough's mother, actress Dina Merrill, heiress to the C.W. Post fortune, with her current husband, actor Cliff Robertson, and Rumbough's father, Colgate millionaire Stanley Maddox Rumbough Jr.

• The black mayor of Fayette, Miss. — Charles Evers — had some practical advice for black political candidates in Kentucky. Get the support of the preachers, he told a workshop for black leaders at the University of Louisville: "If they say vote for old Evers, the congregation will vote. If they say don't vote, Evers is sunk."

• When Armando Valencia was arrested for marijuana possession in Santee, Calif., police must have set some kind of record. The cache: three tons of pot in brick form, valued at $2 million.

• Good news for Princess Anne, who lost her chance to defend her cross-country title when her horse threw her during the European riding championships at Kiev. X-rays show she did not break her collar bone, but she still has a sore shoulder.

MSD to buy 48 acres for Watershed

The Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) will have to buy an additional 48 acres of land at an expected cost of $1.19 million as part of the local contribution to the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Work Plan, the MSD board learned last week.

The additional land is needed to dispose of soil excavated from two of the retention basins being built under the work plan.

The MSD board approved purchasing the additional land as required after being told by its chief engineer that the U.S. Soil Conservation Service has determined that the additional land is needed to accommodate the excavated soil.

If the MSD refused to purchase the additional land it would be faced with the cost of disposing of the soil and have to make sure that the soil was not dumped on other lands in the flood plain.

THE LAND requirements are for 20 acres of land for the soil from reservoir five, which is to be a nine-acre pool near the Palatine Hills Golf Course and 28 acres of land for the soil from reservoir six which is to be a 5.4-acre lake near Palatine and Quentin roads.

The additional land costs will bring the MSD part of the total work program up to $3,951,500, Chief Engineer Forrest C. Nell said. Nell told the MSD board he would know shortly whether even more land will be needed for one other basin being built as part of the plan.

The work plan is currently in Washington awaiting congressional approval.

MSD contracts for rock boring tests

The Metropolitan Sanitary District will spend $114,280.25 to have 48 holes drilled 23 feet deep in various locations throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

The holes are rock borings needed to determine the feasibility of building the system of underground storage tunnels for combined sanitary and storm sewage as proposed in the Chicago Underflow Plan.

The MSD board last week awarded a contract to Atec Associates of Illinois Inc. for the work, which will also include water pressure testing in rock, pump-out testing in rock and installation of approximately four observation wells.

The borings will help the MSD decide at what depth the tunnels should be built and will pinpoint general locations of major faults and the severity of shear zones in the rock layers underlying the northwest suburbs.

Project LEAP begins recruiting

Project LEAP has started a drive to recruit judges for the 1974 and 1975 Cook County elections and will begin a series of training sessions Oct. 1 at Central YMCA Community College, 19 S. LaSalle St.

LEAP — "Legal Elections in All Precincts" — is the only vote protection agency in Illinois and will assign watchers to "problem-prone" election precincts during the 1974 state and 1975 Chicago municipal elections.

Instruction at Central YMCA will include election laws, judges duties, voter rights, poll work and examples of vote fraud and vote irregularities.

Illinois election law limits appointments of election judges to two years and former judges terms expire Dec. 31.

Dates of other training sessions planned in the six-county area have not been set, said a spokesman for LEAP, at 22 W. Monroe St., Chicago.

Paramedic program needs donations

Rescue squad fund drive set

THE ABOVE stamp is like the ones sent to Buffalo Grove residents as part of a fund raising campaign by the fire department for the program.

In three to four weeks, the Buffalo Grove Fire Department will mail Rescue Squad seals to residents in an attempt to raise money for its paramedic program.

Fire Chief Wayne Winter said yesterday the paramedic program is dependent on donations, since tax money from the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District can only be used to purchase fire fighting equipment.

Winter said he prefers financing the program with donations rather than creating an ambulance tax, as several other towns have done.

Since the program was started last December, it has been financed through dances, bingo games, benefits and private donations. The money raised through these activities has paid for all the equipment and supplies, including the paramedic squad truck, which cost

Other contributors include Dunkin' Donuts, the Fashion Tree, Frank's Shoes, the Hobby House, Homefinder's Realty, the House of Anthony Coiffures, Jo-Ann Country Florist, Koepen's Cigo Station, Kotz Shoes, Lieberman Realty, Lenar Cleaners, Local Loan Company, Mars Juvenile Shop, the Marriott Motor Hotel, Mr. Steak, the Ranch Mart Association, R. J.'s Vista Cyclery and Sauer's Bake Shop.

The Scissors Palace Beauty Shop, State Farm Insurance (Robert Povetto, agent), Steven's Bedding, Striker's Bowling Lanes, The Beauty Parlor, Tom Todd Chevrolet, The Camping Site, Ltd., The Traveler, The Toadstool Gift Shop, Tic Toc Carry Out, Tomorrow Dress Shop, Transamerica Realty, United Rent-All, Wood-n-Cloth, Wall Paper Library, Wickes Furniture, Wheeling Lumber, Weller's Restaurant, and Your Pie House also contributed.

More than $6,600 was raised for the paramedic program through the benefit.

$7,300. The bingo games have recently been discontinued.

UNDER THE new plan, the fire department will mail an information sheet to residents every six months telling them of the activities and progress of the paramedic program. Once a year, several sheets of Rescue Squad seals will be mailed along with the information sheet. Residents can, if they wish, donate to the program.

The paramedics are trained to administer emergency medical treatment and are capable of handling virtually every kind of trauma case, especially heart attacks.

Meadows fire chief 'good' after surgery

Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty was reported in good condition yesterday at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago following open heart surgery Sunday.

Fogarty, who suffered a near-fatal heart attack last month and was saved by Rolling Meadows fire department paramedics, underwent five hours of open heart surgery Sunday performed by a team of the hospital's cardiovascular specialists. Doctors performed a coronary vein bypass in which a vein from the leg was transplanted into the heart, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Fogarty, 51, was in good condition following the surgery.

The veteran fire chief was stricken Aug. 16 at his home. A team of paramedics rushed to Fogarty's home and administered electric shock treatment and intravenous medication to revive Fogarty. Doctors at at Northwest Community Hospital have credited the paramedics with saving the chief's life.

DR. STANLEY Zydlo, head of the paramedic program at the hospital, said doctors determined some time ago that the surgery would be necessary. He said Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital is one of several Chicago area hospitals equipped to perform the special surgical technique which was required.

The spokesman for Presbyterian-St. Luke's said the surgery could have been performed Saturday, but a supply of type O negative blood, Fogarty's type, had to be stocked for the surgery. The blood was supplied by the Chicago Police Department, the spokesman said.

Fogarty could be hospitalized from

Girls establish sea-going Explorer post

by LINDA PUNCH
A group of Mount Prospect girls is challenging the old sailor's adage that women and ships don't mix.

The girls, students at Prospect and Forest View high schools, are members of Explorer Ship 600, a recently formed group focusing on water sports, boating and active camping. The ship is cross-registered with the Girl Scouts of America and the Boy Scout Council.

The group was formed by girls dissatisfied with the senior Girl Scout program.

"We decided to start the ship because the girls themselves thought the Girl Scout program didn't fulfill the need they wanted," Cadette leader Barbara Baker said.

WHILE MOST high school age girls shy away from the Girl Scout image, an Explorer ship doesn't carry the same stigma, according to Nancy Olsen, ship secretary.

"People just don't like the Girl Scout image, but it doesn't bother me any more," she said. "When I tell them how much fun we're having and about the boat, they don't look down on us any more."

The girls will be basing their activities on the Boy Scout sea exploring manual. They are eligible for Girl Scout and Boy Scout awards.

THE BIGGEST PROJECT at hand for the girls is transporting a 30-foot cabin cruiser donated to their post by the Northwest Suburban Council of Boys Scouts. The cruiser is currently lodged in a small town just south of Bloomington, Ind.

Although the girls have two volunteers willing to tow the boat northward, they need a truck capable of hauling 10,000 pounds.

Other projects sponsored by the group include a paper drive last weekend and an on-going car wash, with the girls washing the car at the owner's home by appointment. Appointments can be made by calling 437-7281 or 392-0627.

While boys can join the post, the girls are determined to make a success of it on their own.

"Mr. Baker (post consultant) wants us to learn how to work the boat perfectly," Nancy said. "He wants us to be just like the guys."

Registration open for park activities

Registration is being taken for fall, winter and spring activities offered by the Wheeling Park District.

Persons may sign up for a variety of athletic, entertainment and instructional programs at the park district office, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

The park district office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

A brochure outlining the times, dates and fees for all programs was mailed to park district residents last Saturday.

CLASSES ARE SCHEDULED to begin the week of Sept. 24, but registration will be accepted anytime during the year.

Included in the list of activities available are pre-school classes, tumbling, trampoline, cheerleading, guitar instruction, swimming lessons, sewing, judo, karate, horseback riding, woodcarving, exercise classes for both men and women, football, basketball and hockey.

Separate registrations for park district

dance classes will be conducted from 10 a.m. to noon Sept. 15 for instruction designed for children ages five to 15 and from 10 a.m. to noon Sept. 19 for preschoolers.

Schwaben Oktoberfest is Saturday, Sunday

German food specialties, sing-alongs and Bavarian dancing will highlight a Schwaben Center Oktoberfest scheduled for Saturday and Sunday in Buffalo Grove.

The Oktoberfest will be celebrated under a huge tent on the Schwaben Soccer Center's 18-acre site off Rte. 83, north of Dundee Road. A separate food tent will feature such specialties as a "Liebknecht Dinner," a "Kassler Rib Dinner," and a "Pork Shank Dinner." Beer and bratwurst also will be served.

The second annual fest is scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. on Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Sunday. Entertainment during the weekend will include soccer games, sing-alongs, a Bavarian dance group, and a performing Dalmatian dog show.

Admission to the Oktoberfest will be free. There is parking for 1,500 cars.

Charge attempted murder in pharmacy stickup try

A local man was charged with attempted murder and attempted armed robbery late yesterday afternoon after police said he tried to rob a Des Plaines pharmacy but fled after exchanging gunshots with a druggist.

Wayne Imwood, 21, of $860 Welwyn Ave., Des Plaines, was arrested about 30 minutes after the attempted holdup of the Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, yesterday morning.

Police refused to release details of the arrest but said that Imwood matched descriptions of the gunman. Des Plaines Det. Al Freitag also said there was "certain physical evidence" linking Imwood to the incident.

POLICE ARE investigating a link between Imwood and two previous armed holdups at the pharmacy last August, but declined to say yesterday whether he would be charged with the robberies.

No one was injured in the shootout which occurred when police said a man entered the store and announced the holdup at gunpoint. The druggist, whom police refused to identify, also drew a pistol and fired two shots at the bandit.

Police said the would-be robber returned shots and fled the store. An unidentified postman told police he heard the gunfire, and saw a man wearing a plaid shirt and baseball hat run from the store. The postman ran to a telephone and notified police.

A search later turned up a stocking mask reported to have been worn by the robber.

In an Aug. 20 holdup, a robber also clad in a plaid shirt and stocking mask fled the store after taking two bottles of an unidentified drug and tying up druggist Frank Altmeyer and a customer.

The store was held up less than a week later at gunpoint by a man who demanded an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood had been scheduled for trial Oct. 9 in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago on another count of armed robbery dating back to last July when he allegedly held up the Hynes Pharmacy in Des Plaines.

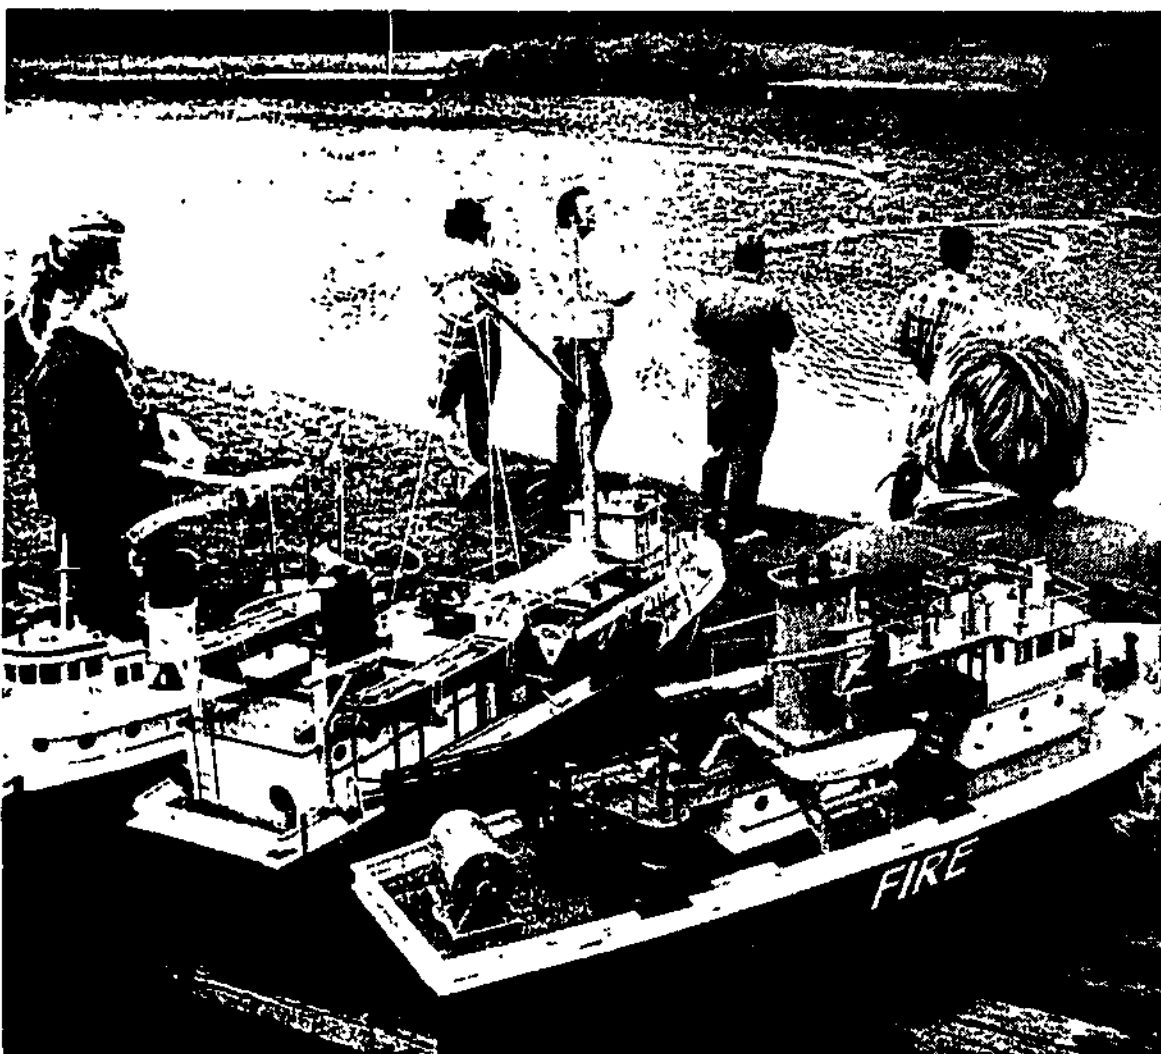

Imwood is being held by Des Plaines police on a total of $30,000 bond pending a hearing in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Thursday.

Temple sets auction

Temple Chai will sponsor a "champagne auction" Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Kingswood United Methodist Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Gift merchandise will be among the items to be auctioned. Champagne and other refreshments will be served to those attending.

Donations for the auction are $1.75. Tickets are available at the door or by calling 537-7180.

POTAWATOMI LAKE in Wheeling is a common meeting place for the Northwest Commodore Club, which sells working models of ships. Club members have a variety of boats operated by radio control, with masts that resemble fishing poles. Erwin Stevenson, Dist. 59 assistant superintendent, helped to organize the group.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Walter Gilbert

It was a case of chemical attraction

It was literally their chemistry that drew this couple together, more precisely, the organic chemistry lab at the University of Wisconsin where they first met. Now Linda Ray Carlson, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Raymond A. Carlson of 43 Timberhill Road, Buffalo Grove, is Mrs. Carl Walter Gilbert. Carl's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Walter W. Gilbert of Hockessin, Del.

The wedding took place Aug. 17 in Reed Chapel of the First United Methodist Church in Arlington Heights. Linda made her own bridal gown of winter white Lutesong with winter white braid trim. Her silk netting veil fell from a winter white headpiece trimmed in white lace and seed pearls. Pink sweetheart roses accented her white bouquet of carnations and baby's breath.

Linda's sister, Mary, not only assumed the role of maid of honor, but sang "I Love Thee, Dear" at the start of the ceremony. She and the groom's sister, Diane who served as bridesmaid, wore pink crepe princess-style gowns, Mary's a shade darker than Diane's. Both wore matching picture hats and carried baskets of white carnations and pompon daisies highlighted with pink sweetheart roses.

The groom's party consisted of William C. Long of Milwaukee, best man; and William J. Carlson, the brother of the bride. A small reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert are living in Urbana where both attend the University of Illinois as graduate students. Linda, a 1969 Wheeling High School graduate, earned a degree in genetics from the University of Wisconsin in Madison. Carl's degree from the same university is in biochemistry.

Garden reception follows Lindsay-Splittorff rites

Two 1969 graduates of Arlington High School, Pamela Lindsay and Louis Allen Splittorff, were married Aug. 18 in a candlelight ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights.

The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gale Lindsay, 529 S. Banbury Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Splittorff, 532 S. Walnut.

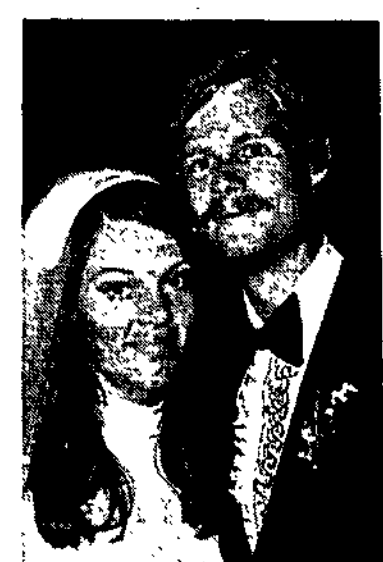

Pamela approached the altar wearing a gown of imported English tulle, applied in Venice lace and seed pearls. Her cathedral-length veil fell from a headpiece matching her dress and she carried a nosegay of white roses, baby's breath, lily-of-the-valley and ivy.

DEBORAH LINDSAY preceded her sister down the aisle in a yellow organdy dress featuring long puffed sleeves and a ruffle at the hem. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisy mums, baby's breath, yellow roses, blue cornflowers and miniature yellow carnations.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Frank Diaz Jr., the groom's sister from Buffalo Grove, Margaret Adams and Patricia Strother, Arlington Heights, and Cynthia Haas, Norman, Okla. They were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Flower girl for the double ring ceremony was Jennifer Splittorff, the groom's niece from Kansas City, Mo. She wore a yellow organdy dress fashioned after the bridesmaid's attire.

Louis chose William Yeager Jr., Wheeling, W. Va., as his best man. Seating the 200 guests were Paul Splittorff, the groom's brother from Kansas City; James Aleck, Homewood; Gary Funke, Hoffman Estates; and Dennis James, Oxford, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Splittorff

A RECEPTION WAS held in the garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Flint. A yellow and white canopy covered the guests as they danced to the music of a trio.

The newlyweds honeymooned in San Francisco for a week before returning to their new home in the Los Angeles area.

Pamela attended Oklahoma University, Butler University and Indiana University. Louis attended Indiana where he received a degree in business administration. He is employed by Wilson Sporting Goods Co. in Los Angeles.

Colorado mountain setting for Michela-Weber wedding

St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church in Boulder, Colorado, was the setting for the wedding ceremony uniting Janice Michela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Michela, 2123 E. Gregory, Mount Prospect, and Jeffrey Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Weber, Longmont, Colo.

For her Aug. 18 wedding, Janice chose a white organza gown highlighted with flower appliques. Her chapel length train and mantilla veil were edged in matching appliques and she carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The bride's sister, Christine, of Milwaukee, appeared as maid of honor in an organdy dress fashioned with an orchid bodice and an orchid and white plaid skirt. An orchid picture hat and a basket of yellow daisies and lavender statice complemented her ensemble.

MAUREEN BURHENN, Englewood, Colo., was bridesmaid. She was dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Michael Weber, the groom's brother from Colorado Springs, Colo., was best man for the double ring ceremony. Mark Perkle, Alan Jones and Donald Brown, all of Boulder, were the other male attendants.

Following a reception at the Harvest

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Weber

House in Boulder, the newlyweds left on a honeymoon in the Colorado mountains. They are now at home in DeKalb.

Janice is a 1971 graduate of Prospect High School and attended the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley for two years. She will continue her education at Northern Illinois University. Jeffrey will be attending pre-law school at the same school.

New Pi Phi alums in the area are welcome. They may contact Mrs. Ralph Wenk, 392-4732.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Except for hamburger, a good many people have all but given up on meat these days. But for those who feel the urge for a good meat dish without having to float a bank loan, let me recommend stroganoff made with chuck. Even though the most inexpensive of the cuts, it's excellent meat and I've freely confessed to being an aficionado. Elizabeth Swanson and I made this one together one night and we thought it delicious.

Chop one large onion fine and fry slowly in about two tablespoons of fat. Put it to one side, then add two pounds of cubed chuck — floured — with all the fat removed. Sauté until brown, then add the onions and enough consomme to cover. Add a little soy sauce to taste, plus salt and pepper. Simmer until almost tender. Then add half-a-pound of sliced fresh mushrooms and continue simmering. Just before serving over rice or noodles, add one cup of sour cream, stirring it in gently. I think you'll like this one.

Dear Dorothy: Ever since we moved into our new place, my husband has taken on the chore of stacking the dishes in the dishwasher — and doing it just so. Lately when the washer wasn't quite full, he has been adding glasses and those of our good dishes that have become cloudy or dusty. He's pleased as can be by the result, and so am I. —Marjorie Grippen

Good man. Bravo.

Dear Dorothy: Can't understand why people complain about insects in their homes when they can use those DDT-impregnated strips. They do a fantastic job. —Helen Massari

They may do a good job, but they should not be hung in kitchens or infants' rooms or in those quarters occupied by the elderly.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Newlyweds at Illinois State

Two 1970 high school graduates returned this fall to Illinois State University at Normal as man and wife. Barbara Anne Becker became the bride of B. Donald Moore Aug. 18 in a double ring ceremony performed at St. Hubert Church.

Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Becker of Hoffman Estates, and Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buren Moore of Palatine.

The bride wore a Nottingham and Venice lace gown featuring nylon pleated rusecutting. The chapel-length mantilla veil, also trimmed with Venice lace, was secured to a nylon Camelet bonnet. Barbara carried a cascade of yellow roses, stephanotis and ivy.

EVERYONE IN both families took part in the wedding. Matron of honor was Mary Ahnen of Hoffman Estates. Shari Becker, the bride's sister; Kristy Taucher, her cousin from Elk Grove Village; Kathy Moore, the groom's sister from Palatine; and Susan Di Giralamo, also a cousin of the bride's from Norridge, were attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Donald Moore

They wore gowns of yellow flocked floral prints on white organza set off by white picture hats. Their nosegays were of double daisies, yellow mums and ivy.

The groom's niece, Shannon McKown, 4, from Palatine, was the flower girl and carried the same basket of flowers Barbara used when she appeared in her aunt's wedding.

David Appelhans, 5, from Antioch, was ring bearer.

DAN JOHNSON of Palatine served as best man. Ushers included Gary Moore, the groom's brother from Detroit, Mich., and two of the bride's brothers, Bruce and Steve Becker, both of Hoffman Estates. Also in the wedding party was Tim Heidorn of Palatine.

A reception for the 165 guests was held at Lancer's Steak House in Palatine.

Barbara is a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School and her husband graduated from Fremd High School. Following the reception the couple honeymooned for a week in Florida before returning to classes.

College chapel setting for Mokate-Hall nuptials

The chapel at Rockford College was the setting for the wedding of Kathleen Mokate of Mount Prospect and William A. Hall of Clinton, Wis. Kathy is the daughter of Mrs. G. Michael Mokate of 209 N. Elmhurst Ave., and the late Mr. Mokate. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hall.

For the Aug. 18 candlelight ceremony, the bride chose a gown of ivory organza trimmed with English lace and styled with a cathedral train. Her mantilla veil was edged in the lace, and she carried a nosegay of roses, blue cornflowers and baby's breath.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Lorene Levens of Mount Prospect. Bridesmaids were Mary Rogers of Arlington Heights and Pat Theyrel of Rockford.

The attendants all wore light blue, floor-length dresses with matching jackets trimmed in ivory. Julie Beard, 7, of Clinton, was flower girl and Matthew Gellinas, 7, of Mount Prospect, was ring bearer. Julie wore a long ivory crepe dress with ruffles and blue trim.

Best man was the groom's brother, John Hall of Clinton. Ushers were Denny Franseen of Clinton; Duane Kelting of Ames, Iowa; Lee Belne of Charles City, Iowa; and Denny Jeffers of Clinton.

Following a reception at the Hotel Faust in Rockford, the couple honeymooned in Madison, Wis. They are now residing in Clinton, where the groom is dairy supervisor of Wil-O-Jones Farms.

Mrs. William A. Hall

The bride is a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School and Rockford College. She is now a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin at Madison. The groom is a graduate of Iowa State University in Ames.

Mini-attendants lead processional

Mrs. Gary R. Hill

Two little nieces and a young nephew comprised the mini-contingent of the bridal party when Peggy Nidiffer, daughter of the Clyde Nidiffers of Martinsville, Ind., married Gary R. Hill, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Hill of 623 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Clad in lavender and white dresses trimmed with lace and pink and white flocked flowers, the bride's niece, Tressa Hickman, 4, of Terre Haute, Ind., and the groom's niece, Christine Siegel, 5, of Hanover, N. H., preceded the bride as they carried their baskets of red rose petals. Five-year-old John Nidiffer of Terre Haute, nephew of the bride, carried the ring in the Aug. 18 ceremony.

Peggy chose a white chiffon birdal gown with cotton lace bodice and accents of lavender ribbon threaded through Venice lace. A lace ribbon headpiece secured her cathedral length veil. Her flowers were lavender cymbidium orchids and pink carnations.

MAID OF HONOR, Susan Gaskins of Danville, Ind., was gowned in lavender chiffon dotted swiss with headpiece of lavender net and pink carnations. The roses of her bouquet were surrounded with pink carnations. Attired identically was Jeanie Edwards of Terre Haute, cousin of the bride, serving as bridesmaid.

Dale Svetnoff of Arlington Heights was Gary's best man, with Chris Nystrom, also of Arlington, serving as groomsman, while Dan Dvorak of Wheaton and Gary Hickman of Terre Haute, the bride's brother-in-law, performed as ushers. A buffet dinner was served at the church following the ceremony.

Peggy, currently employed by Packard Ltd. in Terre Haute, is an Indiana State University junior majoring in mathematics and physics. Gary, a 1968 Arlington High School graduate, was awarded a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering by the Rose Hulman Institute of Technology in Terre Haute and is currently working on his master's degree at the same institution. He is also employed by Motorola.

Groom's sister plays Cupid

Three years ago when Diane Zapfel worked at Wieboldt's, one of her co-workers, Mary Dickinson, introduced Diane to her brother, Lawrence Iodice, and on Aug. 11 Diane and Lawrence were married in Bethel Lutheran Church, Palatine. The pair honeymooned in Naples, Italy, for three weeks.

Diane is the daughter of the Arthur Bethkes, 654 E. Meadow Lane, Palatine, and Lawrence is the son of the Carmel Iodices, 1826 Bittersweet Lane, Mount Prospect. The newlyweds are making their home at Normal, Ill., where the groom is studying at the Illinois State University and working full time. Diane also studied at Illinois State.

An Empire gown of silk organza with lace appliques was Diane's choice in wedding gown. A Camelet headpiece held her veil, and she carried white daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

MRS. SANDRA MOSIER, sister of the bride from Mendota, Ill., was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Dickinson, who now resides in Champaign, and Donna Utt, Palatine. All wore lavender Empire gowns and carried baskets of pink carnations, white daisies, purple asters and baby's breath.

Thomas Sleck, Mount Prospect, was best man, and ushers were James Monroe, Mount Prospect, and Daniel Graham, Arlington Heights.

The 4 p.m. double ring service was followed by a reception for 100 at Howard Johnson's Ballroom.

Couple weds after 5-year courtship

A five-year courtship culminated in marriage Aug. 17 for Conant High School graduates Gale Beth Janicek of Hoffman Estates and Duane George Smeryage of Schaumburg.

Solemnizing their vows, said in St. Hubert Catholic Church, was a personal friend of the bridal couple, Fr. Russell Romano.

For the double ring 6:30 p.m. service, Gale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Janicek of 113 Cochise St., chose an ivory and peach color scheme. Her own gown of ivory peau de soie was trimmed in hand-beaded rose point lace and featured a cathedral train. A headpiece of the same lace held her cathedral length veil. In her bouquet were phalaenopsis orchids, peach Abbey roses and baby's breath.

The bride's attendants were dressed in ivory organza with a peach floral pattern. They wore peach color picture hats and carried bouquets of peach carnations, peach Abbey roses and baby's breath.

MRS. IRENE McINERNEY of Elk Grove Village was the matron of honor and Mrs. Georgia Pottinger, the groom's sister, from Schaumburg; Linda Przeniczny, Elgin; and Terry Adamson, Schaumburg, were bridesmaids.

Duane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane E. Smeryage of 628 Huntington Lane, was attended by John Cassidy, Elgin, as best man. The bride's brother, James; the bridegroom's brother-in-law, George Pottinger; and Edward Przeniczny, Elgin, ushered.

Also in the party were the bride's 4-year-old cousin, Heather Meyer of Lisle, as flower girl and the best man's 3-year-old son, Michael Cassidy, as ring bearer. Little Heather was gowned in peach organza and carried a white basket of peach carnations and Abbey roses with baby's breath.

The 150 guests dined and danced at a reception at the Lido, Chicago.

Following a honeymoon in Mexico City and Acapulco, the couple is living in St. Charles. Duane, a Northwestern University graduate in electrical engineering, works at DuKane Corp. there.

It's fashion

Have pants had it with the girls heading back to school? Some fashion seers say the student in a skirt no longer will be in the minority in the classroom — as was the case in many schools last academic year.

For party time there's no argument about the skirt length for the little girls. Long dresses of gingham or calico score everywhere.

Blue jeans are so neolened that it's hard to tell them from dress pants. The blue jean shape, at least, comes in plaids, stripes and solids other than blue.

Little flirts this fall will flaunt their shiny patent T-strap on Sunday-go-to-meeting occasions. Or else they'll keep up with big sister in their nearly grown-up pumps, bowed at the throat with a golden band sparkling the toe and heel.

Kids have tried to make the clog their exclusive domain ever since they borrowed it from their elders. It's becoming one of their favorite footings.

No rough days will plague the playground set if they're shod in staunch suede tractor treads riveted in silver up and down each side. Or the hiking boot, padded to cushion the stress and strain of scaling cinder-block summits.

Always A-O-K aloof on the academic trail: sneakers.

The Emerald Isle

Television cameras ready to capture the unique flavor of Ireland during one-week a.m. special

by CLARE WRIGHT

How about a tour of Ireland over your morning cup of coffee?

The Emerald Isle will be starring on TV — on Channel 5's "Today Show" Oct. 1-3 (7 a.m. to 9 a.m.).

If you're planning a trip there sometime soon, you'll have a chance during this "Irish Week" to see some of the country's highlights.

And, if you've already been to that enchanting land (which REALLY is green, green, green) the NBC television coverage will bring back some beautiful memories.

NBC CAMERA crews will be moving in and out of Irish homesteads and talking to the fishermen, the local "characters" in the singing pubs, the playwrights and the sportsmen.

The cameras also will capture the unique social flavor of an Irish race meeting. This is not Saratoga or the Epsom Downs, but a rural Irish meet where the punters are just as interested in the card trick men as they are in the horses.

In Ireland's capital, Dublin, NBC interviewers will talk with modern Irish writers, dramatists, poets and actors about the great tradition of Irish theatre and literature that stretches from the Book of Kells (in Dublin's Trinity Library) down to our own day.

Travel to Ireland is a tremendous bargain starting in November.

ONE INTERESTING package being touted by Aer Lingus-Irish is "The Emerald Way," a two-week fly/drive package which costs $419 from Chicago to Shannon and includes the following:

- Round trip air fare.
- Car with unlimited mileage for 14 days.
- First class accommodations with bath and breakfast (one night in Limerick, one night in Killarney, and one night in Dublin — at the Burlington Hotel).
- Ten nights lodging in a guest house in Donegal.
- Discount shopping.
- A half-day escorted sightseeing trip in Dublin.

Aer-Lingus also has a one-week fly/drive vacation, "Irish Spin" for $397. You can choose your own area of Ireland for this one and the package price includes round trip air fare, seven nights lodging (including Irish breakfast), a car for eight days, or unlimited rail and bus travel.

See your Northwest suburban travel agent for more details — and find out where Ireland is at TODAY on the "Today Show," Oct. 1 through 5, on Channel 5.

TRANQUIL IRISH SCENE — Thatched cottages in Curragloe, County Wexford, Ireland, typify the quaint and peaceful atmosphere found throughout the countryside. Scenes like this can be visited by travelers taking advantage of the low off-season prices on fly/drive vacations to the Emerald Isle.

Air fares are 'horrendously complicated'

Make full use of airline tickets

by MURRAY J. BROWN

NEW YORK — There are ways of stretching your travel dollars even in these days of devaluation and inflation.

For instance, many Americans fail to take full advantage of their air tickets mainly because they are not aware of stopovers and other extras that may be included. Depending on the type of fare and the time of year, travelers can save hundreds of dollars on flights.

So said Bern Marowitz, U.S. public relations manager for the Portuguese airline TAP, during an interview in New York.

"AIR FARES are horrendously complicated, but one important general rule to remember is that when you buy a ticket between two international points, what you are often really buying is a certain number of air miles," he said.

"The permitted mileage between where you leave from and your farthest point usually allows stopovers just as if you had flown directly.

"Tucked away in the crazy quilt of air fare regulations, there are quite a number of bargains and extras."

TAP CAN OFFER American passengers savings up to nearly $400 on trans-Atlantic services during the fall and winter months, Marowitz said. He gave the following examples:

All fares quoted are weekday fares from New York and do not include the $3 U.S. travel tax.

The regular economy round trip fare to Lisbon is $828 during the peak summer season but drops to $514 during September and October and to $456 in November. And you can still fly at no extra charge to the Azores and Madeira.

The Group Inclusive Tour (GIT), usually sold for two-week periods, offers additional savings at $256 from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31.

Anyone can qualify for GITs if he buys a specified amount of prepaid land arrangements together with a specified number of other passengers.

There is a one-week GIT for $234, plus land cost which can run as low as $70, available after Nov. 1.

FOR THE REAL bargain hunters with the time, there's the 22-45 day excursion fare — $256 during September and October and $233 from Nov. 1. That's $393 below the summer economy fare. However, no stopovers are permitted.

Then there is the 14-21 day excursion fare of $370 to Lisbon from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31 which includes two free stopovers in each direction. But for $13 more you can fly to and from Madeira.

For another $21.50 or $390.50 you can include London and the Portuguese resort province of the Algarve (New York-Lisbon-Faro-London-New York).

For an additional $35 or $405 you can fly New York-Lisbon-Madrid-Paris-London-New York.

SIMILAR SAVINGS and stopovers are offered by other member airlines of the International Air Transport Assn. (IATA), which sets fares and other regulations, Marowitz said.

"You may have to use more than one airline which is why it is often best to use a reliable established travel agent who represents the major carriers and can help make sure you fare well," he said.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Add $100 to all fares quoted for fare from Chicago O'Hare. (United Press International)

Fall festivals are plentiful in Ontario

Between now and mid-November some 300 fall fairs will be held throughout the Canadian province of Ontario and from Nov. 9-17 the granddaddy of them all — the 45th annual Royal Agricultural Winter Fair — takes over 27 acres of Toronto's Exhibition Park. Besides world-wide competitions for farm produce and livestock prizes, it features the Royal Horse Show with top equestrian teams from many countries.

If you enjoy the satisfactions of the table, plan to regale yourself in the twin cities of Kitchener-Waterloo, about 80 miles northwest of Niagara Falls and 70 miles west of Toronto, where the annual Oktoberfest is a sudsy and song-filled celebration of harvest time.

From Oct. 5-13 at this Canadian version of a traditional Munich beer festival, you can sample the aromatic joys of real German delicatessen, displaying the most appetizing products of this community's fertile fields and imaginative kitchens.

For further information on these and other events write: Press Officer, Ministry of Industry and Tourism, 900 Bay St., Hearst Block, Toronto M7A 1T2, Ont., Canada.

Guide lines

Ques. — I'm going to accompany my husband on a business trip to Brazil this fall and I have a few questions. Is it safe to drink the water there? What's the climate like in Rio in October? Is there a language problem?

Mrs. J. R., Palatine
ANS. — I strongly suggest you drink only bottled water. However, even the best hotels do not automatically put a bottle in the room. Rely on room service. Brazil's early autumn months are quite warm and Rio's climate is semi-tropical, with temperatures ranging from the 70s in the fall months to the low 90s in December. English is not widely spoken — except in hotels and shops. A Portuguese phrase book would come in handy.

Ques. — Is leather still a good buy in Italy? If so, where can I get some leather gloves in Rome?

Mrs. B. R., Mount Prospect
ANS. — Even though prices have edged up some, gloves, shoes and leather ware are still great buys in Rome. Good quality will be found at Gucci's, 8 Via Condotti, and the nearby Gucci Boutique, 25 Via Borgognona, and in other leather-goods stores in and around the Piazza di Spagna.

Ques. — Are pets allowed inside Six Flags. Also, how long does it take to see Six Flags?

Mrs. P.R., Rolling Meadows

ANS. — Sorry, but your ever-lovin' Bowser can't roam the grounds with you. But Ralston Purina's air-conditioned kennel is available near the parking lot. The 25 cents-a-day charge includes a meal for your pet. Most families plan a full day (6-8 hours) to really enjoy the whole of Six Flags. We found it was better to make it a two-day holiday. That way you can take it easy and set a leisurely pace. They have special lighting effects which make it a beautiful place at night.

TRAVEL LORE

by Clare Wright,
TRAVEL EDITOR

The world is wide open for the single woman traveler.

Afraid to travel solo? Why? So was I — until I discovered the simple fact that when you're far away from home, most other travelers are uneasy too. With a little practice it's easy to break the ice and make interesting friends.

If you want a little practice going it alone, try a cruise first.

Unless you barricade yourself in your stateroom 24 hours a day — or run like mad whenever someone smiles in your direction — you'll never be lonely on a cruise ship. No way.

Most ships have a hostess to arrange introductions. Get chummy with her right off the bat. Then if you spot somebody interesting, tell you'd like to meet them.

IF YOU HAVE a special interest — like archeology — Greek dances — deep sea fishing — mountain climbing — or British antiques — be sure to let yourself to the places where you can pursue your favorite hobby. Chances are there will be persons there who are compatible.

If possible, line up any contacts you can in the foreign countries you'll be visiting. Ask your friends. Check organizations you belong to.

When you arrive in a foreign city, sign up for a half-day or full-day tour. Sometimes you can meet someone on the bus who will make an interesting companion for additional sightseeing.

If your hotel has a swimming pool be sure to plan on spending some time there.

Skip the room service. The only person you'll meet is the waiter. Instead of breakfasting in your room, put on your best face and get to the dining room where you can strike up a friendship with other Americans.

IF YOU DO run into nice people whose company you enjoy, why not invite them to be your guests for tea or cocktails.

When you are invited to join a couple, a group, or another single, always pay your own way.

A friend of mine who travels alone all the time has a great tip for solo woman vacationers. Take lessons. Snorkeling, golf, horseback-riding, water-skiing, tennis... there are all kinds.

One word of caution. Be careful about accepting invitations from local males abroad. In some countries — particularly in the Middle East — woman's place is strictly in the home. They take a dim view of a female who is traveling alone and figure she must be fair game.

IF YOU DO accept an invitation from a local man in a foreign country, make sure the place is suitable. Check it out with the hotel concierge.

The best advice for the single woman traveler where men are concerned is — play it cool.

If you don't want to become involved, just don't come on too strong.

However, if you like companionship — on your terms — don't be afraid to take the initiative in being friendly.

Today — the world is wide open for the single woman traveler. Have fun.

100,000 baskets from two hands

BASKET HAPPY! The Ozarks' Leslie Jones has handwoven 100,000 baskets during the past 41 years. His toothless "howdy" will again greet thousands of visitors to the National Festival of Craftsmen, Sept. 29 through Oct. 14 (except Mondays and Tuesdays) at Silver Dollar City, near Springfield, Mo. The tiny community, surrounded by dense timberland where hillfolk liked Leslie Jones still practice skills handed down for many generations, is a showcase for five dozen of America's most historically prized handicrafts.

Did you know?

The folks who keep track of food for Air France report that the airline's passengers clawed through 42 tons of lobster and spooned up 1.2 tons of caviar in 1972. They washed down the gourmet fare with 118,390 bottles of champagne and 107,115 bottles of wine.

One of the world's tallest man-made fountains jets skyward at Four-ain Hills, a short drive east of the all-year resort of Phoenix, Ariz., in the Valley of the Sun. The water column shoots up almost 600 feet above the surrounding desert.

Beaches similar to those of the South Seas can be found at various locations in the Greater Miami area. A popular attraction is Crandon Park with its miles of white sandy beaches and awaying palms.

The Old West is still alive in the score or more dude ranches around Tucson, Ariz. Most of them accommodate 30 to 50 guests, and October through April is the best time to enjoy such activities as horseback riding, rodeo watching, cook-outs on the trail, swimming, sunning and even skiing on closeby mountain slopes.

SOUTH AMERICAN HOLIDAY

A gala South American travel night is being staged at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 19, by First Arlington International Travel, 1 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Two brilliant, full-color films on South America will be shown by Avianca, the national airline of Colombia, according to Hugh M. Gillespie, travel manager.

A display of authentic South American costumes also will be shown and refreshments will be served.

Gillespie reports that seating is limited so reservations should be made by calling First Arlington International Travel, at 392-3100.

PUMPKIN PICKIN' TIME AT GREEN MEADOWS

Green Meadows, a recreational farm featuring hayrides, a pony ring, and barn tours, will remain open every day this fall, catering to school tours and families.

After Sept. 20 all visitors may pick up a free souvenir pumpkin. The farm also offers an overnight education outing, a "classroom on the farm," for school groups of 20 or more. The package price is $9.50 per student, including lodging, three meals and all activities.

Students may also bring a picnic lunch and reduce the price to $7.50. For a new brochure and rate sheet on Green Meadows Farm, write to the Keyes, Box 182, Watford, Wis., 53185.

OZARKS "FLASHBACK"

The National Festival of Craftsmen, a "flashback" to pioneer days and one of the nation's celebrated crafts events, opens Saturday, Sept. 29 and continues daily, except Mondays and Tuesdays, through Sunday, Oct. 14, at Silver Dollar City, near Springfield, Mo.

The festival presents working demonstrations of five dozen historic hand-crafts including hand-thrown pottery, handblown glass, handmade quilts, handwoven baskets and handmade candy.

Many of the over 100 participants are hillfolk still earning their living in the manner of their families' frontier generation.

Free information on the eleventh annual crafts festival, together with a Vacalloner's Map of the Ozarks, is available by sending an eight-cent stamp to the Ozarks Chamber of Commerce, Box 66, Silver Dollar City, Mo. 65618.

Hersey also strong in cross country

Fremd, Jackson should be tops in MSL

FREM D is tabbed as the definite favorite and possibly one of the top four teams in the state.

Hersey figures to give the Vikings the biggest challenge and has enough good runners for a bridge game, but needs a fifth.

Conant has the most experience of anybody and is shaping up as a darkhorse team, capable of pulling an upset or two along the way.

Traditionally strong Palatine figures to be that again.

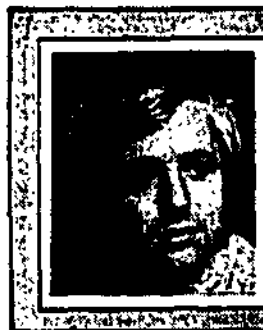

And individually, it is very unlikely that anyone will touch Arnie Jackson of Schaumburg.

That's the general picture heading into another cross country season in the Mid-Suburban League — perhaps the second-strongest harrier conference in the state. (Last year only the West Suburban Conference had more teams rated higher, and more runners with better times, in "hois). No less than eight teams have at least five boys returning from last year's top seven.

To elaborate on each of the above:

Fremd two years ago had a freshmen group which in a sanctioned comparison of times was officially named top frosh team in the nation. It rolled over all sophomore opponents last year with ridiculous ease. The boys in that unit are now juniors, fully ready for varsity competition, and coach Ron Menely also has outstanding seniors.

Many coaches, therefore, are saying Fremd has a shot at the state title (Maine East, York and Riverdale-Hoffield are other top teams again) and that the Vikings have to be favored to win the MSL.

That's not taking anything away from Hersey, however. The Huskies won the conference meet last year (though Fremd took the overall crown) and went on to finish second in the state while the Vikings missed the trip to Peoria for the first time in the six-year history of the school's varsity competition.

Conant and Palatine also have a wealth of returning lettermen and either would be favored to win most conferences in the state. But in the MSL, they'll be hard-pressed just to be third.

There can be little doubt that barring injury Arnie Jackson will be the best around, because he was already that as a junior. Jackson was unbeaten against 11 league foes, won the conference meet easily, also won three big invitationals (several of his victories were by a huge margin of about a full minute) and didn't lose until the state series. He placed 11th in the state final.

"Arnie hasn't run as much this summer as last," said his coach, Denny Garber, "and I think it will help him. He might have overdone it last year. My problem was keeping him from doing too much. He may have been tired by the end of the season."

"He came back stronger this year. In the middle of the summer he ran a 9:28.5 two-mile and 4:24.7 mile in a meet. He's averaged 15 miles a day all summer."

As Menely said, "Jackson is far and away the class of the conference. No one's close. He's just a hard-working, great kid. But it's wide-open for second-best in the league. There are no other big stars at this time."

Fremd has an amazing total of nine runners who are very close in ability, all capable of consistently being near the front. And that doesn't even count two more who are now injured and may help later.

Seniors are Chuck Ruppenthal, Mike Rohrer (co-captains), John Miller and Geoff Bolton. Juniors include Wilson Fieldhouse, Dave Scott, Paul Kinyon, Jim Galls and Eric Inbody. The injured are Kevin Richardson and Ken Gehlb.

Menely described the feeling in his camp as "quiet optimism. We have hopes in the backs of our minds. On paper we should be the best but I know you don't run on paper."

"But we've got better depth in good times that I've ever had (and he's coached first and second-place state teams). We've got 12 guys going for seven spots and the 12th is right behind the fourth every day. And there's no regular order — they completely rotate. They're really pushing each other. This is great for a coach."

Hersey has four of its seven back from that unit that got hot at the end last season, and would have had five — just enough — if Tom Burridge hadn't moved to Indiana last spring.

Jay McCarthy, just a junior, is the ace, followed by Chris Cooney, Ron Stephani and Dave Jones. Vying for the fifth spot is such talent as Hal Stenbridge, Ted Daley and Tom Mogge.

Coach Larry Travis says, encouragingly, that this team is farther along at this stage than last year's was.

Conant coach Jack Ary has an amazing total of nine lettermen back, all in excellent condition — Bob Every, Steve Watron, John Bond, Rick Jensen, Dave Elderkin, Dave Mansolf, Ron Gohlsch, Kent McDill and Ron Behber.

"It should be our best team ever," says Ary. "They've run a lot in the summer and are close together."

Palatine has two top boys returning in Paul Kearns and Dave Tehle, who are senior co-captains. Other lettermen for coach Joe Johnson's perennially-strong group are John Thullen, Rick Scholl and Carl Kiewert.

The Pirates would have been much stronger had it not been for the loss of three top boys — Bill O'Neill and Tom Glenn, who moved out of the area, and Chuck Bell, who is out for football.

Other returning lettermen include Arlington's Mike Haseman, Mike Dolinajec, Greg Hansen and John Lorchensfeld; Schaumburg's Mike Istok and Ron Healer; Forest View's Tony Hess; Prospect's Rich Reithal, Mike Skelton and Brian Pomrenko; Wheeling's Bruce Messenger, John Messenger and Jim Leeper; Rolling Meadows' Craig Dahlquist and Jim Huddleston; and Elk Grove's Dave Jackson and Dave Dill.

Returning cross country star Arnie Jackson.

Area harriers open with two duel triumphs

Two wins in three dual meets and various finishes for three teams in two invitationals were the mixed results for Mid-Suburban League cross country teams in non-conference action kicking off a new season over the weekend.

Wheeling fared best with a near-perfect 15-47 victory over Deerfield, one of the state's best last year. Buffalo Grove also won in its first meet ever, 23-33 over Stevenson. Arlington was second in the five-team Crystal Lake Invitational, and in a 10-team feature at Hinsdale South, Prospect placed a strong fourth and Schaumburg sixth. Rolling Meadows was the only dual loser, 23-31 against St. Ignace.

The area's teams expected to be the strongest — Fremd, Hersey, Palatine and Conant — did not open over the weekend. The MSL got into full swing Monday with all 12 teams engaged in four triangulars. (See Wednesday's Herald for results). A general MSL preview of the season appears elsewhere today.

Wheeling got a fine 16:22 three-mile time from August Ziccarelli to pace its rout of Deerfield. Following, in order, were Rich Reese, Jim Leeper, Bruce Messenger, John Messenger, Steve Erickson and Roy Sackett. The Wildcat freshmen lost 24-32.

Jeff Schuster led Buffalo Grove to its program-christening win with 17:57 for three miles. He finished first in the race. Other scoring Blons were fourth through seventh — Tim Foley, Mike Cormack, Steve March and Jeff Rosenweil. The frosh-soph Blons won by forfeit.

At Crystal Lake, on the usual tough, hilly three-mile course, Arlington finished 23 points behind winner DeKalb but ahead of Stillman Valley, Crystal Lake and Deerfield. Best Cardinal was John Lerchenfeld with seventh in 17:12. All within 17 seconds of that were Dale Fenton, Greg Hansen, Mike Haseman and Mike Dolinajec.

Arnie Jackson of Schaumburg, not surprisingly, was the whole story individually at Hinsdale South with 13:52 over 2.85 miles. He won the race by a huge margin of about 50 seconds — which he did last year also in running 14:20 in the same meet. Other Saxons were Mike Palmer, Mike Hommoway, Fess Cloonan, Mark Heerich, Bob Solik and Bruce Mahlig.

Prospect was an impressive fourth in the same 10-team alignment. Jeff Chamberlain led the way with 14:57 good for 12th overall. Other Knights in their order of finish were Mike Skelton, Rich Reithal, Greg Tobiaz, Rich Podgorny, Bob Thompson and Brian Pomrenko.

Rolling Meadows lost a close home meet over 2.75 miles at the Park District Sports Complex. St. Ignace took the first three places and it was mostly Mustangs after those — Steve Lehman (16:35), Bill Bradley (15:37), Craig Dahlquist, Mike Scott and Jim Huddleston. Meadows' sophomores also lost but the frosh won by a perfect 15-50 score.

Power Squadron classes set for Prospect High

The United States Power Squadrons, a unit of the United States Power Squadrons, will offer its 12 weekly lecture series on boating safety and procedures at Glenbrook North High School, 2300 Shermer Rd., Northbrook.

First class starts Monday, Sept. 24, 1973 at 7:30 p.m. Also, classes are being held at Prospect High School, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. First class starts Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 26.

Skokie Valley Power Squadron offers the Free Piloting and Small Boat Handling Course for its 12th consecutive year. Lectures in the series include: handling under normal conditions; handling under adverse conditions; seamanship and common emergencies; rules of the road; aids to navigation; compass and chart familiarization; running lights and equipment; boat trailer; inland boating and mariner's compass and piloting.

At Rolling Meadows

Terry Costello fired the high series of 439 with a 181 game to highlight action in the Wednesday Morning Melodies bowling league. Marilyn Graham hit 433-108. Carol Warner 472-182. Marilyn Elliott 443-176. Betty Schmeier 463-180 and Pat Cafarella 463-187. The high game of the day went to the Twisters with a 745 toward the high series of 2500.

The United States Power Squadrons, of which Skokie Valley is a member unit, is a national, non-profit, civilian educational organization, dedicating itself to 59 years of informing the public on all phases of boating safety. Four hundred seventeen squadrons comprise the national organization making it the largest educational organization so dedicated. Members cover the entire 50 states and national membership is approximately 80,000.

Both men and women are invited to participate in the courses offered and youngsters from 14 years of age. The courses are taught by experienced boatmen and members of the Power Squadrons.

United States Power Squadrons have variously assisted the U.S. Corps of Engineers, in river and chart revisions, assisted by the U.S. Navy, the Coast Guard, National Safety Council, the Red Cross and other governmental and research organizations interested in all aspects of boating.

More than two million men, women and teenagers have completed the "Free Boating Course" offered by the United States Power Squadrons.

'I think we've got something'

East's Eck speaks with optimism

by MIKE KLEIN

The last time Maine East had a winning varsity football team, this year's freshmen Blue Demons were either little tykes or not yet born. It's been that long, 14 years.

That's why head coach Al Eck, an avowed pessimist, is excited about the new grid season which begins at home Friday night against Forest View. East hopes to better last year's 20-20 tie with the Falcons.

"Usually, I don't have too many good things to say when you come around," Eck understated. "But I'm really optimistic. I really think we've got something this time."

"Knowing our situation here, to get a good attitude is like a refreshing breeze. We've got a lot of seniors who played JV ball last year and they were 6-1 even though the varsity won just two. The sophs were 7-1 (conference champs) and the frosh 6-2."

"I told them in the beginning, even in the winter program, what it would take — a meeting of the seniors and juniors. There's no animosity," Eck said. "To put it bluntly, there isn't a horse's bleep in the group."

Attitude . . . attitude . . . attitude. Eck can't talk enough about it. That's why he thinks the Demons will come back. They were 2-5 overall last year, a great improvement after 0-8 in 1971 and just two wins since 1959.

"We've had our share of oddball athletes but not anymore," the fifth year head coach said. "When I first came here, there were a lot of questionable kids in athletics but that's changed. We don't get the great numbers, but we're getting quality now."

"These kids have got big hearts and they're hitters. There's no question. Boom! They hit and attack."

Maine East, Dist. 207's original school, played to a 1-4 mark and fifth place last year in the Central Suburban League North Division. It was the Demons' first year in the CSL after longtime clubbings suffered in the West Suburban.

Eck, an All-American flanker at Northern Illinois, thought East might break out of the doldrums last fall. He brought a veteran club, 24 lettermen and 18 starters, into the Central Suburban.

But the Blue Demons never quite got unraveled. They sputtered on important plays and exhibited a poor kicking game which figured heavily in defeats. It was almost as if the Demons expected to lose.

"I hope last year was just a hang-over," said Eck who prepped at Palatine during the mid-1950s. "We lost some games last year because the pride just wasn't there yet."

Al Eck

"The bad part is we've got to play Forest View (Mid-Suburban favorite) and Evanston (Suburban League crossover) right off. What our kids really need would be a couple teams they could handle easily."

The only spot where East might come up a little short is left tackle which was still unsettled late last week. It's important, then, that Maine's best player will probably be 6-foot-3, 245-pound right tackle Lenny Cymbel.

He'll step in where Bill Castonzo, now a University of Illinois freshman tight end, left off. Last fall, Castonzo was the big blocker for halfback John Wolff who produced almost 1,000 yards total offense.

Wolff is also gone but the Blue Demons appear loaded at running back. Returners include senior Dale Costantino, a 190-pounder who's been on the varsity for three years. He'll be joined by Mike Donatucci, another letterman.

Senior fullback Bob Rinka, a regular last year, is in danger of being ousted by junior Terry Gilfoy.

Another junior, who might be the best of the lot, is running back Mike Lawson who had 10 touchdowns and over 1,000 yards rushing for last year's CSL sophomore champs.

"I had him as an eighth grader and he was great then," said Eck. "But right now, we're so strong at that position that he's not even a starter!"

Senior quarterback Mark Franklin, who edged departed Greg Maloney at mid-season last year, has pressure from 6-foot-4, 180-pound junior Sam Carter.

A southpaw, Carter works best in drop-back formations while Franklin is a better option runner.

Eck says split end Scott Magnuson, 6-foot-1 and 180 pounds, is the Demons' best since Bob Wayland, current starter at Illinois State.

The only real deficit thus far has been the loss to injuries of guards Brian Monti and Ed Demski.

Bisons show encouraging turnout in first season

by KEITH REINHARD

The fresh turf they've laid in behind Buffalo Grove's brand new high school would seem to have something in common with most of the football players roving up for action there beginning this weekend.

That is to say, the grass is green and head coach Grant Blaney sees this as one of the overall characteristics of the first edition Bison squad.

"Time is the key factor for us," pointed out Blaney. "We've had a good turnout and they're all eager but it's going to take a while to bring most of them around."

Blaney noted that he has a nucleus of about 15 rounded youngsters from the more than 80 sophomores and juniors making up his Jayvee club. After that he sees a big dropoff in experience . . . a gap that only practice, competition, and mainly time, will fill.

"We have some definite talent here. There are maybe half a dozen kids who I feel could be regular starters with a varsity team. But we're going to be made up mostly of sophomores and a number of them are just coming out for football their first year."

Blaney was actually surprised that as many juniors turned up. There are only about 120 third-year students at the school this initial year and nearly a sixth of them (19) are out for football.

Heading up this group are six from Wheeling High School who will fill key slots including the entire backfield. Dave Smith is being groomed for the quarterback role with 180-pound twins Brian and Barry Schuster along with John Arendall pegged as the other starting backs.

Another couple of seasoned brothers are center-linebacker Tom Stonerook (200 pounds) and tackle Tim (180), the only sophomore among this group.

The rest of the tentative Bison starting lineup is comprised of junior guards Ken Kaszubowski and Jerry Bickner, junior tackle Bob Thompson and sophomore ends Rick Brinsmade and George Bastable.

Defensively, a number of these same gridders will probably be seeing action along with junior lineman Larry Bailargeon (205) and sophomore ends Andy King and Don Cornell. Bastable and Bailargeon are both younger brothers of former Wheeling all-conference standouts.

The Bisons will play seven straight Saturdays at home against Mid-Suburban League junior varsity foes and then wrap up their campaign at Prospect against the varsity Knights. Blaney and his assistants Dennis Ricchio and Jon Hittman are already casting a distant eye on this formidable windup.

"If we have enough kids healthy by the end of the season, the Prospect game can act as a barometer for our strength next year. That game is still a long way off though, and we've got a lot of work to do in the meantime."

Japanese like him

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tug McGraw, relief pitching star of the New York Mets, is the American baseball pitcher with the highest rating in Japan, in the opinion of a prominent Japanese industrialist.

Tex K. Takeoka, managing director of Matsushita Electrical Industrial Co., said he believed this was because McGraw's role in Bullpen, a documentary movie that had wide circulation among Japanese fans. The movie, sponsored by Panasonic, has prompted many a Japanese youngster to try to develop his skill as a hurler, Takeoka said.

Tam tennis tourney adds Brian Gottfried

Brian Gottfried, the 21-year-old student who upset Arthur Ashe to win the Alan King Tennis Classic in Las Vegas earlier this year, has been signed to play in the $50,000 Tam International Open tennis tournament in suburban Niles Sept. 24-30. Gottfried joins a field of other outstanding tennis stars headed by Ilie Nastase of Rumania and John Newcombe of Australia to compete for the $9,000 first prize money at stake in the Tam event. The youthful Gottfried, a student living in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., crashed into the national tennis scene in 1970 when he won the National Junior championship. The following year he won the National Junior Indoors title and in 1972 was added to America's Davis Cup team. Qualifying round play among 12 play-

Games are on involving two Niles schools

With the settlement of the Niles teacher's strike late Sunday night, originally scheduled football games pitting Niles East at Fremd on Friday night and Prospect at Niles North on Saturday, will be played as originally planned.

Had the strike continued into this week, the games would have been cancelled since school must be in session a minimum of five days prior to the first game. Monday was teacher's institute day at Niles East, Niles North and Niles West and counted as one of the required school days.

Students returned to classes this morning. The football teams at each of the three Niles Township High Schools have been following a regular practice schedule despite the strike.

MR. JEAN KEMPNER, president of the newly-formed Chicago Professional Tennis Umpires Association, presents the Paul Bennett Tennis Umpires Trophy to Mrs. John Ingersoll of Lake Forest as Chicago's most outstanding tennis official in 1972. Mrs. Ingersoll is the executive director of the CPTUA.

Tennis officials organize professional association

A major step toward the professionalization of tennis officiating has been taken in the Chicago area with the formation of the Chicago Professional Tennis Umpires Association.

Mr. Jean Kempner of Winnetka, CPTUA president and one of the area's most respected tennis officials, announced that the $50,000 Tam International Open in Niles from Sept. 24-30 will be the first tennis tournament to have an all-professional officiating staff.

"Chicago is among the first areas, if not the first, to officially professionalize its tennis officials," Kempner stated. "We will now officiate only for pay at prize-money tennis events, and we will negotiate terms with the promoters and work on a contract basis."

Kempner emphasized that the association would continue to serve as non-money amateur tennis events gratis, noting that "we'll be much better officials for these events."

Tennis is the only major prize-money sport which has been almost exclusively officiated by amateurs. "Prior to professionalization," Kempner said, "we have been closing the gap dramatically here in the Chicago area by training and hard work."

But, as the Winnetka tennis official points out, the fact that officials will now be paid does not make them "instant professionals."

He said, "Professional status will require improved officiating of us, which we intend to provide. By so doing, we hope to earn the respect afforded other sports officials. We certainly don't have that as amateurs. Frankly, I think our group in Chicago is already among the best in the country."

Kempner continued, "Regardless of how good we are, no tennis official should expect to get rich from officiating. It takes 12 officials to fully staff one match. We realize that the prize-money game is still in its infancy and we have to be realistic as to what is an affordable cost to promoters and sponsors for officiating. I don't believe any of our members are officiating for the money."

"Amateur motives still prevail," he said, "but through professionalization, tennis officials have the opportunity to insure eventual wide-spread excellence in their work to earn the same status as officials in other professional sports, such as baseball and football."

The new association is contacting the 330 amateur officials in the Chicago area, inviting each to join the CPTUA. The group expects to sign about 150 of the top officials. Incorporation of the CPTUA is expected by Sept. 15.

The first professional officiating contract to be let is between the CPTUA and the Tam International Open, to be held at the Tam Tennis Club, 7688 N. Caldwell Ave., Niles, this month. At that event, 32 of the world's top male tennis stars will be competing for $50,000 in prize money.

The officials' association will be paid 4 per cent of the tourney prize money, a total of $2,000. Kempner estimates this works out to about $3.60 per official per match, or less than $2 per hour.

"We realize, of course," Kempner continued, "that this hardly represents professional pay. But we also realize that the professionalization of officiating at the Tam tournament is certainly a step in the right direction."

When asked how the new officiating group will divide the pay, Kempner — a former member of the board of directors of the Chicago District Tennis Association — answered, "We haven't decided yet. At this time, however, it looks as though each member will have the option to take his pay or to contribute it directly to building junior tennis programs in the Chicago area with donations to the CDTA junior development program."

Executive director of the CPTUA is Mrs. John Ingersoll of Lake Forest. Other officers of the association are: Kempner of Winnetka, president; Nick Master of Park Ridge, vice president; Mrs. Leslie Shankman of Highland Park, treasurer, and Mrs. Grover Guthaus of Northfield, secretary.

Directors are Art Leighton of Deerfield, Ralph Mansfield of Chicago, and Charles Mead of River Forest. The Lake Shore Club's John Fowler, a nationally known tennis official, is advisor to the association's board.

Des Plaines softball

The American Legion captured first place in the Des Plaines Algonquin 16-inch Softball league's post-season tournament this past week by dethroning the defending champion South Side Sluggers 15-10.

Backed by Bill Vall's two home runs, the Legion club rallied after South Side scored six runs during its portion of the first inning.

The Sluggers won both the 1971 and 1972 tournaments and were considered favorites to repeat again this season.

Newcombe goes from near quitter to Open champ

by MILTON RICHMAN

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — John Newcombe feels when he puts his mind to it, he can be the finest tennis player in the world.

He put his mind to it here Sunday. Those who watched the 29-year-old Australian emerge the U.S. Open tennis champion by putting away Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodess, 6-4, 1-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, left convinced nobody in the game today can beat Newcombe once he makes up his mind he's going to win.

He didn't crow when it was all over either, but he made it plain enough that outside maybe his immediate family nobody really expected him to win.

"It always makes it sweeter when people sort of write you off and you come back," he said, smiling a bit. "I've been doing that three years now."

"You feel you were written off?" someone threw the question at him. "I was seeded 10th," said the man who has won at Wimbledon three times. "I'd say 10th seed is written off. And when you're written off, you feel sort of down."

Kodess was no less brilliant in defeat than Newcombe was in victory. The 15,241 on hand for the finale were treated to some classic tennis particularly from the fourth set on when Newcombe suddenly turned the whole thing around.

"What did it?" he said, repeating a question put to him. "Pure experience, I guess. I've been in similar situations with Stan Smith a couple of years before at Wimbledon. I knew what I had to do was buckle down. The thing to do when you're down is not panic. If you do, you're in trouble."

The way Kodess, the reigning Wimbledon titlist, was pouncing on everything hit his way and coming up with one unbelievable shot after another it was difficult for Newcombe not to lose his composure. He never did, although he later admitted he began to wonder if his 27-year-old Czech opponent would ever crack.

"Everything he seemed to touch turned to gold," said Newcombe. "Everything I did, he countered."

Kodess simply couldn't keep up with Newcombe, who was playing so poorly 18 months ago that he thought of quitting entirely.

"There was a spell of seven weeks when I simply went from bad to worse," recalled Newcombe. "I was losing to guys I should've been beating. Finally I got very drunk one night in Quebec City. I made up my mind out there that I'd quit. I was surprised at how bad I was. I practiced 10 days straight."

This year, Newcombe didn't play in any tournaments at all for the first four months. When he finally began to play, he found himself traveling so much that at one point he never touched a racket for seven straight days.

"I lost in the second round at Las Vegas," he said, "and then when I flew over to Paris and didn't do well either I lost all my confidence. I thought I got it back before Wimbledon, but I didn't play at Wimbledon."

That was because of the players' strike, one in which Newcombe was involved.

"The reason this is so pleasing," he said after Sunday's triumph, "is because two months ago I made a personal commitment to myself to become the No. 1 tennis player in the world. I gave myself until next May to do it, and now that I've proved it to myself and to the world, I'm pleased. It's not that I have a fantastic ego. It's just something I wanted to do within a certain period of time. Tennis isn't my whole life, you know. I've got a wife and three kids, and I don't think I should devote 100 per cent of my life to tennis."

Among other things, Newcombe is involved in the making of a movie in Australia. The movie is called "Game, Set and Murder," and in it he is killed in the opening scene and the rest of the picture is done in flashbacks.

"I drop dead on the tennis court," he explained. "Nobody knows I've been murdered."

"How are you murdered?" he was asked.

The new U.S. Open champ was about to tell how, then decided not to.

"I'm not going to tell you the plot," he said. "What do you think I am, a dummy?"

He was laughing when he said it. One other thing. He likes Bobby Riggs over Billie Jean King in Houston next week. John Newcombe said that, too. And he wasn't laughing.

EGVAA teams off to fast start

The Elk Grove Village Athletic Association is starting its football season with seven teams — four PeeWee teams and three Big Traveling teams. Of the four PeeWee teams, one is an instructional team called the Bears for all eight and nine-year olds who have never played football before. The three other PeeWee teams are the Falcons, Colts and Redskins. The three traveling teams are the Saints, Panthers and Knights.

The Hoffman Estates Boys Club challenged the PeeWee teams for a Kickoff Jamboree at Chico Park and Elk Grove dominated play as the Colts won 13-0, the Redskins prevailed 13-2 and the Falcons triumphed 9-0.

The Saints and Knights weighed in and began the season at the Chicago Suburban Football Jamboree in Bloomington at Lake Park High School in honor of Gary Sieger.

Allen's, Bank and Trust meet for 2nd half YMCA golf honors

Allen's Men's Store and Bank & Trust Co. of Arlington Heights will have a play-off for first and second places Wednesday in the YMCA Twilight Golf League.

The winner will meet the first half season champ to determine the overall prizes for 1973. The playoff loser will eventually meet the second place team for the first half to determine the third place winners for the year.

Allen's and Bank & Trust finished with 33 points each. Hillier Associates had 31½ and Hal Lieber Trophies 30½ as the only other teams over 30.

Collecting birdies were Mike Gotham and Dave Johnson on 8 and 9, Max Penmoller on 12, Ed Nixon on 3, Wally Busch on 17, and Karl Pohl on 5.

Nixon had low gross of 35 and Dave Johnson fired a 37. Dick Hoyt came in at 40 in the gross department.

In the low net battle Nixon carded a 32. Johnson and Gotham had 33s.

Textbook fee shift needed

If you have several children in public schools, you are already well aware of the tyranny called book fees — an expensive nuisance that hits most parents at least once a year.

It seems that the favorite method of paying for the cost of school books in the Northwest suburbs is to charge parents for the cost — and we feel it's time another method is developed.

Already, the issue has spawned this year's first school protest, of sorts. A Hanover Park mother of five, Mrs. Rose Ducata, led a one-woman crusade near Anne Fox School in Hanover Park. She termed the payment "stupid and unconstitutional" and she urged other parents not to pay the fee.

Currently, there does exist the mechanism to avoid payment of book fees. A referendum can be held on the matter, and if the public votes to absorb book fees in the tax rates, the process is changed.

The law reads that parents can be required to pay the fee — and Mrs. Ducata's tirade makes sense when you examine the wording of the new, 1970 Illinois Constitution: "Education in public schools through the secondary level shall be free."

The Constitutional principal of education is that public education is a vital community asset — so important that the cost of education is spread across the community at large and is not restricted to merely the parents of school eligible children.

This practice should extend to textbooks. In past years, other fees, such as towel fees, have been challenged successfully in the courts.

Now's the time, while the beginning of school is still close at hand, for a local legislator to consider introducing legislation to clear up this archaic situation. Public education should have a uniform policy across Illinois, and it makes good sense to us that textbooks, like all other educational expenses, should come out of the tax bills, not out of the parents' pockets.

Movement: dead or alive?

by DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The end of summer was not a good time for the radical movement "heavies" — those who, either through theatrics or their past daring, have become darlings of the media and identified in the public mind as the personification of the movement.

First, Elizabeth McCallister Berrigan, wife of former priest-activist Philip Berrigan and one of the defendants in the Harrisburg kidnapping plot trial, was arrested for shoplifting in suburban Maryland.

Then, Abbie Hoffman, a founder of the Yippies and a defendant in the Chicago conspiracy trial that grew out of 1968 convention demonstrations, was arrested for alleged possession of a half million dollars worth of cocaine.

And Ronalo Davis, a founder of Students for a Democratic Society SDS and one-time epitome of the radical movement leader and organizer, reappeared — promising peace through submission to a touring teen-aged Indian guru.

But as the heavies fall aside, the remnants of what once was called the New Left — the no-longer-so-young people who were radicalized by the civil rights and antiwar movements — are struggling to pick up the pieces and keep alive their vision.

Their biggest problem is not government repression or even lack of money, but political factionalism and ideological feuding.

They have a hard time trying to be civil with one another, much less working together.

But recently some tentative steps have been taken toward a more co-ordinated if not unified left.

David McReynolds, an influential former leader of the Socialist Party and now on the staff of the War Resisters League, announced that he was making the "symbolic but not quixotic" gesture of applying for membership in four radical groups — the Socialist Party, USA; the People's Party; the New American Movement and the Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee.

Perhaps more important is the tentative talk of a merger of some groups on the "democratic left" — specifically the New American Movement (NAM) and the People's Party.

NAM was organized in 1971 out of the shattered SDS when the latter organization was taken over by the militant Weather People. The People's Party is a loose coalition of radical independent parties which ran Dr. Benjamin Spock for President in 1972.

At its recent convention in DeKalb, Ill., NAM adopted a resolution affirming a "tentative but interested" approach to the "merger question."

The People's Party, at its national conference in Denver, also endorsed closer contacts between the two groups. Local chapters of the two groups now will begin to talk politically on the local level.

If they do achieve a "working" political framework, native American radicalism could be re-energized in a way the left has not seen since the early days of Students for a Democratic Society. (UPI)

Copycat Hector annoys her

Dorothy Meyer

The other day I read that if all the letters and documents turned out by the world's copying machines were laid end to end they would reach to the moon and back 350 times.

If all the copying machines in the world are like the one in my office they should reach the moon 350 times and come back 349.

I can't use the brand name or the boss will be sued for slander and I can't use any of the names we call it around here or I'll get lots of calls from sweet old ladies who don't like to see swear words in a family newspaper. So I'll call it "Hector" because I don't know anybody named Hector who will get mad at me for suggesting that he's a bum like that machine.

Men in the office swear that Hector is a female because he demands so much attention and seems to be in love with the repair man, but Hector is a chauvinist pig and whoever heard of a female chauvinist pig, so that settles that.

Actually I don't use Hector much. I just happen to live with him because when he was delivered I had the only available floor space and the next time I have floor space to spare I'm going to quick plant geraniums in it.

I have mentioned many times that machines and I do not get on well together and the rumor has been bandied about that Hector acts the way he does because of living with me. It's true that we hate each other, but I only hate him and Hector hates everybody. Especially secretaries whose bosses want eight copies of a 23-page document and they want it five minutes ago.

That's when Hector gets a paper jam.

A paper jam, for those of you who do not use copy machines, is like a gasoline freeze in a car or a thread snarl in a sewing machine or a fork caught crosswise in a dish washer. Nothing works until it's unjammed, unfrozen, unsnarled and set straight, and Hector likes to jam up best when what the secretary is copying is highly confidential.

That means the hurried, harried secretary has to stand by while every last jammed-up copy is retrieved from his complicated innards so that she can tear it up and eat the pieces. Only she's always one copy short and she knows that Hector hides it in some secret place so he can read it when nobody's looking and some day he's going to spill everything he knows.

This gets secretaries all uptight and I told you Hector was a male chauvinist pig.

Hector is also grossly noisy. When he's not in actual operation he hums all day and you know what it's like working with somebody who's always humming. When he's activated he rumbles and spits and sputters and sounds like somebody clearing his sinuses in front of an amplifier.

There's talk in the high places around here that Hector might be replaced. When he goes I bet a ream of jammed-up copy paper that he won't go to the moon or any place remotely associated with heaven.

Local principal lauded

At the last PTA meeting of the year at Cooper Jr. High School, I was delighted to have the chance to meet Clarence Miller and hear him speak about Buffalo Grove High School we are all so very pleased about.

Dr. Miller passed out the building plans along with the guidelines that he felt were necessary to run a school of such size and design. He impressed me as being kind but very firm and in this age of permissiveness it is a welcome change to a mother of five children. It surely is a waste of time for any parents to give their all and to dedicate each day to teaching and enforcing right and wrong, even though it isn't all easy and it isn't all fun, if she sends her children to a school that doesn't care enough to set down rules and enforce them. Six hours a day is a long time and you're hitting your head against a brick wall if you don't both share, parent and school, the same guidelines for their future. In fact, it must be confusing to the student if the parent is strict and the teacher or school is very liberal. I have had personal experience along these lines already in a junior high school. My son, I'm sure, will be quite surprised, Dr. Miller, when he enters high school and finds out you mean business after two years of being allowed to slip by.

I have meant business in my home since I have had children reach about the age of three. I have found that they do respect me as a mother when I check them and expect them to carry out their responsibilities in the home. However, this has been a daily pattern I don't feel you can shut off for two years, say in junior high and then expect them to perk up in high school.

High school is important because it sets the character and future habits of a young adult.

I was reading the article today in the paper (The Herald) and it was quite interesting to note that on the first day of school you have already been asked to change two of the best rules you laid out at the PTA meeting:

1. Open campus.
2. Smoking ground.

You had also advised us parents that if we didn't give the student the key to the car there would be no worry in this area. There are buses provided for transportation.

My sincere prayer as a mother who is very concerned is this:

"I hope, Dr. Miller, that you are able to hold out against the parent who feels his child has to have everything to be happy. This is not an easy job that you have. There are parents today who would take a student out of your school unless you change some of these rules to suit them. I for one will expect you to ask me to take my son out of Buffalo Grove High School if he won't abide by your rules, made for his own good and for his future adult life."

"Good luck to you, Dr. Miller, and bless a man who can stand on his words. These students may not like you, by George, but they will respect you and once you have won a young person's respect they are with you all the way."

Good luck to all the new students at Buffalo Grove High School. It must be quite a thrill to be members of the first class of '73. Go along with this man and you'll have a great school.

Reviews Wheeling election

As a reader of the Wheeling Herald, I was ever surprised at the coverage of your September 6 issue on the front page regarding the election. Also statements made by Mrs. Schultz regarding the poll watchers and workers for the TOP party.

It so happens I was one of those workers and I can truthfully say I never received any kind of a payment from the TOP party for such services. The only gratification was that TOP won the election.

It seems to me, however, that the WHIP party can't take defeat. As far as distributing substantial amounts of literature, isn't that what an election is all about? May I add also that WHIP didn't do such a bad job in handling out theirs. As far as the victory party, WHIP didn't have the opportunity to have one.

However, I do share Mrs. Schultz' views in saying it's all immaterial now. We all know who won the election. I am certain elections will continue to go on and, as the old saying goes, may the best man win.

'Change pot law'

Since John Evans, the regional administrator for the Drug Enforcement Administration, has spent 17 years of his life trying to enforce marijuana prohibition, it is understandable that he considers marijuana law reform to be an admission of defeat. It is not. It is admission of a mistake. Trying to hide this mistake by claiming that marijuana is an extremely dangerous drug will only further weaken respect for law and for the government's drug education efforts.

It is not difficult to understand how any reasonable adult can equate rape and child molesting with the private act of smoking marijuana. We don't change our good laws, Evans seems to be saying, therefore we can't change our bad ones.

At least Evans does acknowledge that marijuana does not lead to the use of other drugs. But at the same time he points out that "if you use marijuana when you are definitely into the drug scene and other drugs will be made available to you." This reason for this phenomenon, of course, is that marijuana is illegal — a condition we're working to change, not because we like marijuana, but because we know that marijuana prohibition is hindering, not helping, efforts to curb serious drug abuse.

Two views of Seymour

Buffalo Grove's village board resolution assessing the Pearson's for expenses incurred while searching for the reptile has to be a new low in government thinking.

If they are correct in this resolution, every car accident in their village due to neglect of the driver must be treated the same. The negligent person or persons should pay the expense of the policeman, judge, jury and lawyer's time.

If a negligent homeowner is burglarized, he too should be fined and punished for not having a 24-hour-guard on duty.

If I walk the streets of their village, in a negligent manner, and get rolled, I too demand I be levied a fine for police expense in picking up my remains.

And if a child is lost through his or her neglect the policeman they encounter should surely bill the parents and not take his pay from the taxpayers' pockets.

And Chief Walsh should be fined expenses for not contacting the village attorney before the snake escaped. Or is neglect regulated by a 6 to 0 vote of the board.

I hope the board is legally right, or they too could get fined expenses from their own pockets and not from the taxpayers' pockets.

Buffalo Grove made headlines across the country this last week, and that's no garbage! The resolution stinks.

Seymour, the cobra, though a menace to our community, has unwittingly brought fame of a sort to our village of Buffalo Grove with national exposure on TV, radio and print.

I've received mail from friends and relatives from New York, Virginia and California inquiring about Seymour.

Unofficial rumors have been crawling out that Seymour is a gay deceiver; in reality he is only a nondescript rat snake, tired of the rat race assumed the role of an Egyptian Cobra so as to live the good life in Buffalo Grove, but alas, his nom de plume was short lived.

The snake's secret was discovered by a keen-eyed zoo curator who found that the rat snake's discarded snake coat wasn't the proper attire of a respected cobra.

Business Today

by JOHN D. LOWMY

LOS ANGELES — If your tax return this year includes business entertainment or business travel, watch out. These two categories make it a lot more likely to be audited.

That's the word from the nation's second largest tax preparation service, Tax Corporation of America, which assists its clients if they are audited.

"From doing tax returns covering over a million Americans, we end up working with the Internal Revenue Service in more than 3,000 audits each year — and thus we learn what they're emphasizing," said Robert J. Dulsky, president.

Time was, Dulsky said, when you frequently could negotiate with the IRS about deductions for business entertainment, business travel, and similar items, even if you did not have receipts.

"But now if you don't have a receipt, you'll lose a deduction," he said.

THE LESSON for taxpayers, he added, is clearly to keep receipts or at least a diary.

"We often can convince IRS auditors even if our taxpayer has kept a 15-cent notebook of his expenditures, showing when they were made, to whom, and for what business purpose. But we bet the taxpayer who tries to create such a notebook just before a tax audit. It is illegitimate, and it is simply impossible to make it look legitimate.

"Just try to rough out a notebook that looks like your check stubs at year end!"

Tax Corporation expects the IRS to put particular audit emphasis next year — covering tax returns for 1972 — on claims of contributions to religious and civic organizations. Again, receipts or check stubs will be asked for.

ALSO SCHEDULED for heavy auditing are deductions for travel and employee business expenses, which means those expenses claimed by taxpayers as necessary to their jobs, such as an office at home, or a uniform, according to Dulsky.

He said taxpayers should be doubly careful in these claims, and also in the growing number of second homes which are rented out and then claimed as businesses.

"If you rent your vacation property to others you'd better show a profit in two years out of five, or it's disallowed as a rental business," he said.

Styles in auditing do change, he said. In 1970, both human auditors and IRS computers were programmed particularly to watch casualty losses, such as earthquakes, as well as travel expenses.

Returns for 1971 may have been scrutinized most carefully if they contained a Schedule C — business or self-employment income and expenses.

The Doctor Says...by Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Everyone has uric acid—it just depends on how much

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband's doctor tells him that he has uric acid in the blood. He takes one tablet a day and has uric acid blood tests yearly. He's been doing this for three years now. His doctor tells him he will have to take this medicine for the rest of his life. Would you say his doctor is correct in saying that he has uric acid in the blood? My husband does not have gout.

Dear Reader — Everyone has uric acid in the blood. The point is how much. This is the same thing as saying everyone has blood glucose (sugar). We all do, but the diabetic has too much and the person with low blood sugar doesn't have enough. Your doctor probably meant that he has too much uric acid, more than we usually see in individuals who do not develop gouty arthritis or attacks of gout later in life.

Most of the uric acid in the blood is a result of protein metabolism within the innumerable cells throughout the body. If you have protein metabolism, and we all do, you will form uric acid.

Normally the amount of uric acid produced by the cells, compared to that eliminated through the kidneys, is small enough that you do not have a very high level in the blood. One method of treatment for a high uric acid level is to increase its elimination by the kidneys. In the process of eliminating large amounts of uric acid one may develop kidney stones or damage the kidneys. Another approach is to give a medicine to prevent the cells from forming too much uric acid during protein metabolism.

MOST ANIMALS are able to metabolize or break down uric acid in the cells and never accumulate the amount that we do. This is just a difference in body chemistry. Man is relatively unique in producing uric acid. Medicine that prevents cells from producing an excessive amount of uric acid keeps the blood level low and avoids excess elimination through the kidneys.

During an acute gout episode, special medicines are used to stop the attack. Thereafter, if the uric acid level is high, one of the methods of treatment that I've just mentioned may be used. The gout attack is caused by an inflammatory reaction to uric acid crystals forming in a joint. The slow painless accumulation of uric acid salts cause deformed arthritic joints.

Both acute inflammatory attacks and slow arthritic deformity are more apt to occur when the blood uric acid level is too high, causing the crystals or salts to form. I'm certain that the doctor is trying to prevent your husband from developing gouty arthritis or attacks of gout by prescribing medicine to be taken regularly. This is a sound approach in patients who need such medicine.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Do vitamins contain calories, and, if so, how many?

Dear Reader — Vitamins do not contain calories. They do not react with oxygen in the body to form energy. They are not used to build body structures. Vitamins act with enzymes to stimulate vital metabolic functions within the cells, but are not used for energy in the process.

They are a mixed bag of unrelated chemical compounds. Vitamin A, D (ergosterol), and E (tocopherol) belong to the organic alcohol group, as does cholesterol. The ending "ol" indicates this. The large-molecule alcohols, unlike small-molecule ethanol (drinking alcohol), do not provide calories for the body.

Sign language classes set

A 16-week non-credit course in sign language for the deaf will be offered by Harper College on Saturday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in room D117. The first class is this Saturday.

The student in sign language will begin using signs the first week of instruction and be exposed to the manual alphabet and numbers. Small segments of the alphabet will be covered each week until the entire alphabet is learned, with a new vocabulary of 50 words a week.

The goal of the course is a basic vocabulary of 600 word-signs used in a combination of finger spelling to obtain slow speech with clarity.

The course will also include instruction on the role of total communication in the education of the deaf and on the psychological effects of effective communication on the hearing-impaired person.

The course is $28 in-district and $69.66 to those out of district. Registration can be made by mail or in person at the college Admissions Office. Phone 397-3000, ext. 233 for information. Registrations will be taken up until Saturday, Sept. 15.

C&NW 60-for-1 split is approved

Shareholders of the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. have approved a split of the company's common shares of stock on the basis of 60 for 1.

If the split is approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, one share of stock will become sixty shares of stock. The split would increase the number of shares outstanding from 72,825 to 4,369,500.

A major reason for the split is to make stock available for employees to buy, according to Tom Judge of Chicago and North Western. "We want to encourage more employee participation and ownership," he said. He added that although a shareholder will have more shares if the split is approved, the market value of the stock will be about the same as before the split.

THE CHICAGO and North Western Transportation Co. was formed in June 1972 when the employees purchased the Chicago and North Western Ry. from its parent company. Shares at that time were $50 each and there was a minimum purchase of 10 shares.

Judge said there have been reports of buyers outside the company purchasing stock from employees at more than $600 a share. "The shareholders elected to split the stock instead of having one share worth so much," he said. He said the cost of a share had become prohibitive for many employees to buy more stock. If the split goes through, each share of stock will be worth $11.

"They're still getting a good return on a year's investment," Judge said. If the split is approved, the stock employees originally paid $50 for will be worth $660.

With the split, Judge said, employees who borrowed money to buy the original stock will be able to sell some of it and recoup part of their investment. "With the split they won't have to sell all the stock, just part of it," he said.

THE COMPANY IS also setting up an internal stock market Judge said. If the number of employees who want to buy stock is more than the number of those who want to sell, the company will provide the additional stock.

Judge said the company hopes the Interstate Commerce Commission will approve the split soon, but "we can't predict." He said that while splitting stocks is not unique, the 60 for 1 is an "unusually large" split, and added, "We wouldn't have been able to do this if we hadn't had a very, very good year."

Federal funds increased for law enforcement aid

Federal funds for grant and loan assistance to Harper College criminal justice students who work in law enforcement agencies have been increased this year.

Law Enforcement Educational Program (LEEP) funds totaling $45,000 were allocated to Harper College students in 1972-73. The figure has been increased to $70,000 for the current 1973-74 year.

Grants are awarded to students who are full-time employees of law enforcement agencies. The grants cover tuition, books and fees. Loans are granted to full time students.

Revisions of previous LEEP program requirements include two important changes:

In 1973-74, LEEP specifications will permit students to change jobs from one law enforcement agency to another while under the program. Formerly, the student was required to remain employed at the same agency throughout participation in the program.

GRANTS AND loans are to be used exclusively for tuition, books and mandatory fees in 1973-74. Room and board, transportation and supplies had been included in 1972-73, but these expenses are no longer financed through LEEP funds.

Grants need not be paid back. The loans have a cancellation clause of 25 percent per year, while the recipient is working in law enforcement. Therefore, a loan could be cancelled after four years of employment.

Assistance with LEEP and other loan or grant applications is given at the Harper College Office of Placement and Student Aids, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, 60067.

Ecology workshops set at Camp Sagawau

Cook County Forest Preserve District's fall ecological workshop series begins Sept. 26 at Camp Sagawau.

A five-day camp series will investigate geology and soils, climate and plant relationships in Illinois. The series, costing $45, will be from Oct. 15 to 19 and Oct. 22 to 26.

A three-day seminar will include introduction to geology and geography, plant recognition and pond studies. The series will be Oct. 26 to 28, Oct. 3 to 5 and Oct. 10 to 12 and will cost $25.

Workshops will be on the 40-acre Camp Sagawau campus near Lemont which borders 11,000-acre Palos Forest Preserve.

4 area students get Jewel Food $1,000 grants

Four college students from Arlington Heights and Des Plaines have been awarded $1,000 Jewel Food Stores scholarships for the 1973-74 school year.

Peter N. Larson, 319 S. Rammer, Arlington Heights, is a graduate of Prospect High School and is now attending Western Michigan University working toward a degree in food distribution.

Diane M. Tessmer, 1 N. Waterman, Arlington Heights, is also a graduate of Prospect and is attending Western Illinois University for a degree in business administration.

Susanne J. Thuy, 2719 Briarwood Dr. West, Arlington Heights, is a graduate of Forest View High School and is studying business management at Northern Illinois University.

Edward W. McCaskey, 257 Stratford Rd., Des Plaines, is a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles and is working toward a degree in food distribution at Western Michigan University.

These students have been employees at Jewel Food Stores and were selected for their potential for a career at Jewel following graduation and their record of leadership, achievement and academic ability.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Herald Newspaper does not knowingly accept HELP WANTED ads that indicate a preference based on age from employers covered by the AGE DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT. HELP WANTED headings directed specifically toward either men or women are used merely for the convenience of our readers, to let them know which jobs have historically been more attractive to persons of one sex than the other. The placement of an ad under a heading is not in itself an expression of a preference, limitation, specification or discrimination based on sex. For further information contact the Wage and Hour Division Office of U.S. Department of Labor at 4032 N. Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, Illinois. Telephone (312) 736-2909.

BEF PRICES will go up and fluctuate, but they'll level off close to where they were during the freeze, according to retailers.

Despite lift on price freeze

Area groceries, restaurants haven't raised beef prices

by the Herald staff

The price freeze on beef was lifted yesterday but many local grocery stores, butcher shops and restaurants did not hike prices as expected.

Retailers predicted that consumers probably will be faced with new meat prices at the end of the week or early next week. What the new prices will be is uncertain at this time, although most retailers said that increase would probably be marginal.

Any new prices would be determined by the end of the week, according to a spokesman for Dominick's Food Store. He predicted that there will be an up-surge and then a leveling off of beef prices.

William Newby, director of public relations for the Jewel Tea company in Melrose Park, said that they expect prices to increase, but not by much.

"Retail prices will reflect the wholesaler prices," said Newby. "We do expect the possibility of an increase later this week."

"ACTUALLY, THE price increase will be up to the people," said Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights. "It's the simple law of supply and demand. The farmer knows how much to rush to the stores."

Alfred Kruth, the meat manager of Jay's Quality Meats, Arlington Heights, agreed.

"The old theory of supply and demand will take care of itself," he said. "If people do not panic and buy only what they need, then it will all work out."

"We're basically a beef-eating nation and if it's within reasonable price it'll compel them to buy beef," said Kruth.

Most retailers, supermarkets and local meat markets predicted that prices are likely to fluctuate before leveling off.

"Packers and wholesalers will be getting back into operation and making adjustments after being laid off because of the beef price ceiling," said Newby. "In the long run, the prices would be fairly close to the price on beef now."

PRICES WON'T skyrocket either, like pork, veal and poultry prices did when the ceiling was lifted on those items, retailers contend.

"The current price is close to what's reasonable for the consumer to pay," Newby said.

Kruth said customers were accustomed to pay higher prices. "But they'll back away from items that go up, let's say, from $2.69 to $2.99 a pound. They'll turn to the item that is cheaper, like chicken

Imagine that

Virtually anonymous Civil Air Patrol provides area with numerous opportunities—at a minimal cost

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Imagine a local organization which provides members with the opportunity for flying lessons and aerospace education, campouts, leadership training and more, all at minimal cost.

The Civil Air Patrol (CAP) does all of this. Yet considering the lack of public awareness of the organization, it might as well be imaginary, according to Capt. James Houchens, a CAP commander. He would like to see the situation change.

CAP's long-standing place in American history should, by rights, make it better known to the public. Founded in 1941 as a civilian volunteer auxiliary of the U.S.

Air Force, CAP members flew famous air search and rescue missions during World War II.

Since the war, CAP has continued to provide emergency air search and rescue assistance. In addition, the organization has added an aerospace education function which extends to adults and youngsters.

IT IS THE CAP cadet program which is most active in the Northwest suburban area. By missing out on what the CAP cadet program has to offer, area youngsters, who wistfully dream of one day learning to fly, may be missing an invaluable opportunity.

It takes Houchens, who is the commander of the Wheeling Cadet Squadron, a few minutes to describe all the activities which the program includes.

"If you took the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Civil Defense workers all rolled into one and made them aerospace nuts, that's what CAP is," he said.

The Wheeling squadron, which presently includes 16 cadets and three adults, meets at 8 p.m. every Monday at Wheeling High School. These meetings concentrate on aerospace education and leadership training.

ACCORDING to Houchens, a typical meeting includes classroom instruction on flying and some concentration on leadership training, through drills, guest lecturers, or classroom material.

The squadron also offers a range of activities, besides the Monday meetings, in which most cadets participate. These activities include orientation flights, which give cadets their first real taste of flying.

The flights are conducted by qualified instructors as a regular program. After an introductory flight successive flights acquaint cadets with landing and take-off procedures, stalls, turns and other maneuvers. Finally, the more sophisticated aspects of flying such as cross-country and radio procedures are taught to the cadets.

The cost to cadets is normally around $2 for each such orientation flight, Houchens said. This pays for gas expenses.

Other regular activities are camping and other scouting-type activities held on weekends, and a course on basic electronics and radio procedures.

FOH CADETS who are serious about learning to fly, the squadron also provides the opportunity for actual flight training. CAP owns a Cessna 150 trainer plane housed at Chicagoland Airport which cadets can use for flight lessons.

While flight lessons are expensive, cadets can achieve their private pilot's license for around $500, Houchens said. Normally, a license would cost more than $1,000, he said.

Beyond the regular activities sponsored by the squadron, cadets also may choose to participate in several special activities.

Every year CAP sponsors one- to two-week training camps at Air Force bases, which cost about $40. Although the sessions cover a variety of subjects, the most popular session is the survival course, Houchens said. In it, cadets are given survival training similar to that which the Army Green Berets receive.

CAP ALSO sponsors an International Air Cadet Exchange program which involves summer trips to a foreign country in Europe, the Near East, Central or South America and Southeast Asia.

Finally, CAP annually offers around $41,000 in college scholarships to deserving cadets. While the scholarships are not restricted to military schools, they are science- and engineering-oriented. In addition, CAP also offers scholarships to help defer the costs of flight training.

While Houchens said CAP "is trying to build leadership qualities and does have some military flavor attached to it," he stressed that CAP is a civilian organization. It is entirely privately-funded and membership has no effect on military status.

WHILE MOST cadets wear uniforms, the uniforms are not mandatory. Also, long hair need not prevent an interested youngster from joining, Houchens said.

In order to join the cadet program, a boy or girl must be between 13 and 18 years old, single, in school and a U.S. citizen. The Wheeling cadet squadron includes communities within a five-mile radius of Wheeling High School, excluding Lake County.

Adults wishing to join CAP must be over 18 and a U.S. citizen.

Annual dues are $8 for cadets, while adults must pay a $26 initiation fee, after which time dues are $21 per year.

Anyone interested in finding out more about CAP is encouraged to attend one of the regular Monday night squadron meetings, Houchens said. Further information also can be obtained by calling Houchens at 359-0408 or 965-4700 or by writing to CAP, P.O. Box 372, Wheeling, 60090.

Emmerich Park upgrading in a month

Construction of $28,000 in improvements to Emmerich Park is scheduled to be completed in about four weeks, according to Park Director Stan Crosland.

Plans for Emmerich Park call for the addition of two lighted tennis courts, two ice skating rinks, two baseball diamonds, a children's playground, indoor and outdoor fireplaces and a patio.

Other plans are to relocate the storage facility, install a new drinking fountain and provide a new driveway and parking area. All areas of the remodeled park are to be connected with walkways.

Crosland said yesterday the general grading of the park has been completed. Workmen in the next two weeks will be installing the underground draining system and electrical system. They will also do the final finished grading on the ball diamonds, he said.

IT SHOULD TAKE about a week to pave the walkways, driveway, parking lot and tennis courts, Crosland said, and then workmen will be ready to install fencing. Lights at the ball diamonds and the tennis courts will be put in last.

Crosland said park officials hope to have a good stand of grass in the new areas of the park this fall which would make the areas usable next spring.

At the Kilmer School park which is substantially complete, Crosland said the remaining work should be finished in the next two weeks.

Lights are to be installed at the tennis courts this week, he said, and next week the park district will install some lot play apparatus and finish landscaping the park.

SHRUBBERY IS to be put in along the south border of the park that abuts single family homes and Crosland said several of the trees that were planted last year will be straightened.

The park district is still pressuring Schaeffes Brothers, general contractors, for the construction of Willow Stream Park, to complete work promised over a year ago.

Crosland said the contractors have agreed to repair the color coating on the tennis courts and the lights, but repeatedly put off the work.

The park district is withholding payment to the contractors until the repairs are made.

In an effort to correct the hazardous condition of a large ditch at Willow Stream Park, the park district is installing concrete tiles and making plans to reduce the steeply sloping banks. The ditch is located west of the tennis courts, and runs south to the main creek at the sewage treatment plant.

Drums, amplifier reported stolen

A set of drums and an amplifier worth about $200 were discovered missing Sunday from a garage at 410 St. Mary's Pkwy.

The resident of the home, Robert Goldthwaite, told police he was not sure when the items were taken since they had been in a storage area for a long time.

Apparently no one saw anyone take the items from the garage, police said.

completed by next July or a penalty will be assessed Greco. No bonus is provided if the project is completed early.

The $2.5 million project also calls for the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads south of Dundee Road. Both roads are being rerouted to meet the existing extensions on the north side of Dundee Road. The realignment of the roads is expected to eliminate two bottlenecks which hamper through traffic.

Sifrer said workmen are now removing the old westbound pavement of the road, while traffic moves through on the east-bound and a temporary lane. Workmen will finish tearing out the existing west-bound lane Wednesday and will then grade and pave two lanes.

After the westbound lanes are completed, motorists will travel on the new lanes while workmen tear up and widen the eastbound side of the road. Thus, two lanes will be open at all times.

SIFRER SAID IT is less expensive to tear up the existing pavement and replace it than it would be to attempt to restore it. The new pavement is designed so that no major repairs will be needed for 20 years, he said.

Prior to the start of construction the speed limit on Dundee Road was 50 miles per hour in most places. Sifrer said the current speed limit is regulated by workmen. During the day it is about 25 m.p.h. with the speed increasing in the evening when workmen are gone.

State officials said the speed limit on Dundee Road will be 45 m.p.h. after the road is widened.

Widening of Dundee Road on time despite delays

State highway officials said yesterday although there have been some delays widening and repaving of Dundee Road to four lanes will be completed by November.

Al Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said the state has asked Greco Contractors Inc., the firm doing the work, to increase manpower and equipment to make up for lost time.

Workmen have fallen about a month behind schedule due largely to rain in recent weeks, Sifrer said. On the average, every day of rain delays work about three days, he added.

THE STATE ORIGINALLY set completion of the project for next July, but eight weeks ago said workmen were ahead of schedule and could be finished by late October or early November. With the delays, Sifrer said the completion date will now be closer to middle or late November.

The amount of rain in the next two months will play a critical role in the completion of the project, Sifrer said. He said a lot of rain could delay the project still further.

Sifrer said even with a lot of bad weather workmen will finish two lanes of the highway by winter.

The widening of the road is between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53, in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

SIFRER SAID CREWS are working six days a week, 10 hours a day in an attempt to finish early. The contract with Greco states that construction must be

Paramedic program needs donations

Rescue squad fund drive set

THE ABOVE stamp is like the ones sent to Buffalo Grove residents as part of a fund raising campaign by the fire department for the program.

In three to four weeks, the Buffalo Grove Fire Department will mail Rescue Squad seals to residents in an attempt to raise money for its paramedic program.

Fire Chief Wayne Winter said yesterday the paramedic program is dependent on donations, since tax money from the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District can only be used to purchase fire fighting equipment.

Winter said he prefers financing the program with donations rather than creating an ambulance tax, as several other towns have done.

Since the program was started last December, it has been financed through dances, bingo games, benefits and private donations. The money raised through these activities has paid for all the equipment and supplies, including the paramedic squad truck, which cost

Contributors to paramedics named

Contributors include the Arco Car Wash, Artistic Barbers, Bill's Buffalo House, Bob's Union 76, the Bonanza Sirloin Pit, Brown's Fried Chicken, Richard J. Brown Inc., the Buffalo Grove Bank, the Buffalo Grove Home Center, Carl's Texaco station, Colonade West Barber Shop, Corra Plumbing, Chicken Unlimited, Countryside Locksmiths, Dominick's Food Store, the Douglas Home Center, the Dunel White Hen Pantry and the Dunhurst Barber Shop.

Other contributors include Dunhurst Shell, Dunkin' Donuts, the Fashion Tree, Frank's Shoes, the Hobby House, Homefinder's Realty, the House of Anthony Colifures, Jo-Ann Country Florist, Koepen's Cligo Station, Kotz Shoes, Lieberman Realty, Lenar Cleaners, Local Loan Company, Mars Juvenile Shop, the Marriott Motor Hotel, Mr. Steak, the Ranch-Mart Association, R. J.'s Vista Cyclery and Sauer's Bake Shop.

The Scissors Palace Beauty Shop, State Farm Insurance (Robert Povetto, agent), Steven's Bedding, Striker's Bowling Lanes, The Beauty Parlor, Tom Todd Chevrolet, The Camping Site, Ltd., The Traveler, The Toddstool Gift Shop, Tic Toe Carry Out, Tomorrow Dress Shop, Transamerica Realty, United Rent-All, Wood-n-Cloth, Wall Paper Library, Wickes Furniture, Wheeling Lumber, Weller's Restaurant, and Your Pie House also contributed.

More than $6,600 was raised for the paramedic program through the benefit.

$7,200. The bingo games have recently been discontinued.

UNDER THE new plan, the fire department will mail an information sheet to residents every six months telling them of the activities and progress of the paramedic program. Once a year, several sheets of Rescue Squad seals will be mailed along with the information sheet. Residents can, if they wish, donate to the program.

The paramedics are trained to administer emergency medical treatment and are capable of handling virtually every kind of trauma case, especially heart attacks.

Girls establish sea-going Explorer post

by LINDA PUNCH
A group of Mount Prospect girls is challenging the old sailor's adage that women and ships don't mix.

The girls, students at Prospect and Forest View high schools, are members of Explorer Ship 600, a recently formed group focusing on water sports, boating and active camping. The ship is cross-registered with the Girl Scouts of America and the Boy Scout Council.

The group was formed by girls dissatisfied with the senior Girl Scout program.

"We decided to start the ship because the girls themselves thought the Girl Scout program didn't fulfill the need they wanted," Cadette leader Barbara Baker said.

WHILE MOST high school age girls shy away from the Girl Scout image, an Explorer ship doesn't carry the same stigma, according to Nancy Olsen, ship secretary.

"People just don't like the Girl Scout image, but it doesn't bother me any more," she said. "When I tell them how much fun we're having and about the boat, they don't look down on us anymore."

The girls will be basing their activities on the Boy Scout sea exploring manual. They are eligible for Girl Scout and Boy Scout awards.

THE BIGGEST PROJECT at hand for the girls is transporting a 30-foot cabin cruiser donated to their post by the Northwest Suburban Council of Boys Scouts. The cruiser is currently lodged in a small town just south of Bloomington, Ind.

Although the girls have two volunteers willing to tow the boat northward, they need a truck capable of hauling 10,000 pounds.

Other projects sponsored by the group include a paper drive last weekend and an on-going car wash, with the girls washing the car at the owner's home by appointment. Appointments can be made by calling 437-7281 or 392-0627.

While boys can join the post, the girls are determined to make a success of it on their own.

"Mr. Baker (post consultant) wants us to learn how to work the boat perfectly," Nancy said. "He wants us to be just like the guys."

Meadows fire chief 'good' after surgery

Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty was reported in good condition yesterday at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago following open heart surgery Sunday.

Fogarty, who suffered a near-fatal heart attack last month and was saved by Rolling Meadows fire department paramedics, underwent five hours of open heart surgery Sunday performed by a team of the hospital's cardiovascular specialists. Doctors performed a coronary vein bypass in which a vein from the leg was transplanted into the heart, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Fogarty, 51, was in good condition following the surgery.

The veteran fire chief was stricken Aug. 16 at his home. A team of paramedics rushed to Fogarty's home and administered electric shock treatment and intravenous medication to revive Fogarty. Doctors at at Northwest Community Hospital have credited the paramedics with saving the chief's life.

DR. STANLEY Zydlow, head of the paramedic program at the hospital, said doctors determined some time ago that the surgery would be necessary. He said Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital is one of several Chicago area hospitals equipped to perform the special surgical technique which was required.

The spokesman for Presbyterian-St. Luke's said the surgery could have been performed Saturday, but a supply of type O negative blood, Fogarty's type, had to be stocked for the surgery. The blood was supplied by the Chicago Police Department, the spokesman said.

Fogarty could be hospitalized from three to six weeks following the surgery, the spokesman said.

DR. ZYDLO, Barbara Lyons, a Mobile Intensive Care nurse at Northwest, and Rolling Meadows firemen William Schmidt and Lt. Roger Mueller transported Fogarty to the Chicago hospital Saturday. Mueller said the Buffalo Grove fire department ambulance was used to transport Fogarty because it is larger than the Rolling Meadows unit.

"We had made prearrangements with the hospital to take the chief," Mueller said. Mueller said Fogarty was taken to the hospital Saturday morning and was in good condition throughout the trip.

FOGARTY'S condition during the ride to the hospital was monitored continuously by Northwest Community Hospital, according to Dr. Zydlow.

Fogarty had been in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital for some time following the heart attack. He was reported doing well but was not allowed to take phone calls or have visitors.

Fogarty has been a fireman in Rolling Meadows for 17 years, including the last 15 years as chief. He had been one of the principal organizers of the Northwest suburban paramedic program, which began last fall.

In Fogarty's absence, Lt. Ted Loesch has been appointed acting fire chief by Mayor Roland Meyer.

Registration open for park activities

Registration is being taken for fall, winter and spring activities offered by the Wheeling Park District.

Persons may sign up for a variety of athletic, entertainment and instructional programs at the park district office, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

The park district office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

A brochure outlining the times, dates and fees for all programs was mailed to park district residents last Saturday.

CLASSES ARE SCHEDULED to begin the week of Sept. 24, but registration will be accepted anytime during the year.

Included in the list of activities available are pre-school classes, tumbling, trampoline, cheerleading, guitar instruction, swimming lessons, sewing, judo, karate, horseback riding, woodcarving, exercise classes for both men and women, football, basketball and hockey.

Separate registrations for park district

dance classes will be conducted from 10 a.m. to noon Sept. 15 for instruction designed for children ages five to 15 and from 10 a.m. to noon Sept. 19 for pre-schoolers.

Schwabens Oktoberfest is Saturday, Sunday

German food specialties, sing-alongs and Bavarian dancing will highlight a Schwaben Center Oktoberfest scheduled for Saturday and Sunday in Buffalo Grove.

The Oktoberfest will be celebrated under a huge tent on the Schwaben Soccer Center's 18-acre site off Rte. 83, north of Dundee Road. A separate food tent will feature such specialties as a "Lieberkaese Dinner," a "Kassler Rib Dinner," and a "Pork Shank Dinner." Beer and bratwurst also will be served.

The second annual fest is scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. on Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Sunday. Entertainment during the weekend will include soccer games, sing-alongs, a Bavarian dance group, and a performing Dalmatian dog show.

Admission to the Oktoberfest will be free. There is parking for 1,500 cars.

Charge attempted murder in pharmacy stickup try

A local man was charged with attempted murder and attempted armed robbery late yesterday afternoon after police said he tried to rob a Des Plaines pharmacy but fled after exchanging gunshots with a druggist.

Wayne Imwood, 21, of 960 Welwyn Ave., Des Plaines, was arrested about 30 minutes after the attempted holdup of the Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, yesterday morning.

Police refused to release details of the arrest but said that Imwood matched descriptions of the gunman. Des Plaines Det. Al Freitag also said there was "certain physical evidence" linking Imwood to the incident.

POLICE ARE investigating a link between Imwood and two previous armed holdups at the pharmacy last August, but declined to say yesterday whether he would be charged with the robberies.

No one was injured in the shootout which occurred when police said a man entered the store and announced the holdup at gunpoint. The druggist, whom police refused to identify, also drew a pistol and fired two shots at the bandit.

Police said the would-be robber returned shots and fled the store. An unidentified postman told police he heard the gunfire, and saw a man wearing a plaid shirt and baseball hat run from the store. The postman ran to a telephone and notified police.

A search later turned up a stocking

mask reported to have been worn by the robber.

In an Aug. 20 holdup, a robber also clad in a plaid shirt and stocking mask fled the store after taking two bottles of an unidentified drug and tying up druggist Frank Altmeyer and a customer.

The store was held up less than a week later at gunpoint by a man who demanded an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood had been scheduled for trial Oct. 9 in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago on another count of armed robbery dating back to last July when he allegedly held up the Hynes Pharmacy in Des Plaines.

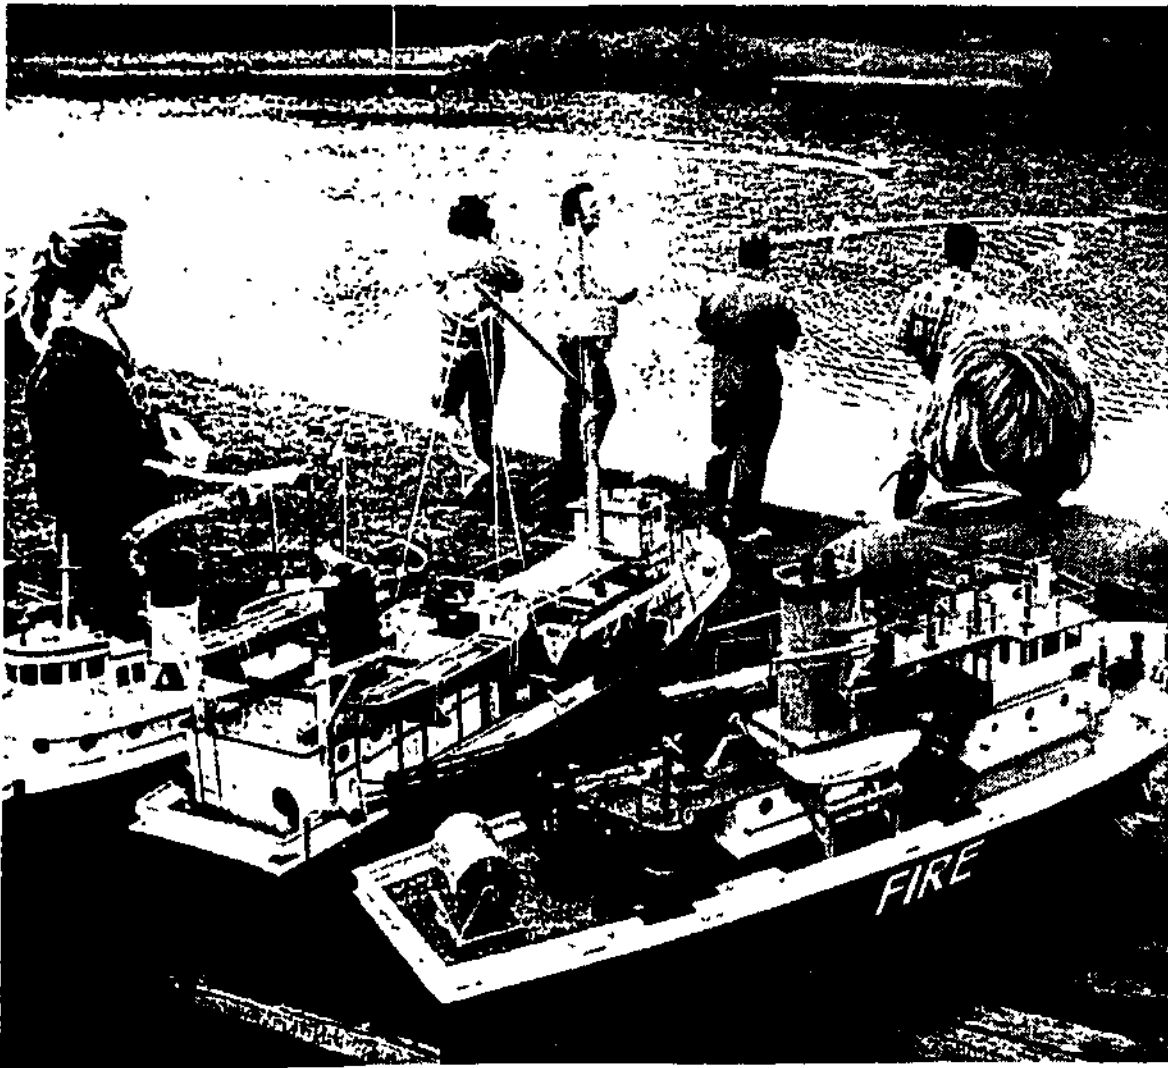

Imwood is being held by Des Plaines police on a total of $30,000 bond pending a hearing in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Thursday.

Temple sets auction

Temple Chai will sponsor a "champagne auction" Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Kingswood United Methodist Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Gift merchandise will be among the items to be auctioned. Champagne and other refreshments will be served to those attending.

Donations for the auction are $1.75. Tickets are available at the door or by calling 537-7180.

BEF PRICES will go up and fluctuate, but they'll level off close to where they were during the freeze, according to retailers.

Despite lift on price freeze

Area groceries, restaurants haven't raised beef prices

by the Herald staff

The price freeze on beef was lifted yesterday but many local grocery stores, butcher shops and restaurants did not hike prices as expected.

Retailers predicted that consumers probably will be faced with new meat prices at the end of the week or early next week. What the new prices will be is uncertain at this time, although most retailers said that increase would probably be marginal.

Any new prices would be determined by the end of the week, according to a spokesman for Dominick's Food Store. He predicted that there will be an up-surge and then a leveling off of beef prices.

William Newby, director of public relations for the Jewel Tea company in Melrose Park, said that they expect prices to increase, but not by much.

"Retail prices will reflect the wholesaler prices," said Newby. "We do expect the possibility of an increase later this week."

"ACTUALLY, THE price increase will be up to the people," said Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights. "It's the simple law of supply and demand. The farmer knows how much to rush to the stores."

Alfred Kruth, the meat manager of Jay's Quality Meats, Arlington Heights, agreed.

"The old theory of supply and demand will take care of itself," he said. "If people do not panic and buy only what they need, then it will all work out."

"We're basically a beef-eating nation and if it's within reasonable price it'll compel them to buy beef," said Kruth.

Most retailers, supermarkets and local meat markets predicted that prices are likely to fluctuate before leveling off.

"Packers and wholesalers will be getting back into operation and making adjustments after being laid off because of the beef price ceiling," said Newby. "In the long run, the prices would be fairly close to the price on beef now."

PRICES WON'T skyrocket either, like pork, veal and poultry prices did when the ceiling was lifted on those items, retailers contend.

"The current price is close to what's reasonable for the consumer to pay," Newby said.

Kruth said customers were accustomed to pay higher prices. "But they'll back away from items that go up, let's say, from $2.69 to $2.99 a pound. They'll turn to the item that is cheaper, like chicken

City's 10-story disgrace

The blight waits...and waits

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Most of the neighborhood could be described as "lovely."

Flowers are in bloom. Lawns are well kept. An old man sits in a lawn chair in front of his apartment catching the last rays of a summer sun.

The neighborhood includes Willow Street, Harding Avenue, Oak and Alles streets. It is an area of mostly apartments — maintained with care by landlords and tenants.

At the tip of the triangle formed by Willow and Harding sits the blight of the neighborhood. The address is 1510 Willow and the 10-flat, two-story building of three-room apartments is known as the neighborhood disgrace.

THE EXTERIOR of the building is a classic of disrepair.

One large picture window is broken — its jagged edges invite injury. Another window is held together with electrical tape.

A cement window ledge has fallen away. A makeshift wooden platform replaces a missing wrought-iron stair leading up to the second-floor balcony.

A white Ford with 1972 license plates decorates a spot behind the building. In back, mattresses, an old refrigerator and other junk sit outside doors.

Paint is peeling, screens are ripped or missing.

THE BUILDING houses about 33 Mexican-Americans. One tenant opened her door and invited a Herald reporter into her home. The family's possessions are modern, clean and in order. The apartment, however, needs repair.

A screen hangs from the aluminum door where the masking tape has loosened. The refrigerator, borrowed from another tenant when the first broke down, doesn't work. There is no hot water in the kitchen. Faucets leak, the plumbing backs up regularly and cockroaches scurry across the floor.

Another tenant tells how he's complained to the landlord for months about the plaster that is falling from his bathroom wall. His faucets also leak, his screens are broken, his bathtub is backed up, and he shares his neighbor's cockroaches.

One woman has threatened not to pay next month's rent unless repairs are made. "I've been complaining for so long. He (the landlord) always says he will fix things but then I never hear from him again," she said.

"I'M SORRY these walls are so dirty," another tenant says. "We'd paint if the landlord would give us the paint. We asked him but... no paint."

The building is owned by Arsenio and Nicolina Carabetta, 573 Des Plaines Ave., owners of Nicolina's Tailors and Cleaners, 1515 Ellsworth St., and a second tailoring shop in Arlington Heights. The Carabettas were unavailable for comment yesterday.

Their building has been a source of irritation to neighbors and city officials for more than a year. Marvin Martin, city sanitarian, has been working on the "problem" since August, 1972.

"I've ordered it cleaned up 12 times in the last year," Martin said. "I'm tired of going over there once a month. I go out, he (Carabetta) cleans it up, and the next month the situation is the same."

MARTIN AND CITY Atty. James Bouril are preparing a suit to be filed this month which would force a clean-up of the situation.

The suit alleges that the building violates the city health and sanitation code by allowing an accumulation of garbage which attracts flies, vermin or rats, refuse on sidewalks and alleys, and an abandoned vehicle on public or private property.

"What I'm pushing for is for Carabetta to have a manager or someone there on a daily basis to keep the building cleaned up," Martin said.

Reports of rats and the general run down condition of the building have prompted neighbors to organize and petition the city. Marion Barnes and other Oak and Willow Street residents have circulated petitions protesting the "deplorable conditions which characterize the apartment building."

THE PETITION, hand-carried yesterday to First Ward Aldermen Thomas Koplas and Joseph Szabo, police, fire and health department officials asks that "corrective steps be taken immediately."

"This is a beautiful neighborhood," Ms. Barnes said. "It's an awful thing to see someone come in and plunder the area."

Neighbors are particularly disturbed by the number of rat sightings. "I'm appalled," said one Oak Street homeowner. "The health department came out and

Township seeks spending advice

Area residents are being asked to help spend more than $190,000 by Maine Township officials.

While there will not be any full-blown spending spree, Township Supervisor James J. Dowd said yesterday that he hopes to form a number of committees to make recommendations on possible uses for money received through the federal revenue sharing program.

The township expects to receive $190,029 from the federal government during the next year, according to Dowd.

"We want to establish programs for senior citizens, youth and a number of other groups and we need the help of others in getting underway," Dowd said.

"This allocation, when received will enable us to begin the programs of aid to

City will review case in CBE suit

Des Plaines officials will have until Sept. 21 to review their position in a lawsuit filed by the Citizens for a Better Environment (CBE).

The CBE suit challenges the city's solicitation ordinance, arguing that it is depriving the civil rights of the organization's members. The CBE filed the suit last month in Federal Court in Chicago. Three other towns were named as defendants in the action.

City corporation counsel Robert DiLeonardi said yesterday that the case was continued because CBE had filed an application for a solicitation permit last week in Des Plaines.

"One of our defenses to the suit was that to our knowledge the group had never properly filed for a city permit," DiLeonardi said, adding that the CBE did file a solicitation application last week.

HE SAID Federal District Court Judge Richard McLaren continued the case to give Des Plaines an opportunity to examine its position in the matter.

The CBE asked for a restraining order against the towns so that they can continue to solicit. The organization, which is involved in supporting various environmental groups, uses teams of solicitors to seek funds for these projects. McLaren refused to give the CBE the restraining order.

CBE lawyers argued that its members' "freedom of speech" had been violated by the city's action. It made similar allegations against Morton Grove, Cicero and LaGrange.

The CBE contends that a 1971 U.S. Supreme Court decision involving a losing attempt by Park Ridge to bar solicitors prohibits other municipalities from stopping solicitation in their communities.

Zoners to hear controversial Oakton request

The Des Plaines Zoning Board of Appeals will examine a zoning request tonight expected to stir some controversy within the town. The hearing will be held at 8 p.m. in the city hall.

The board will hear a request to rezone the only remaining residential property on the south side of Oakton Street between Lee Street and Webster Lane from single family (R-2) to commercial. The request includes property at 959, 967, 976 and 987 Oakton St.

Earlier this year, the ZBA rezoned a parcel at 981 Oakton St., but the action brought strenuous objections from nearby property owners. The earlier action was requested so that a Pizza Hut could be built at that location.

It is expected that objections to this new zoning matter will be made by neighboring property owners.

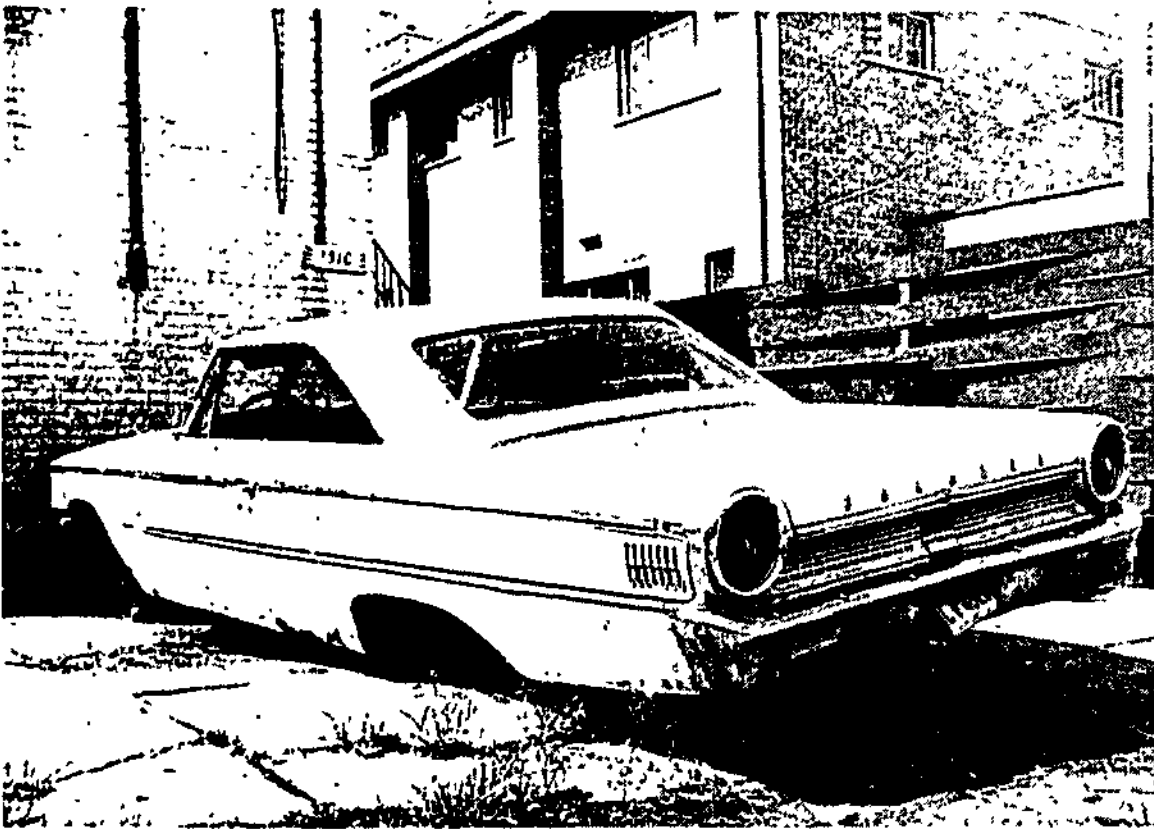

The board will also hear a request from the city to rezone property at 1400-1428 Milner St. for the new city hall.

The city is asking that zoning on the

AN ABANDONED CAR sits in the alley behind the building at 1510 Willow St. The car, the disrepair of the building, and complaints of rats prompted nearby residents to petition city officials that corrective measures be taken. At the same time the city has been preparing to file suit against the owners of the building for violating the health code.

Forest View assistant principal hired: a man

A man has been named assistant principal for instruction at Forest View High School, but High School Dist. 214 officials are going to continue looking for qualified women administrators.

Leo Hundt, who has been English division head at Forest View since 1969, was named assistant principal last week after the school board was polled by telephone. Hundt, who has been in Dist. 214 since 1964, replaces Jack Martin, who became Forest View principal last month.

The deadline for applications for the assistant principalship was extended one week by the school board after board members said they want to encourage women to seek administrative positions in the district.

Robert Cudney, director of instruction staffing, said that during the week's extension he received eight inquiries from women, seven from outside the district, about the job and also asked the three women division heads now in the district whether they would be interested in applying. One division head did interview for the job, he said.

CUDNEY added that he has determined that 11 women teachers in the district have administrative certificates, the certificates necessary before any teacher can be named to an administrative position.

He said most of the women who called from outside the district were "mainly looking for information" and did not have enough experience to qualify for an assistant principalship, a job considered a stepping stone to a principalship in one of the district's eight schools.

He said all the women who called were invited for interviews and discussed the administrative structure and opportunities within Dist. 214. "From the sounds of them they have potential," Cudney said.

Kirkwood to seek township Dem committeeman post

BY BOB LAHEY

R. Kent Kirkwood of Mount Prospect has submitted his resignation as president of the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization and indicated his intention to seek election as township Democratic committeeman in the March primary elections.

Kirkwood's action followed the announcement of Township Committeeman Chester Chesney that he was retiring from the post.

The township organization will meet tonight in Elk Grove Village to elect an interim successor to Chesney, expected to be William Rose, who ran for the state Senate last year against Republican David J. Regner of Mount Prospect in the 3rd Legislative District.

Kirkwood, who remains a deputy township committeeman, said he would not challenge Rose as the interim committeeman at the meeting, but added, "I am available." If any member of the organization would wish to nominate him.

ASSUMING THAT Rose is elected, a three-way race could develop for the committeeman's job in March, with Rose, Kirkwood and Paul Shanyfelt, one-time candidate for the State Senate and for township supervisor, in the running.

Kirkwood took mild exception to a ruling by Chesney that only precinct captains on the organization's rolls as of July 12 will be allowed to vote on the new committeeman at tonight's meeting.

Kirkwood said that Chesney told him that ruling was based on the fact that the organization has no bylaws concerning election of a successor to the committeeman, and that he wished to avoid the possibility of "outsiders" packing the membership rolls to elect a favorite candidate.

KIRKWOOD SUGGESTED the organization draw up bylaws at the meeting and delay the election of a new committeeman until the October meeting.

He urged that new members of the organization immediately be given a vote in party affairs.

Kirkwood also suggested that state Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, a state central committeeman, or attorney John Kelley of Schaumburg be invited to preside over the election of Chesney's successor, and the adoption of bylaws.

Chief Fogarty in good shape after surgery

Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty was reported in good condition yesterday at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago following open heart surgery Sunday.

Fogarty, who suffered a near-fatal heart attack last month and was saved by Rolling Meadows fire department paramedics, underwent five hours of open heart surgery Sunday performed by a team of the hospital's cardiovascular specialists. Doctors performed a coronary vein bypass in which a vein from the leg was transplanted into the heart, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Fogarty, 51, was in good condition following the surgery. The veteran fire chief was stricken Aug. 16 at his home. A team of paramedics rushed to Fogarty's home and administered electric shock treatment and intravenous medication to revive Fogarty. Doctors at at Northwest Community Hospital have credited the paramedics with saving the chief's life.

DR. STANLEY Zydlo, head of the paramedic program at the hospital, said doctors determined some time ago that the surgery would be necessary. He said Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital is one of several Chicago area hospitals equipped to perform the special surgical technique which was required.

The spokesman for Presbyterian-St. Luke's said the surgery could have been performed Saturday, but a supply of type O negative blood, Fogarty's type, had to be stocked for the surgery. The blood was supplied by the Chicago Police Department, the spokesman said.

Fogarty could be hospitalized from three to six weeks following the surgery, the spokesman said.

DR. ZYDLO, Barbara Lyons, a Mobile Intensive Care nurse at Northwest, and Rolling Meadows firemen William Schmidt and Lt. Roger Mueller transported Fogarty to the Chicago hospital Saturday. Mueller said the Buffalo Grove fire department ambulance was used to transport Fogarty because it is larger than the Rolling Meadows unit.

"We had made prearrangements with the hospital to take the chief," Mueller said. Mueller said Fogarty was taken to the hospital Saturday morning and was in good condition throughout the trip.

FOGARTY'S condition during the ride to the hospital was monitored continuously by Northwest Community Hospital, according to Dr. Zydlo.

Fogarty had been in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital for some time following the heart attack. He was reported doing well but was not allowed to take phone calls or have visitors.

Fogarty has been a fireman in Rolling Meadows for 17 years, including the last 15 years as chief. He had been one of the principal organizers of the Northwest suburban paramedic program, which began last fall.

In Fogarty's absence, Lt. Ted Loesch has been appointed acting fire chief by Mayor Roland Meyer.

"Models of Madness: The Spectrum of Contemporary Psychiatry" will bring together proponents of various theoretical points along the spectrum of contemporary psychiatry.

Dr. Thomas Szasz believes there is no such "thing" as mental illness and in his first program of the series titled "Language and Lunacy: On Building Models of Square Circles" on Oct. 17, he will present his tradition shattering thoughts that what psychiatry needs is "straight thinking and plain speaking about the problems of living."

SZASZ IS PROFESSOR of psychiatry at the State University of New York in Syracuse and is author of seven books.

Nov. 21 Dr. George Winokur, director of the State Psychopathic Hospital in Iowa City, will present "Clinical and Genetic Studies of Mania and Depression." Winokur will discuss his belief that biology or genetics forms the basis of affective disorders.

A third approach to psychiatry will be presented Jan. 16, 1974 by Dr. Luen Mosher. In his program "The Newest Talmud: A Critical Look at Antipsychiatry," Mosher will present data about Soteria, an open facility in California where unselected, unmedicated psychotic persons who would have otherwise been hospitalized, live with a non-professional staff.

DR. CARL KIRSCH will on Feb. 13, present "Schizophrenia: The Lost Body" a bioenergetic approach to the treatment of schizophrenia.

On March 27, Dr. Seymour Kety, professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School and Director of the Psychiatric Research Laboratories at Massachusetts General Hospital will present "Schizophrenia — Myth or Mental Illness." Kety will try to prove that medical rather than societal factors and values is responsible for the concept of schizophrenia.

"The Principle of Uncertainty in Psychiatry" will be presented by Dr. Jules Masserman, professor of psychiatry and neurology at Northwestern University. On April 16 he will discuss his theory of how psychotherapy can be successful.

THE FINAL PROGRAM in the series "Models of Madness: The Spectrum of Contemporary Psychiatry" will incorporate all guest participants who appeared in the year-long series on a panel open for discussion.

All individual presentations will be made at 7:30 p.m. on the dates listed.

The series is open to all mental health professionals. All programs will be held in the Forest Hospital Professional Center, 555 Wilson Lane, Des Plaines.

Dowd explained that he hopes to be able to use the expertise "and interest of concerned citizens in this effort," adding that officials are now looking at the legal aspects of creating these advisory committees.

Dowd and an all-GOP slate campaigned unopposed last April for improving the programs that are offered by the township.

Persons interested in participating in the advisory committees can contact the township at 297-2510 or attend the monthly board of auditor's meeting tonight at the township offices, 2510 Dempster St., Des Plaines.

PTA notes

A "Buzz Session" will be held Tuesday, Sept. 18, at 8 p.m. by the Forest School PTA, Fifth and Forest Avenues, Des Plaines.

After a short business meeting, Phyllis Johnson, principal, will introduce all teachers. Teachers will welcome parents to their children's rooms and tell of plans for the year.

'Repulsion' to be shown

"Repulsion," the 1965 film directed by Roman Polanski, will be the feature presented by the Oakton Community College Film Society Friday. The film will be screened at 7:30 p.m. in Room 108-109, Building 1, 7900 N. Nagle, Morton Grove. Starring Catherine Deneuve, the film delves into the world of insanity. Theme of this season's offerings of the Film Society is "Perspectives on Survival."

Admission is free for all Oakton and adult education students and for Maine and Niles Township high school students. A 50-cent donation is requested of others who attend. A discussion follows the film showing.

Living with children?

"Making the Most of the Preschool Years or How to Keep from Climbing the Walls" will be offered this fall to mothers and fathers of preschool children by the Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult and Continuing Education Program.

Team taught by Phyllis Koehnline and Pat Handzel, the course is designed to help young parents live and learn creatively with their children. The class will meet every Monday evening from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. starting Oct. 1, for 10 weeks.

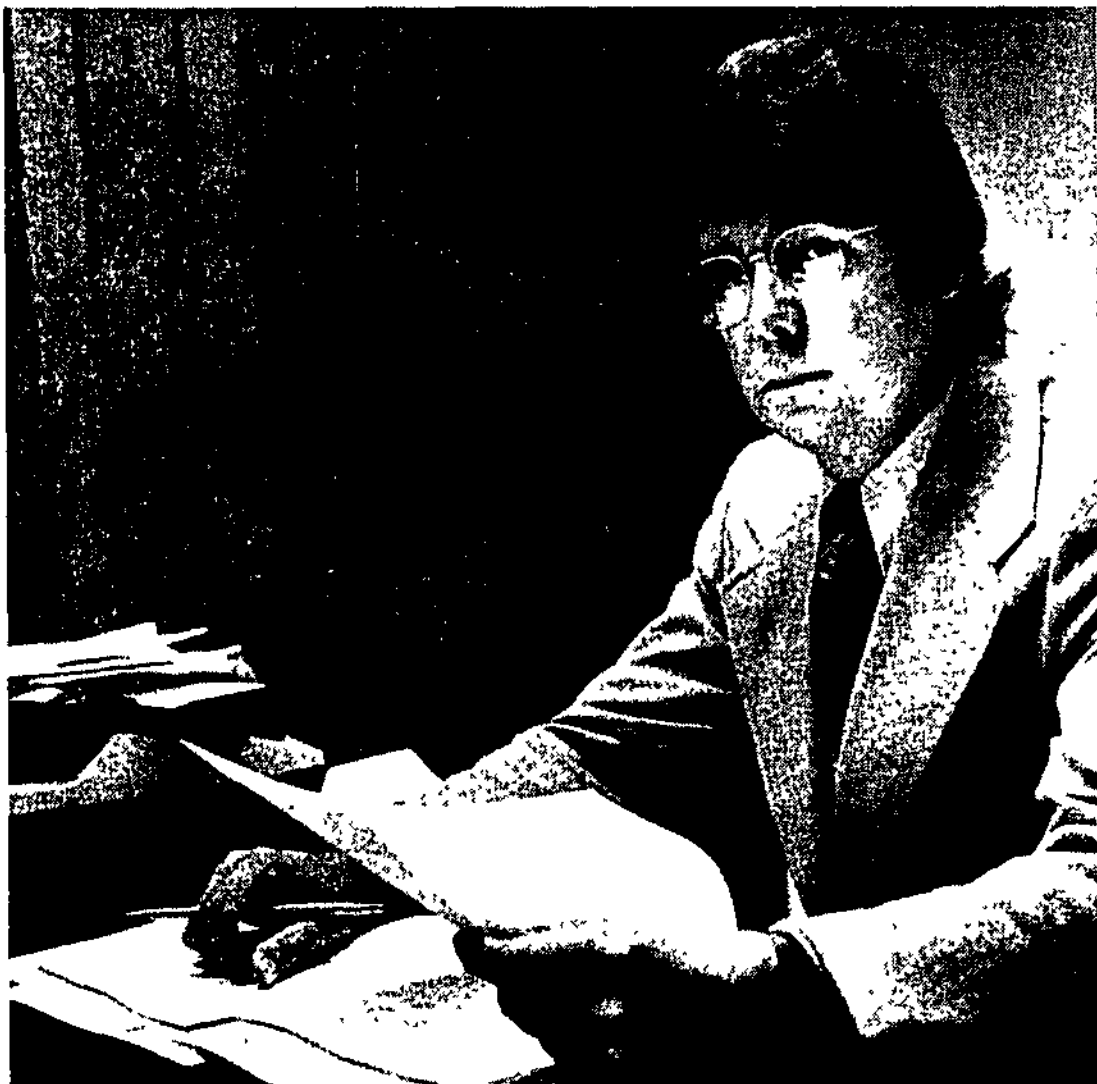

Participants will share resources, discuss theories in child rearing, early learning, and discipline, and learn through lectures, films, books, panels, problem-solving, guests and sharing. The course also features books, arts, music, toys, early learning, nursery school and first aid instruction.

For further information call 696-3600.

Procedure established for junk mail gripes

Des Plaines officials have set up a new procedure for handling complaints on junk mail from local residents.

Questions or complaints regarding litter, which is caused by unsolicited printed matter may be directed to either Marvin Martin, the city sanitation or Environmental Officer Philip Lindahl. Both men may be contacted by calling 824-3136 daily.

ON THE JOB . . . Des Plaines' new city attorney, James Bouril, got down to business last week. The 25-year-old Northwestern University Law School graduate, who is the first full time lawyer ever hired by the city, will handle the town's day-to-day legal matters.

BEEF PRICES will go up and fluctuate, but they'll level off close to where they were during the freeze, according to retailers.

Despite lift on price freeze

Area groceries, restaurants haven't raised beef prices

by the Herald staff

The price freeze on beef was lifted yesterday but many local grocery stores, butcher shops and restaurants did not hike prices as expected.

Retailers predicted that consumers probably will be faced with new meat prices at the end of the week or early next week. What the new prices will be is uncertain at this time, although most retailers said that increase would probably be marginal.

Any new prices would be determined by the end of the week, according to a spokesman for Dominick's Food Store. He predicted that there will be an up-surge and then a leveling off of beef prices.

William Newby, director of public relations for the Jewel Tea company in Melrose Park, said that they expect prices to increase, but not by much.

"Retail prices will reflect the wholesaler prices," said Newby. "We do expect the possibility of an increase later this week."

"ACTUALLY, THE price increase will be up to the people," said Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights. "It's the simple law of supply and demand. The farmer knows how much to rush to the stores."

Alfred Kruth, the meat manager of Jay's Quality Meats, Arlington Heights, agreed.

"The old theory of supply and demand will take care of itself," he said. "If people do not panic and buy only what they need, then it will all work out."

"We're basically a beef-eating nation and if it's within reasonable price it'll compel them to buy beef," said Kruth.

Most retailers, supermarkets and local meat markets predicted that prices are likely to fluctuate before leveling off.

"Packers and wholesalers will be getting back into operation and making adjustments after being laid off because of the beef price ceiling," said Newby. "In the long run, the prices would be fairly close to the price on beef now."

PRICES WON'T skyrocket either, like pork, veal and poultry prices did when the ceiling was lifted on those items, retailers contend.

"The current price is close to what's reasonable for the consumer to pay," Newby said.

Kruth said customers were accustomed to pay higher prices. "But they'll back away from items that go up, let's say, from $2.69 to $2.99 a pound. They'll turn to the item that is cheaper, like chicken

Junior High site problems are continuing

The problems are continuing at Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines.

At a special meeting last night, Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 board of education members unanimously voted 6-0 to go ahead with action to take over site work and rough grading at Friendship.

The board instructed its attorney, Frank Hines, to give the building contractor, Al Berg, notice he has only seven more days to complete the site work or the school district will take over and deduct the cost, estimated to be about $4,400.

That amount would be subtracted from $60,000 in money owed Berg. The amount is to be held until completion of the job.

Dist. 59 Supt. James Ertvil told board members no grading has been done at the school in about two weeks. "Until the grading is done no landscaping work can be done. Unless work is started soon, we'll end up with a sea of mud next spring."

Ertvil said this action was perhaps a preview of things to come. Work in other areas of the building is lagging too, according to the superintendent.

Ertvil told the board no work was done in the school's gym yesterday. The gym is still six to seven weeks from completion.

Ertvil added that work in the auditorium has been minimal. Roof work is still incomplete, as are countless other minor items in the building itself.

AT ITS AUG 20 meeting, the board voted to release $60,000 of the $120,000 it had held back in money owed Berg.

The retention of a certain amount of the building's total price until it is completed is a standard procedure.

In voting to pay Berg the $60,000, board members asked for "a spirit of cooperation" between Berg and the board. That spirit seems to have gone sour.

Board member Emil Bahnmaler last night questioned whether or not the $60,000 released Aug. 20 had been paid. Assistant superintendent Arthur Perry informed him it hadn't been paid.

Bahnmaler then asked if the board's motion to release to payment could be rescinded. He was told by attorney Hines that it could.

FURTHER DISCUSSION of such a possibility was put off until the board's next meeting on Monday.

Original work on the $1.2 million building was to have been completed Jan. 1 of this year. Continuing construction delays have pushed back that date first to mid-March, then June 1, and to July 1.

Work was still not completed by mid-July and the deadline was moved to school's opening on Sept. 4.

The contract with Berg contained no provisions for a penalty for construction delays.

sible for drumming up necessary funds every year. If his efforts are fairly successful, such as this year, the mental health center can operate normally and even expand to meet the rising demands of the community with new programs and more counselors.

It hasn't been decided yet, and won't be for some time, whether or not Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships will tax for mental health. That decision won't be made until budget hearings this spring.

If the funds are needed, Rosen feels there will be no problem. "I'm quite confident we'll be able to work together with the township officials," Rosen said. "They've been fantastic in the past, very sensitive to the mental health needs of their community."

ONE OF ROSEN's main priorities, if extra funds are available, is to establish community education programs in men-

CHECKING THE SHOTGUN carried in the patrol car, policeman Steve Ingebrigtsen makes sure no shell is in the chamber before he starts his patrol. During his four years as an Elk Grove Village policeman, Ingebrigtsen never has fired a shot at anyone — and no one has ever fired a shot at him.

He never gets bored

A night cruising with Officer Steve

by FRED GACA

A lone policeman in a squad car on a night patrol — to some he is a pig, to others he is a guardian. To the police department, he is the first line of defense against crime.

Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, the Elk Grove Village police department patrols the residential and industrial areas of the village. Spending a night with Patrolman Steve Ingebrigtsen as he covers his eight-hour watch could be called a typical patrol for the department.

Ingebrigtsen starts his shift at 3 p.m. with a briefing from his watch commander. Fifteen minutes later he is on the street. His patrol for this night will be the east section of the village, through the industrial park area.

WHILE ON patrol, Ingebrigtsen is looking for the ordinary — when he doesn't find it, he stops to investigate.

A blue Maverick parked next to a factory is ordinary — it is there every night. A dark Cougar parked in an open field is not ordinary — it has never been there before.

One factory with loading doors wide open is ordinary — the factory has a late shift working and trucks go in and out all night. The factory across the street with its doors open would not be ordinary. That factory closed for the day several hours earlier.

Whenever something catches Ingebrigtsen's attention as being out of place, he stops everything to investigate.

WHILE DRIVING north on Elmhurst Road, Ingebrigtsen was talking about what it means to be a cop and how he handles the verbal abuse he occasionally encounters when stopping a person for a traffic violation.

He made a left turn to Higgins Road and suddenly his entire manner changed. He slowed the squad car down, pulled into the left hand lane and made a U-turn, heading back toward Elmhurst Road. As he approached a gas station on the corner, he shut off all the lights on the car and pulled quietly into the driveway.

He stopped the car, got out quickly and ran toward the station building, in a crouch. In his left hand he held a flashlight. His right hand rested on the butt of his pistol, which he left in the holster.

HE WENT behind the building, but moments later he came back, walking slowly and relaxed.

"Thought for sure I had something there. It really looked good," he said.

"As I drove by, I noticed one of the overhead doors was open about a foot, just enough for someone to crawl under. That station is always locked at night and those doors are always closed. But it was just one of the employees working on a car. He was painting it and opened the doors to let the fumes out."

"A few months ago the station was robbed and that's how they got in, by opening the overhead doors."

To be successful on patrol, the officer has to know his beat. He must know every light that should be on in every building, and every light that should be off. He must know every dip and bump in every street he drives. He must know every driveway and rear exit to every building.

"A man who is a police officer and says the job gets boring has something wrong," said Ingebrigtsen. "If they could guarantee you there will be no calls for eight hours and told you there would be no traffic, there is still a lot to do."

HE SAID EIGHT hours of uninterrupted driving, which never happens to a patrolman, would permit him to study everything on his beat, learning every detail he could.

But a patrolman's job is never uninterrupted. There is always something coming up. A truck suspected of being overweight has to be stopped and taken to the scales to be checked. A car with a broken taillight drives by, and a "courtesy stop" is made to tell the driver to have the light repaired.

An order to assist the fire department is received, the lights and sirens go on and the car speeds away. But before driving 30 seconds, another call comes in to disregard the assist request.

During his patrol, Ingebrigtsen stopped several motorists for various traffic violations. Tonight he was fortunate, none of the drivers became abusive.

When a person becomes abusive, Ingebrigtsen tries to ignore the person. "Don't bring yourself down to his level by arguing with him," he said.

A CALM, courteous manner usually quiets an irate person, but some won't stop swearing no matter how polite the officer acts. For the really irate person, Ingebrigtsen has his own system.

"I walk back to the car and finish writing the ticket. If the person follows me back to the car, I lock the door and roll up the window. When I finish writing the ticket, I hand them their copy, tell them what number to call if they have any questions or complaints, and tell them when they have to be in court."

Ingebrigtsen has gotten verbal abuse from some fairly "high-class" people. A bank president once called him a pig. The most obscene comments, however, have come from women drivers.

OCCASIONALLY, Ingebrigtsen has stopped drivers who offer to buy him breakfast or give him a $5, $10 or $20 bill to forget about the ticket.

"I just tell the person to put the money away or they'll be in real trouble for trying to bribe a police officer," he said.

"After you refuse the bribe, you have no more trouble with the driver. They get very embarrassed and just sit in their Ingebrigtsen said he had always wanted to be a policeman. "I like police work, I like everything about it. There are lots of rules and regulations you have to follow, so you can't say you are your own boss, but you are by yourself when you work."

As a patrolman, Ingebrigtsen works one of three shifts: 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. or 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. A patrolman is on a shift for one month and then is moved to a different shift.

EVEN THE TOTAL rearranging of his daily schedule every month doesn't bother Ingebrigtsen. He said learning to eat and sleep at different times each month is "just part of the job."

He said his wife is a big help in making the monthly time changes. "She adjusts her schedule to match mine. When I have to sleep days, she keeps our 2-year-old, who is a real terror, quiet. I've got the best wife in the world."

Ingebrigtsen said the biggest satisfaction of his job is knowing he is helping people, even though they may never know it.

"When you stop a drunk driver and take him to the station, you don't know how many lives you may have saved," he said.

"People need you, whether they realize it or not. The worst cop-hater needs you. He calls you a pig when you stop him for a ticket, but a few hours later, when someone might be breaking into his home, who does he call first?"

The local scene

Singles club to meet

The Elk Grove Village Single Again Club is resuming meetings after the summer vacation season. The club's first meeting will be at 8 p.m. Friday at Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit, 688 Elk Grove Blvd.

The meeting will open with a short discussion on future programs for the club. The Elk Grove Village fire department will then present information on the new paramedic program.

Single Again is a social club for persons who have lost their spouses through death, divorce or separation. Persons do not have to be parents to join the club.

tal health, something that is already getting started on a limited scale.

The mental health center will be adding an addition to its present facility next to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. As soon as the addition is finished, several new staff members will be added. One of the new staff members will work at least part of the time in community education, talking to PTA's, church groups and interested groups on various aspects of mental health, according to Rosen.

Another project Rosen would like to establish is a day hospital for people who don't need to stay in the hospital 24 hours a day, but who do need some kind of therapy. The patient could come in during the day for therapy and/or counseling, and return home in the evenings.

Still another program that could be started, according to Rosen, are more "outposts," such as the one getting started in Hoffman Estates. Counselors are made available at the outposts, making it more convenient for people to take advantage of the services offered by the mental health center.

Record enrollment keeps schools 'on top'

A record enrollment of 25,587 students this year is keeping Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 the largest elementary school district in Cook County outside Chicago.

The figure, a 1,049 increase over last September, represents a 7.2 per cent increase.

"We are well on the way to the anticipated 40,000 students the district could hold at full development," said Donnie Rudd, school board president.

"For the next several years we think we will have to provide a new classroom every six to seven days if anticipated increases in enrollment go as projected," Rudd said.

THE STEADY increase in enrollment went down this year from last school year's 8 per cent increase. The biggest jump in enrollment, 948 students, came in the summer months, with 101 new students enrolled during the school year.

Dist. 54 eliminated double shifts of students in 1971 and has not had to resort to that measure in any school this year.

Milton Derr, associate superintendent, said development in the Elk Grove portion of the district could "clobber us." He said Centex builders is readying many houses for fall occupancy and this could greatly change the enrollment totals.

The district's master plan calls for at least 11 more schools to be built. The district now has 24.

ALTHOUGH ITS master plan calls for all neighborhood schools and little if any busing, the district is transporting approximately 5,000 students this year.

Charge attempted murder in pharmacy stickup try

A local man was charged with attempted murder and attempted armed robbery late yesterday afternoon after police said he tried to rob a Des Plaines pharmacy but fled after exchanging gunshots with a druggist.

Wayne Imwood, 21, of 3960 Welwyn Ave., Des Plaines, was arrested about 30 minutes after the attempted holdup of the Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, yesterday morning.

Police refused to release details of the arrest but said that Imwood matched descriptions of the gunman. Des Plaines Det. Al Freitag also said there was "certain physical evidence" linking Imwood to the incident.

POLICE ARE investigating a link between Imwood and two previous armed holdups at the pharmacy last August, but declined to say yesterday whether he would be charged with the robberies.

Mixed-breed dogs are held at Kennel

Two mixed-breed dogs picked up by Elk Grove Police will be taken to the Chicago Humane Society unless their owners are found within the next few days.

Mrs. Marge Holland of Elk Grove said the dogs were picked up by village police 12 days ago. They are being held in the village kennel at Tonne and Landmeier roads.

One dog is described as a medium-sized male with white and tan markings. He was wearing a silver chain collar.

The second dog is a small female with white and tan markings. She was wearing a clear plastic flea collar and a black collar.

If the owners are not found within three or four days, the dogs may be adopted. The dogs will probably be destroyed if they're sent to the Chicago shelter.

For further information, contact Mrs. Holland at 439-6784.

Kindergartners and junior high school students make up the bulk of bused students with 1,000 parochial students being transported to parish schools at district expense.

Ronald Ruble, assistant superintendent-transportation, said opening of Eisenhower Junior High School eliminated busing of many students from the north end of the district.

No one was injured in the shootout which occurred when police said a man entered the store and announced the holdup at gunpoint. The druggist, whom police refused to identify, also drew a pistol and fired two shots at the bandit.

Police said the would-be robber returned shots and fled the store. An unidentified postman told police he heard the gunfire, and saw a man wearing a plaid shirt and baseball hat run from the store. The postman ran to a telephone and notified police.

A search later turned up a stocking mask reported to have been worn by the robber.

In an Aug. 20 holdup, a robber also clad in a plaid shirt and stocking mask fled the store after taking two bottles of an unidentified drug and tying up druggist Frank Altmeier and a customer.

The store was held up less than a week later at gunpoint by a man who demanded an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood had been scheduled for trial Oct. 9 in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago on another count of armed robbery dating back to last July when he allegedly held up the Hynes Pharmacy in Des Plaines.

Imwood is being held by Des Plaines police on a total of $30,000 bond pending a hearing in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Thursday.

$335 in equipment stolen from truck

An estimated $335 in service station equipment was taken from a truck in Elk Grove Village last week.

Paul Baranczyk, 632 Carroll Square, reported to police that the equipment was not in the truck when he left for work Saturday morning. The truck had been parked in front of his residence.

Baranczyk could not say when the equipment was taken. The equipment was supposed to have been on the truck when he drove it from Winkelman's Shell station in Mount Prospect Friday night. However, Baranczyk did not check to make sure the equipment was in the truck when he left.

The truck was also used during the night and Baranczyk did not notice the equipment was gone.

BEF PRICES will go up and fluctuate, but they'll level off close to where they were during the freeze, according to retailers.

Despite lift on price freeze

Area groceries, restaurants haven't raised beef prices

by the Herald staff

The price freeze on beef was lifted yesterday but many local grocery stores, butcher shops and restaurants did not hike prices as expected.

Retailers predicted that consumers probably will be faced with new meat prices at the end of the week or early next week. What the new prices will be is uncertain at this time, although most retailers said that increase would probably be marginal.

Any new prices would be determined by the end of the week, according to a spokesman for Dominick's Food Store. He predicted that there will be an up-surge and then a leveling off of beef prices.

William Newby, director of public relations for the Jewel Tea company in Melrose Park, said that they expect prices to increase, but not by much.

"Retail prices will reflect the wholesaler prices," said Newby. "We do expect the possibility of an increase later this week."

"ACTUALLY, THE price increase will be up to the people," said Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights. "It's the simple law of supply and demand. The farmer knows how much to rush to the stores."

Alfred Kruth, the meat manager of Jay's Quality Meats, Arlington Heights, agreed.

"The old theory of supply and demand will take care of itself," he said. "If people do not panic and buy only what they need, then it will all work out."

"We're basically a beef-eating nation and if it's within reasonable price it'll compel them to buy beef," said Kruth.

Most retailers, supermarkets and local meat markets predicted that prices are likely to fluctuate before leveling off.

"Packers and wholesalers will be getting back into operation and making adjustments after being laid off because of the beef price ceiling," said Newby. "In the long run, the prices would be fairly close to the price on beef now."

PRICES WON'T skyrocket either, like pork, veal and poultry prices did when the ceiling was lifted on those items, retailers contend.

"The current price is close to what's reasonable for the consumer to pay," Newby said.

Kruth said customers were accustomed to pay higher prices. "But they'll back away from items that go up, let's say, from $2.69 to $2.99 a pound. They'll turn to the item that is cheaper, like chicken

2 social service agencies to get revenue funds

Two area social service agencies were added last night to the roster of projects receiving money from Palatine Township federal revenue sharing funds.

Township auditors voted unanimously to give $4,500 to the Northwest Opportunity Center and $6,500 to the Northwest Mental Health Clinic.

Federal revenue sharing is a program set up to distribute some of the federal government's income to state and local governments for various projects.

Palatine Township has received $73,500 to date in the five-year program now in its first year. Auditors have previously approved partial or total funding for the Community Child Care Center, Palatine Township Council for the Aging and the Palatine Township Highway Department for a water pump and power rodder.

The $4,500 allotted to the Northwest Opportunity Center is designed to cover part of the cost of the center's services to township residents. The center provides a variety of services to the poor in a seven-township area. Its current need for local funds resulted from a 50 per cent cutback in federal funding, leaving the center with approximately a $31,000 deficit, according to Director Bruce Newton.

Money promised to the center last night is intended to cover expenses through March 31, 1974, the end of the agency's fiscal year. Additional funding will be considered next spring.

The Northwest Mental Health Clinic will receive $6,500 from Palatine Township to help alleviate an anticipated $43,000 deficit in the clinic's budget. That shortage is caused by a $40,000 cutback in funds from the Illinois Department of Mental Health this year.

The clinic, which provides psychiatric and mental health counseling, has cut two psychiatrists from its staff because of lack of funds. Its 1973-74 budget is $255,000.

At their Sept. 24 meeting, township auditors plan to discuss possible funds for the Clearbrook Center for retarded adults, Countryside School for the Handicapped and construction of sidewalks to Palatine Hills Junior High School on Smith Street.

ON YOUR MARKS, GET SET . . . Movers are preparing for the Big Move — this house, at the corner of Palatine Road and Winston Drive, will be moved shortly to make room for the widening of Palatine Road. The road work is expected to begin this fall.

$15,000 this year's goal

It's 'Crusading' time again

It's that time of year again.

The Palatine Crusade of Mercy drive soon will begin soliciting contributions for 13 local organizations in the name of "People Helping People."

The goal this year is $15,000. Last year, with a similar goal, the drive fell $4,000 short.

Dr. Edward S. Laskowski, chairman of the fund-raising campaign, expressed confidence that the goal can be reached. "If each family gave, say, $5, we would have over the subscribed goal," he said. "We're just asking people to give whatever they can comfortably afford to give."

The theme of the drive this year is "People Helping People." It will be from Oct. 1 to Oct. 31.

This year, the drive will concentrate heavily on local businesses and professions. Last year, the business community accounted for only about $2,000 of the $11,000 total, with residents making up the balance.

A luncheon meeting is being planned for 50 business leaders on Sept. 25 to solicit pledges.

DR. LASKOWSKI urged Palatine residents to contribute to the village's only fund-raising drive. "For each dollar we get, we usually get $2 extra," he said, because the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy would make up the difference between the $15,000 local goal and the $45,000 needs of the 13 local organizations which share the funds.

The organizations that receive Crusade of Mercy funds are:

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire

Girls, Countryside Center, United Servicemen's Organization, Salvation Army welfare fund and community service, Homemakers, Santa Teresa Church day care center, Northwest Mental Health, Clearbrook Center and Camp Reinberg.

Aiding Dr. Laskowski as committee chairmen are: Jerome W. Pinderski, vice chairman; Clem Lambert and Jim Nowlin, residential; Dennis Griffin, clergy; Dr. Richard Kolke, High School Dist.

211; Paul Jung, Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15; James L. Shaw municipal; Pinderski, legal and insurance; Dr. William Meek, medical and dental; Mrs. Wanda Mallow and Robert Le Breck, business and retailing; David Yeats, real estate.

Charles H. Foos is president of the local Crusade of Mercy campaign. The drive formerly was known as Palatine Community Combined Appeal.

Committee formed to find safe walkways for students

A Parents for the Safety of Students (SOS) committee has been formed to work toward securing safe walkways to Palatine Hills Junior High School, 1100 N. Smith St., Palatine.

SOS is headed by a five-member steering committee composed of Dr. Rolley Bateman, M. Russell Bramwell, Sue Braun, Gen Guenther and Shirley Munson.

Representatives of SOS attended the Palatine Township Board meeting last night to request funds for a walkway along Smith Street north of Northwest Highway to the school. Tonight SOS representatives will be at the Palatine Park District meeting to ask the board to extend its bike path along Smith Street to the school and tomorrow representatives will be at the School Dist. 15 meeting to ask the board to revise its budget to include funds for a walkway along Smith Street.

IN ADDITION to securing a safe walkway on Smith Street, SOS would like the Dist. 15 Board to review its policy regarding free busing. At the present time, free bus transportation is only available to students living 1½ miles or more from the school they attend. Students within the 1½-mile boundary may pay $15 a term for bus transportation if a bus is available.

SOS feels free busing should be provided for all students to Palatine Hills Junior High School until a safe walkway is constructed.

"We're primarily interested in Palatine Hills (Junior High School), but we're not going to let it rest there. The safety of Palatine children at all schools should be considered," said Mrs. Guenther.

Centner case draws 'name' attorneys

Two respected Chicago attorneys will clash in the upcoming public hearing over the forced resignation of Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner.

Jack Siegel, a well-known municipal lawyer, is expected to be named today by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones to represent the village. It had earlier been announced that John D. Hayes, who was police magistrate in Palatine from 1961 to 1965, will represent Centner.

Jones indicated he had decided to go outside the village in selecting an attorney rather than using the village attorney or prosecutor to prosecute a village employee.

Since his resignation June 25, Centner has been serving as a lieutenant on the police force.

The next step in setting the stage for the public hearing will be the formal filing of charges against the former chief.

THE CHARGES ARE expected to be based on Centner's alleged lack of leadership, low morale in the police department and the department's policies in combating drug traffic in Palatine, checking for overweight trucks and inspecting taverns between 1 and 4 a.m.

These were the reasons given by village trustees in demanding Centner's resignation.

The hearing will probably be held on a Saturday next month.

Siegel is a partner in the Chicago law firm of Siegel and Stonesifer Ltd., and represents the City of Evanston and villages of Arlington Heights and Schaumburg.

He is past chairman of the local government section of the Illinois Bar Association and is a member of the local government committee of the Chicago Bar Association. Siegel is a leading authority on home rule powers of municipalities.

Transit center struck by vandals

Vandals hit the Palatine transportation center during the weekend by breaking a glass door on the southwest side of the building and puncturing a ceiling tile.

Chicago and North Western Ry. officials had no estimate of the cost to repair the damage to the station, at 225 W. Colfax St. The center has been the target of previous vandalism during the summer.

Imagine that

Virtually anonymous Civil Air Patrol provides area with numerous opportunities—at a minimal cost

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Imagine a local organization which provides members with the opportunity for flying lessons and aerospace education, camps, leadership training and more, all at minimal cost.

The Civil Air Patrol (CAP) does all of this. Yet considering the lack of public awareness of the organization, it might as well be imaginary, according to Capt. James Houchens, a CAP commander. He would like to see the situation change.

CAP's long-standing place in American history should, by rights, make it better known to the public. Founded in 1941 as a civilian volunteer auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force, CAP members flew famous air search and rescue missions during World War II.

Since the war, CAP has continued to provide emergency air search and rescue assistance. In addition, the organization has added an aerospace education function which extends to adults and youngsters.

IT IS THE CAP cadet program which is most active in the Northwest suburban area. By missing out on what the CAP cadet program has to offer, area youngsters, who wistfully dream of one day learning to fly, may be missing an invaluable opportunity.

It takes Houchens, who is the commander of the Wheeling Cadet Squadron, a few minutes to describe all the activities which the program includes.

"If you took the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Civil Defense workers all rolled into one and made them aerospace nuts, that's what CAP is," he said.

The Wheeling squadron, which presently includes 16 cadets and three adults, meets at 8 p.m. every Monday at Wheeling High School. These meetings concentrate on aerospace education and leadership training.

ACCORDING to Houchens, a typical meeting includes classroom instruction on flying and some concentration on leadership training, through drills, guest lecturers, or classroom material.

The squadron also offers a range of activities, besides the Monday meetings, in which most cadets participate. These activities include orientation flights, which give cadets their first real taste of flying.

The flights are conducted by qualified instructors as a regular program. After an introductory flight successive flights acquaint cadets with landing and take-off procedures, stalls, turns and other maneuvers. Finally, the more sophisticated aspects of flying such as cross-country and radio procedures are taught to the cadets.

The cost to cadets is normally around $2 for each such orientation flight, Houchens said. This pays for gas expenses.

Other regular activities are camping and other scouting-type activities held on weekends, and a course on basic electronics and radio procedures.

FOR CADETS who are serious about learning to fly, the squadron also provides the opportunity for actual flight training. CAP owns a Cessna 150 trainer plane housed at Chicago's Midway Airport which cadets can use for flight lessons.

While flight lessons are expensive, cadets can achieve their private pilot's license for around $500, Houchens said. Normally, a license would cost more than $1,000, he said.

Beyond the regular activities sponsored by the squadron, cadets also may choose to participate in several special activities.

Every year CAP sponsors one- to two-week training camps at Air Force bases, which cost about $40. Although the sessions cover a variety of subjects, the most popular session is the survival course, Houchens said. In it, cadets are given survival training similar to that which the Army Green Berets receive.

CAP ALSO sponsors an International Air Cadet Exchange program which involves summer trips to a foreign country in Europe, the Near East, Central or South America and Southeast Asia.

Finally, CAP annually offers around $41,000 in college scholarships to deserving cadets. While the scholarships are not restricted to military schools, they are science and engineering-oriented. In addition, CAP also offers scholarships to help defer the costs of flight training.

While Houchens said CAP "is trying to build leadership qualities and does have some military flavor attached to it," he stressed that CAP is a civilian organization. It is entirely privately-funded and membership has no effect on military status.

WHILE MOST cadets wear uniforms, the uniforms are not mandatory. Also, long hair need not prevent an interested youngster from joining, Houchens said.

In order to join the cadet program, a boy or girl must be between 13 and 18 years old, single, in school and a U.S. citizen. The Wheeling cadet squadron includes communities within a five-mile radius of Wheeling High School, excluding Lake County.

Adults wishing to join CAP must be over 18 and a U.S. citizen.

Annual dues are $8 for cadets, while adults must pay a $28 initiation fee, after which time dues are $21 per year.

Anyone interested in finding out more about CAP is encouraged to attend one of the regular Monday night squadron meetings, Houchens said. Further information also can be obtained by calling Houchens at 359-0408 or 965-4700 or by writing to CAP, P.O. Box 372, Wheeling, 60090.

Public hearings continue

Westbury rep. evades queries

Present zoning on the 497-acre defunct Howie-in-the-Hills subdivision in Hoffman Estates "was a bad case of crystal-balling," said Don Kirk, president of Meridian Housing Corp.

Before a joint panel of the zoning board of appeals and plan commission members Kirk would not make promises or give predictions on the style of housing, particular landscaping plans or land use plans for the development he hopes to build on the Howie site.

Meridian developers are being heard in a week-long series of public hearings that are drawing residents from areas surrounding the Palatine Township site. At one point Tuesday there were as many as 60 persons present.

The petitioner is seeking a new zoning not now available in Hoffman Estates. Present residential zoning would allow 3,908 dwelling units on the property, located north of Northwest Tollway. Meridian's development plan calls for 4,472 units.

The panel's questions centered on Meridian's reputation as a builder. Kirk said the firm has built in other states but when asked how big the firm is, he said, "I don't know."

He will, however, present annual reports and promotional literature at a later date.

Kirk assured the panel Meridian plans to develop Westbury, the Howie development's new name, as a total community with open space and mixed land use. He said he is petitioning for a new zoning category to make the development "better."

Meridian does not plan to sell a portion of the property to other developers.

"Premature" was the response that Kirk gave in answer to questions about housing styles, landscaping, land plan use, exact location of school sites and pedestrian patterns.

"It would be another case of using a crystal ball, something we don't plan to do, although we would like to start this development next spring. It would be 10 years' building and we will not predict housing trends or needs that far ahead," he explained.

The hearing will be continued tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Hoffman Estates High School, with village experts presenting testimony and statements.

Fall films scheduled at library Thursdays

Fall films for youngsters at the Palatine Library have been scheduled for Thursdays at 4 p.m. through October.

Showings for school-age children include:

Thursday: "The Golden Fish" and "A Cat is a Cat."

Sept. 20: "Dragon Stew" and "The Fire Flowers of Yot Sing Low."

Sept. 27: "1970 American League Highlights" and "Casey at the Bat."

Oct. 4: "The Crane's Magic Gift" and "The Wave: a Japanese Folk Tale."

Oct. 11: "The Thieving Magpie," "Notes on a Triangle" and "The Great Toy Robbery."

Oct. 18: "J. T."

Oct. 25: "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and "The Groom."

A film program for preschoolers will be shown at 10:30 a.m. Oct. 5.

THE CLIMB TO THE TOP can be fun when the pinnacle means the start of a run down the slide. The slide was one of the nicer attractions for these children yesterday on the first day of pre-school at the Salt Creek Park District. Classes for the 4-year-olds run through May 31, 1974.

Oktober Fest slated downtown Sept. 21, 22

An old-fashioned Oktober Fest celebration will be staged in downtown Palatine Sept. 21 and 22.

A German band will be on hand for street dancing in the municipal parking lot at Palatine Road and Broadway Street and bratwurst and beer will be available.

Discussion tomorrow on school annexation

The annexation of Palatine Hills Junior High School to the Village of Palatine will be discussed tomorrow at 6:45 p.m. at a committee of the whole meeting of the School Dist. 15 Board of Education.

Mayor Wendell Jones and several village trustees are expected to be at the meeting at the E. S. Castor Administration Building, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine. The school at 1100 N. Smith St. is in unincorporated Palatine Township.

DR. STANLEY Zydlo, head of the paramedic program at the hospital, said doctors determined some time ago that the surgery would be necessary. He said Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital is one of several Chicago area hospitals equipped to perform the special surgical technique which was required.

The spokesman for Presbyterian-St. Luke's said the surgery could have been performed Saturday, but a supply of type O negative blood, Fogarty's type, had to be stocked for the surgery. The blood was supplied by the Chicago Police Department, the spokesman said.

Fogarty could be hospitalized from three to six weeks following the surgery, the spokesman said.

DR. ZYDLO, Barbara Lyons, a Mobile Intensive Care nurse at Northwest, and Rolling Meadows fireman William Schmidt and Lt. Roger Mueller transported Fogarty to the Chicago hospital Saturday. Mueller said the Buffalo Grove fire department ambulance was used to transport Fogarty because it is larger than the Rolling Meadows unit.

"We had made prearrangements with the hospital to take the chief," Mueller said. Mueller said Fogarty was taken to the hospital Saturday morning and was in good condition throughout the trip.

FOGARTY'S condition during the ride to the hospital was monitored contin-

Great Books sessions planned at library

Great Books discussions are being organized for the second season this fall at the Palatine Library. Area residents may register for the discussions through Sept. 19.

Registration fees are $12 per person to cover the cost of buying the books used in the discussions. People interested in the sessions may register by calling Mrs. Jane Trimborn at the library, 358-5681.

The Great Books program involves group discussions every two or three weeks and will center on man's values this season. Sixteen selections include writings by Aristotle, Shakespeare and Freud.

No particular educational background is necessary to participate in the discussions. Mrs. Cay Noble and Norbert Frellag are co-leaders of the discussions, which will begin in mid-October.

uously by Northwest Community Hospital, according to Dr. Zydlo.

Fogarty had been in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital for some time following the heart attack. He was reported doing well but was not allowed to take phone calls or have visitors.

Fogarty has been a fireman in Rolling Meadows for 17 years, including the last 15 years as chief. He had been one of the principal organizers of the Northwest suburban paramedic program, which began last fall.

In Fogarty's absence, Lt. Ted Loesch has been appointed acting fire chief by Mayor Roland Meyer.

MARTIN MULL (Con't.) Remember last week that his column reported on an article in Rolling Stone newspaper about the infamous Martin Mull's visit to Palatine last month? The paper referred to the Palatine village president, Wendell Jones, as looking "a little like a badly frightened Arnold Palmer." Jones just laughed when told of the reference, but one associate was confused: "I don't think he even golfs."

Adult film study to begin at library

A new film study program begins Friday at the Palatine Public Library for adults.

Ron Johnson, film studies teacher at Rolling Meadows High School, will head discussions on current and past films. Film titles are available at the library, 149 N. Broadway St., and the Salt Creek Park District, 530 S. Williams Ave., co-sponsors of the program.

Registration for the free film study is being taken now at the library. Sessions will continue through May 10.

Chief Fogarty in good shape after surgery

Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty was reported in good condition yesterday at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago following open heart surgery Sunday.

Fogarty, who suffered a near-fatal heart attack last month and was saved by Rolling Meadows fire department paramedics, underwent five hours of open heart surgery Sunday performed by a team of the hospital's cardiovascular specialists. Doctors performed a coronary vein bypass in which a vein from the leg was transplanted into the heart, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Fogarty, 51, was in good condition following the surgery.

The veteran fire chief was stricken Aug. 16 at his home. A team of paramedics rushed to Fogarty's home and administered electric shock treatment and intravenous medication to revive Fogarty. Doctors at Northwest Community Hospital have credited the paramedics with saving the chief's life.

DR. STANLEY Zydlow, head of the paramedic program at the hospital, said doctors determined some time ago that the surgery would be necessary. He said Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital is one of several Chicago area hospitals equipped to perform the special surgical technique which was required.

The spokesman for Presbyterian-St. Luke's said the surgery could have been performed Saturday, but a supply of type O negative blood, Fogarty's type, had to be stocked for the surgery. The blood was supplied by the Chicago Police Department, the spokesman said.

Fogarty could be hospitalized from three to six weeks following the surgery, the spokesman said.

DR. ZYDLO, Barbara Lyons, a Mobile Intensive Care nurse at Northwest, and Rolling Meadows firemen William Schmidt and Lt. Roger Mueller transported Fogarty to the Chicago hospital Saturday. Mueller said the Buffalo Grove fire department ambulance was used to transport Fogarty because it is larger than the Rolling Meadows unit.

"We had made prearrangements with the hospital to take the chief," Mueller said. Mueller said Fogarty was taken to the hospital Saturday morning and was in good condition throughout the trip.

FOGARTY'S condition during the ride to the hospital was monitored continuously by Northwest Community Hospital, according to Dr. Zydlow.

Fogarty had been in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital for some time following the heart attack. He was reported doing well but was not allowed to take phone calls or have visitors.

Fogarty has been a fireman in Rolling Meadows for 17 years, including the last 15 years as chief. He had been one of the principal organizers of the Northwest suburban paramedic program, which began last fall.

In Fogarty's absence, Lt. Ted Loesch has been appointed acting fire chief by Mayor Roland Meyer.

Westbury developer evades questions about land use

Present zoning on the 497-acre defunct Howie-In-the-Hills subdivision in Hoffman Estates "was a bad case of crystal-balling," said Don Kirk, president of Meridian Housing Corp.

Before a joint panel of the zoning board of appeals and plan commission members Kirk would not make promises or give predictions on the style of housing, particular landscaping plans or land use plans for the development he hopes to build on the Howie site.

Meridian developers are being heard in a week-long series of public hearings that are drawing residents from areas surrounding the Palatine Township site. At one point Tuesday there were as many as 50 persons present.

The petitioner is seeking a new zoning not now available in Hoffman Estates. Present residential zoning would allow 3,908 dwelling units on the property, located north of Northwest Tollway. Meridian's development plan calls for 4,472 units.

The panel's questions centered on Meridian's reputation as a builder. Kirk said the firm has built in other states but when asked how big the firm is, he said,

"I don't know."

He will, however, present annual reports and promotional literature at a later date.

Kirk assured the panel Meridian plans to develop Westbury, the Howie development's new name, as a total community with open space and mixed land use. He said he is petitioning for a new zoning category to make the development "better."

Meridian does not plan to sell a portion of the property to other developers.

"Premature" was the response that Kirk gave in answer to questions about housing styles, landscaping, land plan use, exact location of school sites and pedestrian patterns.

"It would be another case of using a crystal ball, something we don't plan to do, although we would like to start this development next spring. It would be 10 years' building and we will not predict housing trends or needs that far ahead," he explained.

The hearing will be continued tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Hoffman Estates High School, with village experts presenting testimony and statements.

Two agencies to get revenue funds

Two area social service agencies were added last night to the roster of projects receiving money from Palatine Township federal revenue sharing funds.

Township auditors voted unanimously to give $4,500 to the Northwest Opportunity Center and $6,500 to the Northwest Mental Health Clinic.

Federal revenue sharing is a program set up to distribute some of the federal government's income to state and local governments for various projects.

Palatine Township has received $73,500 to date in the five-year program now in its first year. Auditors have previously approved partial or total funding for the Community Child Care Center, Palatine Township Council for the Aging and the Palatine Township Highway Department for a water pump and power rod.

The $4,500 allotted to the Northwest Opportunity Center is designed to cover part of the cost of the center's services to township residents. The center provides a variety of services to the poor in a seven-township area. Its current need for local funds resulted from a 50 per cent cutback in federal funding, leaving the center with approximately a $31,000 deficit, according to Director Bruce Newton.

Money promised to the center last night is intended to cover expenses through March 31, 1974, the end of the agency's fiscal year. Additional funding will be considered next spring.

The Northwest Mental Health Clinic will receive $6,500 from Palatine Township to help alleviate an anticipated $43,000 deficit in the clinic's budget. That shortage is caused by a $40,000 cutback in funds from the Illinois Department of Mental Health this year.

The clinic, which provides psychiatric and mental health counseling, has cut two psychiatrists from its staff because of lack of funds. Its 1973-74 budget is $255,900.

At their Sept. 24 meeting, township auditors plan to discuss possible funds for the Clearbrook Center for retarded adults, Countryside School for the Handi-

2nd hearing for accused slayer

Accused murderer Israel Pequeno, 18, will appear in Cook County Criminal Court Friday in another pretrial round in connection with the shooting slaying of 17-year-old Sharon Soyka of Rolling Meadows.

The court action, ordered July 27 by Judge Benjamin Mackoff at the request of Pequeno's attorney, will be without witnesses, according to spokesmen for the state's attorney's office. The court action will allow Pequeno's attorney, P. A. Smith, to file discovery motions in answer to state's attorney's motions filed several months ago as part of the pre-trial actions in the case.

Pequeno's attorney has asked for two continuances to date in the pretrial rounds, and a spokesman for the state's attorney's office, which is prosecuting the case, said a courtroom trial may not begin until next year.

Pequeno, of 503 W. Wood St., Palatine, is being held without bond in Cook County Jail for the murder of his girlfriend, Miss Soyka, 3717 Oriole Ln. The girl was found shot to death March 26 in her home. Police said Pequeno allegedly shot the girl after she quarreled with him about not wanting to date him anymore.

The youth has been found competent to stand trial, according to the state's attorney's office, but his attorney has not yet formally requested a jury trial. The spokesman said a number of other murder cases are also awaiting trial and those would probably be heard before Pequeno's case is set.

Imagine that

Virtually anonymous Civil Air Patrol provides area with numerous opportunities—at a minimal cost

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Imagine a local organization which provides members with the opportunity for flying lessons and aerospace education, campouts, leadership training and more, all at minimal cost.

The Civil Air Patrol (CAP) does all of this. Yet considering the lack of public awareness of the organization, it might as well be imaginary, according to Capt. James Houchens, a CAP commander. He would like to see the situation change.

CAP's long-standing place in American history should, by rights, make it better known to the public. Founded in 1941 as a civilian volunteer auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force, CAP members flew famous air search and rescue missions during World War II.

Since the war, CAP has continued to provide emergency air search and rescue assistance. In addition, the organization has added an aerospace education function which extends to adults and youngsters.

IT IS THE CAP cadet program which is most active in the Northwest suburban area. By missing out on what the CAP cadet program has to offer, area youngsters, who wistfully dream of one day learning to fly, may be missing an invaluable opportunity.

It takes Houchens, who is the commander of the Wheeling Cadet squadron, a few minutes to describe all the activities which the program includes.

"If you took the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Civil Defense workers all rolled into one and made them aerospace nuts, that's what CAP is," he said.

The Wheeling squadron, which presently includes 16 cadets and three adults, meets at 8 p.m. every Monday at Wheeling High School. These meetings concentrate on aerospace education and leadership training.

ACCORDING to Houchens, a typical meeting includes classroom instruction on flying and some concentration on leadership training, through drills, guest lecturers, or classroom material.

The squadron also offers a range of activities, besides the Monday meetings, in which most cadets participate. These activities include orientation flights, which give cadets their first real taste of flying.

The flights are conducted by qualified instructors as a regular program. After an introductory flight successive flights acquaint cadets with landing and take-off procedures, stalls, turns and other maneuvers. Finally, the more sophisticated aspects of flying such as cross-country and radio procedures are taught to the cadets.

The cost to cadets is normally around $2 for each such orientation flight, Houchens said. This pays for gas expenses.

Other regular activities are camping and other scouting-type activities held on weekends, and a course on basic electronics and radio procedures.

FOR CADETS who are serious about learning to fly, the squadron also provides the opportunity for actual flight training. CAP owns a Cessna 150 trainer plane housed at Chicago's Midway Airport which cadets can use for flight lessons.

While flight lessons are expensive, cadets can achieve their private pilot's license for around $500, Houchens said. Normally, a license would cost more than $1,000, he said.

Beyond the regular activities sponsored by the squadron, cadets also may choose to participate in several special activities.

Every year CAP sponsors one- to two-week training camps at Air Force bases, which cost about $40. Although the sessions cover a variety of subjects, the most popular session is the survival course, Houchens said. In it, cadets are given survival training similar to that which the Army Green Berets receive.

CAP ALSO sponsors an International Air Cadet Exchange program which involves summer trips to a foreign country in Europe, the Near East, Central or South America and Southeast Asia.

Finally, CAP annually offers around $41,000 in college scholarships to deserving cadets. While the scholarships are not restricted to military schools, they are science- and engineering-oriented. In addition, CAP also offers scholarships to help defer the costs of flight training.

While Houchens said CAP "is trying to build leadership qualities and does have some military flavor attached to it," he stressed that CAP is a civilian organization. It is entirely privately-funded and membership has no effect on military status.

WHILE MOST cadets wear uniforms, the uniforms are not mandatory. Also, long hair need not prevent an interested youngster from joining, Houchens said.

In order to join the cadet program, a boy or girl must be between 13 and 18 years old, single, in school and a U.S. citizen. The Wheeling cadet squadron includes communities within a five-mile radius of Wheeling High School, excluding Lake County.

Adults wishing to join CAP must be over 18 and a U.S. citizen.

Annual dues are $8 for cadets, while adults must pay a $26 initiation fee, after which time dues are $21 per year.

Anyone interested in finding out more about CAP is encouraged to attend one of the regular Monday night squadron meetings, Houchens said. Further information also can be obtained by calling Houchens at 359-6408 or 965-4700 or by writing to CAP, P.O. Box 372, Wheeling, 60090.

Iceman Lund guards past, but 25-year business melting

by JOHN MAES

As you approach the Lund ice house you may see only Charles Lund placing bags of ice into the cooler as he and his brothers have done for many years and as his father had done since before the turn of the century.

Or you may see Lund, chomping on a cigar, sitting in the old leather chair with upholstery ravaged by time and wear, inside the dusty office, waiting for a customer to pull up and buy a bag or block of ice.

But if you look closely at Lund, 67, and the 40-year-old ice house located at Oakton and Center streets, you may see vestiges and remnants of an American tradition encapsulated within the structure in a rather unique stoppage of time.

The saga that can be seen is that of the old-time iceman—a story which reaches well back into the 1800s but began to melt away in the 1930s as inevitably as the product the iceman delivered.

And it was this slice of yesteryear that has been a way of life to two generations of the Lund family. Lund, who first remembers driving a horse-drawn ice wagon at the age of nine, would travel all over Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village delivering ice. He opened the Des Plaines ice house in 1925.

He was the man who would weigh the great blocks on the hanging scale on the rear of the wagon, sling the block with giant tongs over his shoulder (guarded by a piece of burlap) and carry it into a house to put in the top of an ice box.

Lund, his brothers and father Otto, who died four years ago at 90, delivered countless tons of ice per day to area homes and businesses.

IN THOSE DAYS, he remembers, the business operated out of their first Des Plaines ice house next door to the Lund home, a space which is now occupied by a parking lot next to Romano's Restaurant.

The current icehouse, opened in the early 1930s, is only yards from the site of the first.

Much of the ice would come to Des Plaines by horsecart from Otto Lund's ice house on Chicago's West Side.

"We used to bring three loads of two tons of ice here each day by horse cart," Lund said.

The Lunds never manufactured their own ice but bought most of it from the Jefferson Ice Co., in Chicago. In winter months, they, and many other icemen, would "harvest" ice from frozen over Illinois lakes by cutting out huge blocks with axes and saws. Some of the harvested iceblocks weighed as much as 400 pounds.

"Depending on the weather," he said, "we could take in $200 worth of ice a week." He added icemen in the 1920s were paid by what they delivered.

Then also, a 25-pound block of ice cost 25 cents. The same size block would cost 60 cents today, he said.

Another Lund ice company specialty was providing ice for "butcher boxes," or large meat freezers used mostly in restaurants and butcher shops.

THIS ARDUOUS task required the brawn of several men who would lift mammoth blocks of ice to the top of the freezer. "Sometimes we would fill those things with five tons of ice, come back a week later and fill it again."

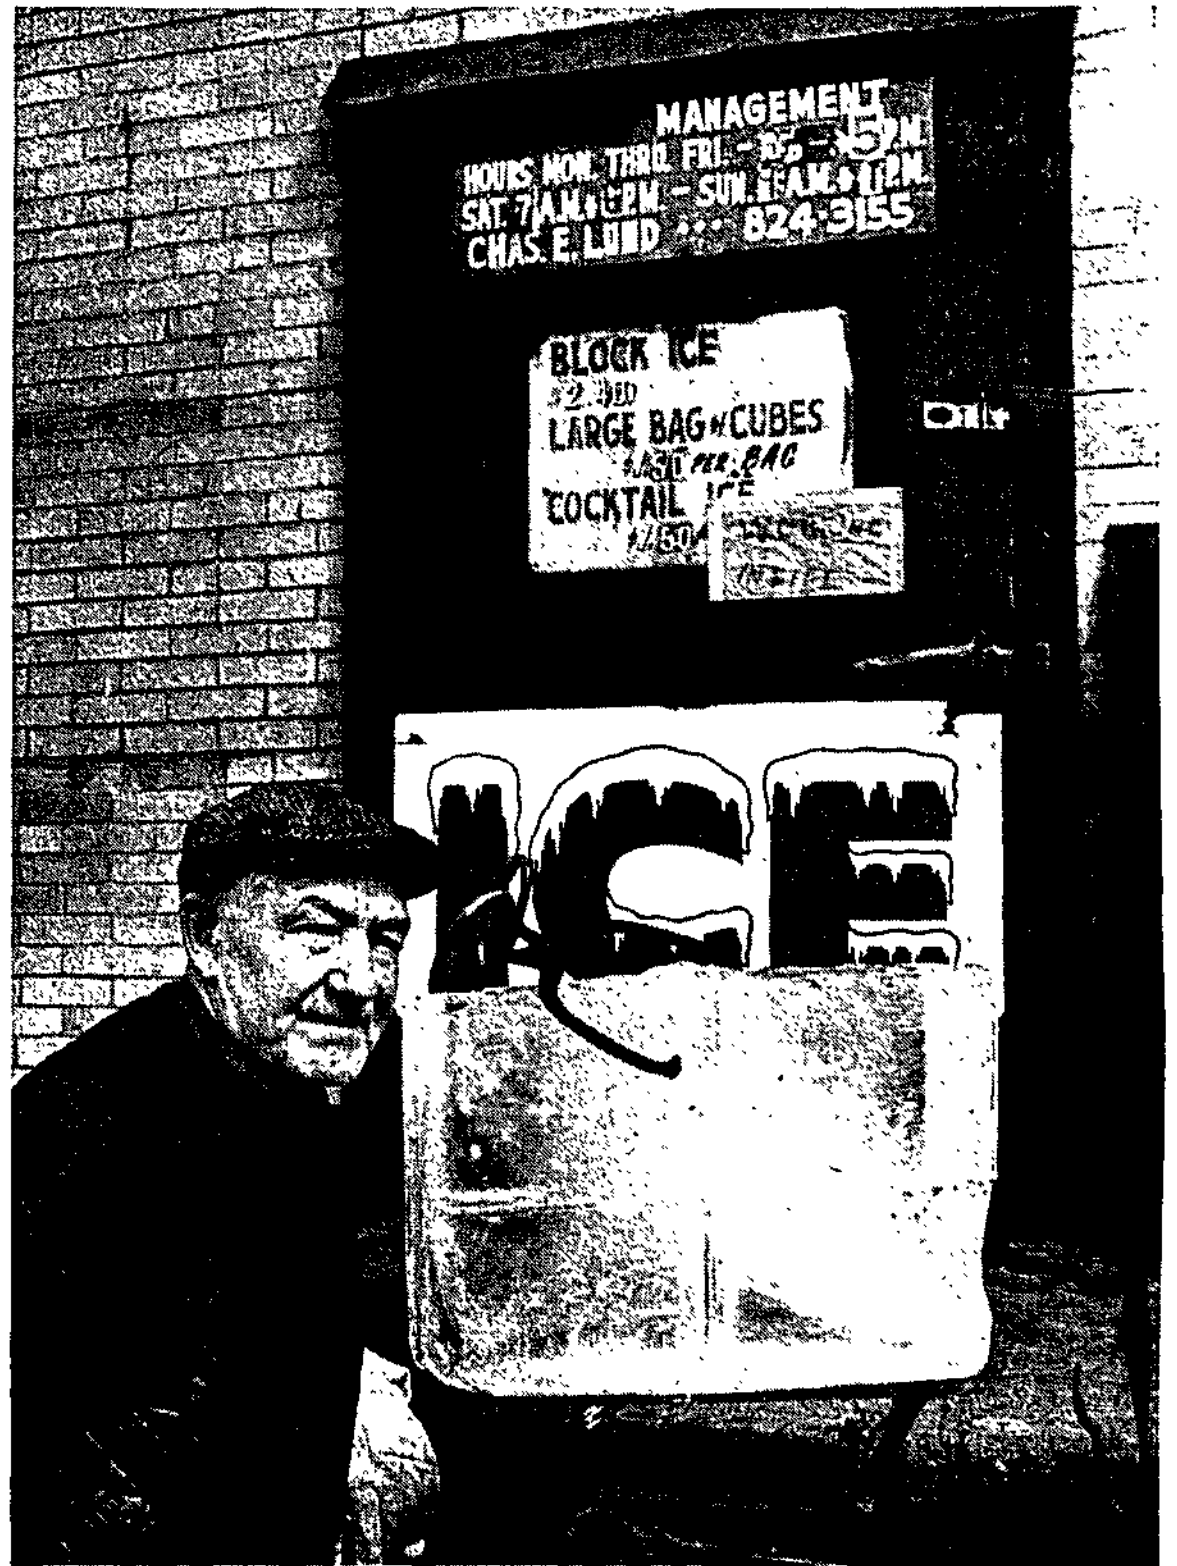

But the passage of time and, of course, the refrigerator ended the legend of the old-time iceman. For Charles Lund, the business still thrives.

No longer does he drive the horse cart delivering tons of ice blocks covered with slough hay to delay the melting process. "Now business is all cash and carry. It's been that way for years," he said.

Now Lund can sit in his office and watch as customers fumble through their pockets for change trying to decide whether to buy ice cubes, chips or blocks from the vending machines outside the ice house.

Lund spends only about four or five hours each day in the icehouse. When he is not there, his brother Harold, 62, who also worked many years in the family business, tends to the store.

When not stacking shipments in the cooler or helping a customer load the bags into his car Lund "just sits there." "There's no more big customers," he said, "but we never close."

CHARLES LUND keeps his family ice business alive by running the Lund Ice House, near Center and Oakton Streets in Des Plaines. Lund, 67, has been an iceman since the days of the horsedrawn ice wagon, when he would deliver huge blocks of ice to area residents.

Charge attempted murder in pharmacy stickup try

A local man was charged with attempted murder and attempted armed robbery late yesterday afternoon after police said he tried to rob a Des Plaines pharmacy but fled after exchanging gunshots with a druggist.

Wayne Imwood, 21, of 3960 Welwyn Ave., Des Plaines, was arrested about 30 minutes after the attempted holdup of the Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, yesterday morning.

Police refused to release details of the arrest but said that Imwood matched descriptions of the gunman. Des Plaines Det. Al Freitag also said there was "certain physical evidence" linking Imwood to the incident.

POLICE ARE investigating a link between Imwood and two previous armed holdups at the pharmacy last August, but declined to say yesterday whether he would be charged with the robberies.

No one was injured in the shootout which occurred when police said a man entered the store and announced the holdup at gunpoint. The druggist, whom police refused to identify, also drew a pistol and fired two shots at the bandit.

Police said the would-be robber returned shots and fled the store. An unidentified postman told police he heard the gunfire, and saw a man wearing a plaid shirt and baseball hat run from the store. The postman ran to a telephone and notified police.

A search later turned up a stocking mask reported to have been worn by the robber.

In an Aug. 20 holdup, a robber also clad in a plaid shirt and stocking mask fled the store after taking two bottles of an unidentified drug and tying up druggist Frank Altmeier and a customer.

The store was held up less than a week later at gunpoint by a man who demanded an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood had been scheduled for trial Oct. 9 in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago on another count of armed robbery dating back to last July when he allegedly held up the Hynes Pharmacy in Des Plaines.

Imwood is being held by Des Plaines police on a total of $30,000 bond pending a hearing in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Thursday.

Scout leaders to meet

Girl Scout Leaders Service Unit 531 will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Church of Rolling Meadows, Kirchhoff and Meadow Drive.

Police seek hit-and-run driver's identity

Rolling Meadows police are looking for a man they believe may know the identity of a hit-and-run driver who struck a small sports car Friday night on Algonquin Road, injuring two persons.

The accident occurred at about 8 p.m. on Algonquin just west of Algonquin Parkway. Police said the hit-and-run driver was involved in another minor traffic accident moments before the hit-and-run. Witnesses said the hit-and-run driver was apparently fleeing the scene of the first accident when he struck a car being driven by David Littlefield, 30, of 444 Wilke Rd., Palatine.

Littlefield and his wife Sarah, 30, were injured as their small auto was flung on its side at impact. Police said Mrs. Littlefield was thrown from the car and was

Hearing tomorrow on Dist. 15 budget

A public hearing on the 1973-74 proposed budget for Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the E. S. Caster Administration Center in Palatine.

The proposed budget totals $15,724,833, an increase of nearly 18 per cent in operating expenses. Despite the budget increase, district officials do not expect an increase in the tax rate.

The board of education is expected to adopt the budget at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. following the public hearing.

lying in the street when they arrived.

However, neither of the Littlefields was injured seriously. They were treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital.

WITNESSES TOLD police that the hit-and-run driver's 1973 Ford Torino was traveling westbound on Algonquin near the Southland Shopping Center when it first struck the rear of an older model Buick. The two drivers got out of their cars, spoke for several moments and then returned to their cars apparently to move to the side of the road, witnesses told police.

When the driver of the Buick pulled to the side, witnesses told police the hit-and-run driver sped away, striking the Littlefield car and then fleeing.

Police are looking for the driver of the Buick. Traffic Supervisor Andrew Herbert said police hope the man can help identify the hit-and-run driver.

Herbert said persons who have information either on the accident or the identity of either driver should contact him at the police department.

What's new at library

BEF PRICES will go up and fluctuate, but they'll level off close to where they were during the freeze, according to retailers.

Despite lift on price freeze

Area groceries, restaurants haven't raised beef prices

by the Herald staff

The price freeze on beef was lifted yesterday but many local grocery stores, butcher shops and restaurants did not hike prices as expected.

Retailers predicted that consumers probably will be faced with new meat prices at the end of the week or early next week. What the new prices will be is uncertain at this time, although most retailers said that increase would probably be marginal.

Any new prices would be determined by the end of the week, according to a spokesman for Dominick's Food Store. He predicted that there will be an up-surge and then a leveling off of beef prices.

William Newby, director of public relations for the Jewel Tea company in Melrose Park, said that they expect prices to increase, but not by much.

"Retail prices will reflect the wholesaler prices," said Newby. "We do expect the possibility of an increase later this week."

"ACTUALLY, THE price increase will be up to the people," said Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights. "It's the simple law of supply and demand. The farmer knows how much to rush to the stores."

Alfred Kruth, the meat manager of Jay's Quality Meats, Arlington Heights, agreed.

"The old theory of supply and demand will take care of itself," he said. "If people do not panic and buy only what they need, then it will all work out."

"We're basically a beef-eating nation and if it's within reasonable price it'll compel them to buy beef," said Kruth.

Most retailers, supermarkets and local meat markets predicted that prices are likely to fluctuate before leveling off.

"Packers and wholesalers will be getting back into operation and making adjustments after being laid off because of the beef price ceiling," said Newby. "In the long run, the prices would be fairly close to the price on beef now."

PRICES WON'T skyrocket either, like pork, veal and poultry prices did when the ceiling was lifted on those items, retailers contend.

"The current price is close to what's reasonable for the consumer to pay," Newby said.

Kruth said customers were accustomed to pay higher prices. "But they'll back away from items that go up, let's say, from $2.69 to $2.99 a pound. They'll turn to the item that is cheaper, like chicken

Largest district outside Chicago

School district enrollment shows 7.2 per cent increase

A record enrollment of 13,587 students this year is keeping Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 the largest elementary school district in Cook County outside Chicago.

The figure, a 1,049 increase over last September, represents a 7.2 per cent increase.

"We are well on the way to the anticipated 40,000 students the district could hold at full development," said Donnie Rudd, school board president.

"For the next several years we think we will have to provide a new classroom every six to seven days if anticipated increases in enrollment go as projected," Rudd said.

THE STEADY increase in enrollment went down this year from last school year's 8 per cent increase. The biggest jump in enrollment, 948 students, came in the summer months, with 161 new students enrolled during the school year.

Dist. 54 eliminated double shifts of students in 1971 and has not had to resort to that measure in any school this year.

Milton Derr, associate superintendent, said development in the Elk Grove portion of the district could "clobber us."

He said Centex builders are readying many houses for fall occupancy and this could greatly change the enrollment totals.

The district's master plan calls for at least 11 more schools to be built. The district now has 24.

ALTHOUGH ITS master plan calls for all neighborhood schools and little if any busing, the district is transporting approximately 5,000 students this year.

Kindergartners and junior high school students make up the bulk of bused students with 1,000 parochial students being transported to parish schools at district expense.

Ronald Ruble, assistant superintendent-transportation, said opening of Eisenhower Junior High School eliminated busing of many students from the north end of the district.

Schaumburg woman, 20, suicide

A Schaumburg woman shot and killed herself yesterday morning in the Arlington Heights apartment of her friend, a Schaumburg policeman.

According to a spokesman for Northwest Community Hospital, Susan Shufelt died shortly after noon from a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the chest. Miss Shufelt was taken to the hospital by Arlington Heights Fire Department ambulance after the incident.

Police said Miss Shufelt, 20, of 1305

Concord, Schaumburg, was visiting Greg J. Grot, 26, at his apartment, 2175-B S. Toney Rd., Monday morning. She reportedly asked Grot if she could use the bedroom telephone. Grot told police he heard the shot minutes later.

She apparently shot herself once in the left side of the chest with Grot's service revolver, police said. She was breathing with the aid of emergency oxygen equipment when she was taken to the hospital about 11:45 a.m. Doctors at the hospital pronounced her dead at 12:05 p.m.

$15 million budget adopted by schools

A $15 million budget, a $3 million anticipated increase in spending above last year's budget, was adopted by the Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Although operating expenses are higher in all funds, taxpayers can expect an approximate $5 tax decrease.

Marvin Lapicola, assistant superintendent finance, said the district's total assessed valuation has jumped from $208 million last year to the district's present estimated $222 million assessed valuation.

He explained that tax reductions are usually the result of a tax rate drop. "This has not happened. The tax rate remains at $2.77 per $100 assessed valuation, but with the greater increase in total assessed valuation taxpayers pay less because more people are paying," he said.

Cowboys Rodeo is a-comin'

Tickets are available for the Schaumburg Cowboys Rodeo Sept. 21-23 at the DuPage County Fairgrounds, Wheaton.

Tickets may be purchased at the Woodfield Bank, Schaumburg State Bank and the First State Bank of Hanover Park. They will cost $2.25 each for adults and $1.25 for youngsters 3 to 16 years old. Family tickets will be on sale for $7.50. For ticket delivery, call Bob Pratt at 894-7458.

Six main events will be held, and professional cowboys will be participating in the rodeo, which is sanctioned by the International Rodeo Assn.

Entry fees will be $20 for each event. The events are saddle-bronc riding, bareback bronc riding, brahma bull riding, steer wrestling, calf-roping and barrel-racing.

The proceeds from the rodeo will go to the Schaumburg branch of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital.

Pratt said he did not know if nationally-known figures would attend, but added that actor Hugh O'Brien had purchased the first ticket.

Miss Schaumburg Cowboy will reign over the three-day festivities.

The queen will be picked at a contest Sept. 7 in the Great Hall, Schaumburg. The contestants who must be between 13 and 17 years old, will be judged on personality, community involvement and a 100-word essay about youth programs. The winner will receive a $50 savings bond, and an outfit of clothes.

Levitt project decision tonight

The future of Levitt and Sons' proposed Strathmore Schaumburg development will be decided when the Village Board meets tonight.

The development calls for 530 single-family homes on a 184-acre parcel formerly known as the Gray Farm. The land fronts on Bode and Schaumburg roads approximately one-half mile east of Barrington Road and adjoins the existing Levitt Sheffield Park developments.

Last month the Zoning Board of Appeals recommended denial of the requested zoning and annexation chiefly because the builder seeks permission to construct homes on lots smaller than the 10,000 square foot minimum size allowed in Schaumburg.

Levitt proposes to develop the new homes on lots averaging 7,400 square feet with a minimum lot size of 6,500.

Plans call for 55 acres of open space in the development and Levitt has also agreed to donate a 10-acre site to Elementary School Dist. 54 and three acres to Schaumburg Park District.

Trustees postponed action on the development two weeks ago in the absence of Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel. The village board meets 8 p.m. at Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

THE FLAP OF A CHECKBOOK transformed Bill Bibb from the mere president of a homeowners' association to St. William of Knightsbridge and benefactor of builder Nick Herman last week.

Actually, it is the story of a successful chemicals salesman who gave up formal employment several months ago to supervise his own personal investments. Bibb contends he has made a great sum of money in the commodities market recently and can no longer spare time to peddle. So, in the meantime, he has been looking after his portfolio and serving as Knightsbridge homeowner's association chief.

But all of that changed last week when he suddenly decided to transmute "fluid cash" into the ailing Knightsbridge Corp.

Using about $100,000 of his personal assets, Bibb began to breathe new life into Herman's firm.

Residents of the subdivision were dumbfounded when the news spread. Their reactions are mixed. On one hand, owners are relieved that possibilities of completing the custom area have been renewed. Yet, they are apprehensive about the quality of pre-structured components Bibb and Herman plan to use in 57 new homes planned for the area. They are also confused about the lightning speed in which the partnership between Bill and Nick materialized.

The village was surprised as well. But town officials have made it clear that all they want is action in Knightsbridge.

Realistically, that action could result in a shrine for St. William which might not be objectionable as long as the subdivision is finished.

DIST. 54 HASN'T lost its marbles but has begun a button search. Elementary school officials are not out hunting just any old buttons, though.

They are looking for the "I like Ike" variety used in '52 and '56 national election campaigns for the Oct. 28 dedication of Dwight David Eisenhower Junior High School. David Eisenhower, grandson of the late president, will be guest of honor at the celebration.

PARENTS ATTENDING the Dist. 54 board meeting last week were appalled at the lack of consideration shown for school matters when board members engaged in a more than two-hour debate over parliamentary procedure. Maybe the board should review Roberts Rules of Order in order to cut down on future debate of that type.

Two youths arrested for paint sniffing

A Schaumburg youth and a Mount Prospect youth were arrested late Saturday after Des Plaines police said they had been sniffing paint in a car and tried to flee police.

According to reports, Vito Baldimelli, 20, of 501 Brockton Ln., Schaumburg, and Richard Mascarella, 19, of 141 Bonnie Brea Ln., Mount Prospect, were seen by Patrolman Stanley Stack in a car on the rear access road of the Maryville Academy shortly after midnight.

Upon seeing the squad car, the pair drove off and led police in a high speed chase down Morrison to Lee Street and turned on Brookfield Avenue where they abandoned the car and tried to elude police on foot.

Police said during the north side chase, the two narrowly missed striking two pedestrians and several minbike riders. The two were apprehended by officers from the Cook County Sheriff's Police who had been alerted to the incident by radio.

POLICE SAID a bag, containing a can of spray paint, which had been set up to sniff paint from, was found at the spot where the pair tried to elude police. A second can of paint was found inside the car which the two young men had abandoned during the chase.

Baldimelli was charged with sniffing an intoxicating compound, reckless driving and attempting to elude police. Mascarella was charged with sniffing an intoxicating compound.

Baldimelli was released after posting a $1,000 bond, while the other youth posted a bond of $500. Both will appear in court at Des Plaines on Oct. 18.

HOFFMAN ESTATES SCHAUMBURG

Mayor to address LWV

Mayor Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates will speak about "Women in Politics" at the Sept. 28, meeting of the Des Plaines League of Women Voters.

The meeting will be held 11:30 a.m. at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee St., Des Plaines. Also appearing will be Rep. Eugenia Chapman, (D-3rd) and two Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees, Joan Anderson and Jeanne Alter.

Mayor Hayter, resolution committee member of the Municipal League Conference, will attend the organization's annual meeting Sept. 14-17.

New Lions president

Roger Woolman was seated as new president of the Hoffman Estates Lions Club last night during the group's meeting at Gullaby's restaurant, Schaumburg.

Other new officers are Eugene Re, first vice president; Phillip Gibbs, second vice president, and Willis Cayez, third vice president. Also seated were Joe Valentini, treasurer; Richard Horger, secretary; Jack Reedy, tall twister, and Tom Rardin, Lion tamer.

The club, active in help to the blind, meets the second and fourth Monday of the month. For information, call Gene Re at 882-3403.

Cheerleaders rated high

Members of the Varsity Wrestling Cheerleading Squad at Conant High School recently received high ratings after a week of intensive study at the Red Bird Cheerleader School.

The program is held at Illinois State University, Normal, and more than 2,000 high school cheerleaders participate.

Girls from the Conant squad included Joy Abbott, Maggie McCormack, Liz Burton and Bonnie Rucks.

Township center may benefit

Mental health tax: security

by BOB GALLAS

The future of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center looks secure, thanks to Illinois House Bill 231, signed into law recently by Gov. Daniel Walker. The bill allows townships to tax for mental health.

Although the mental health center is adequately funded at the present time, according to Jordan Rosen, executive director of the center, the ability to receive tax money means a more secure future.

"Right now," said Rosen, "we're relying on several different agencies for support and also federal revenue sharing funds. The amount we receive from these agencies naturally varies from year to year and you can't always count on getting revenue sharing funds."

"That means you really can't do any long-range planning, since you're not sure how much money you'll have to work with."

ROSEN IS THE man mainly responsible for drumming up necessary funds every year. If his efforts are fairly successful, such as this year, the mental health center can operate normally and even expand to meet the rising demands of the community with new programs and more counselors.

It hasn't been decided yet, and won't be for some time, whether or not Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships will tax for mental health. That decision won't be made until budget hearings this spring.

If the funds are needed, Rosen feels there will be no problem. "I'm quite confident we'll be able to work together with the township officials," Rosen said. "They've been fantastic in the past, very sensitive to the mental health needs of their community."

ONE OF ROSEN'S main priorities, if extra funds are available, is to establish community education programs in mental health, something that is already getting started on a limited scale.

The mental health center will be adding an addition to its present facility next to Aloxlan Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. As soon as the addition is finished, several new staff members will be added. One of the new staff members will work at least part of the time in community education, talking to PTA's, church groups and interested groups on various aspects of mental health, according to Rosen.

Another project Rosen would like to establish is a day hospital for people who don't need to stay in the hospital 24 hours a day, but who do need some kind of therapy. The patient could come in during the day for therapy and/or counseling, and return home in the evenings.

Still another program that could be started, according to Rosen, are more "outposts," such as the one getting started in Hoffman Estates. Counselors are made available at the outposts, making it more convenient for people to take advantage of the services offered by the mental health center.

Ambulance tax rate: doubt maximum

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Residents of Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District will have an opportunity to vote Oct. 13, on whether or not the district will be allowed to levy an ambulance tax. The Herald, today, reports on other fire districts where an ambulance tax is levied, and why the levy is made.)

by STIRLING MORITA

Ambulance tax rates levied in three northern Illinois fire protection districts have not come close to the maximum rate as allowed by state statute.

Of the three districts — Glenview Rural, Vernon and Long Grove — the Vernon Fire Protection District in Half Day had the highest ambulance tax rate, 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The maximum rate is 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

On Oct. 13, the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District will hold a referendum to decide whether the district will be allowed to institute an ambulance tax and be authorized to levy up to the maximum.

Gene Kelly, attorney for the district, has said $200,000 would be generated if the full rate were levied. However, he added that the maximum rate probably would not be needed. The rate is to be decided when the district approves its budget next spring.

THE EMERGENCY vehicle tax rate for Long Grove was about six cents per $100 assessed valuation, and it generated about $32,000 the first year. The Vernon district's rate produced about $68,000, and the Glenview rate of 7.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation brought in about $97,000.

If the maximum rate were levied in Hoffman Estates, an owner of a house valued at $30,000 would pay $75 in taxes.

Authorities in the Long Grove and Glenview districts asked for the tax to establish and maintain ambulance service, while the Vernon district needed the funds for maintaining an emergency service started in 1969.

The Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District has furnished free ambulance service since 1958, but district officials have said the high cost of equipment and maintenance and the institution of a paramedic program have been a heavy financial burden on the district.

THE INCREASING amount of ambulance calls have been cited as another reason for needed ambulance funds. Officials have indicated in a report for the proposed village takeover of the district that there is a need for a third ambulance when the third fire station is finished.

The Hoffman Estates district had 634 ambulance calls last year. Glenview had 270. Vernon 310 and Long Grove 121.

Fire Chief Ted Tarr of the Vernon district, which serves a 32-square-mile area with a population of about 16,000, said, "It got to be too costly. We needed money to operate an ambulance and pay the men to man the ambulance."

"It's hard to justify using the needed fire tax money for rescue work when we can tax for rescue service," Tarr said.

THE LONG GROVE Fire Protection District protects about an 18-square-mile area and about 8,000 people, and Glenview a nine-square-mile area and about 25,000 people. Hoffman Estates Fire Chief Carl Solke estimated his district to be about the same size as the Glenview district.

The Long Grove district also charges a $30 user's fee for the ambulance service to help defray costs. A volunteer fireman is paid $3 a call, and usually five or six volunteers are activated on an ambulance call.

George Spoerlein, president of the Long Grove district's board, said the growing number of calls and the long distance from the nearest private ambulance operator in Lake Zurich were the primary reasons for establishing the district's ambulance service.

"The first year is a rough year. You have to buy an ambulance," Spoerlein said. "I anticipate the tax rate will go down in the future."

"WHAT IS THE difference if the money is taken out of fire tax or ambulance tax? The money is needed."

The Glenview district has been using a rescue station wagon for emergency calls. A new ambulance will be purchased in December. Assistant Fire Chief Donald Long said, "It was a transportation problem. We can't do work on a person because there is not enough room in the wagon."

Hoffman names new prosecutor

The Hoffman Estates Village Board of Trustees reflected traditional Republican philosophy in the appointment of Richard N. Williams as village prosecutor last night.

Williams, 30, is a native of Ohio where he was the youngest political candidate in his county last year. He recently moved to 132 Braintree Dr., Schaumburg.

Williams won a 1972 state legislative primary election in Ohio but lost the general election by less than one per cent of the vote.

He is now employed as assistant general counsel for Northwestern University's Traffic Institute Division. His previous experience includes four years as full-time chief prosecutor of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, municipal court.

Williams is a graduate of Denison University, Granville, Ohio, and majored in government. He earned a juris doctor degree from the University of Akron in 1969.

WILLIAMS WILL serve as co-prosecutor along with village attorneys Ed Hoffer and Norman Samelson until another candidate can be found to fill one vacant prosecutor post, said mayor Virginia Hayter. The job is part-time, paying $150 a month.

Williams replaces William Stukas and Charles Zimmerman who were given village board permission to resign last month.

Trustees fired Stukas and Zimmerman Aug. 13 for what was termed "failure to perform their duties" but reconsidered when both attorneys protested and demanded village board review.

Stukas was an unsuccessful trustee candidate on the Civic Party ticket in April, opposing the village GOP which has held all board seats since 1969.

He accused the board of playing party politics in his termination because he refused to "kowtow" to Hoffman Estates Republicans.

Zimmerman is a member of the Palatine Township Board of Auditors.

Pact awarded for work on Busse Woods reservoir

The state has awarded a contract for the excavation work of the Busse Woods reservoir, but not at the price the contractor wanted.

Rossi Contractors, of Northlake, was awarded the $2.9 million contract for the work. Rossi, however, erred in submitting the bid for the work.

In the contract, Rossi had specified a cost of $1.08-per-cubic yard for the excavation. Reportedly the figure should have been $1.28 per cubic yard, a difference that would have increased the contract price by $500,000.

State officials awarded the contract on the basis of the $1.08-per-cubic yard cost. Even if the price had been $1.28-per-cubic yard, Rossi would still have been below the contract cost of the next lowest bidder.

Rossi officials could not be reached for comment yesterday on accepting the bid at the lower price. State officials said the letter of acceptance had been sent and it would be up to Rossi to fulfill the contract or forfeit.

THE EXCAVATION work is part of the state funding for the Upper Salt Creek watershed flood control program. The program, funded by local, state and federal money, would take nine years to complete and would reduce flooding on the creek by up to 90 per cent.

Local and state funding has already been committed for the project. Federal approval for about half the funds for the $24.5 million project is still pending. A congressional resolution must be passed to authorize federal money.

The Busse Woods reservoir, located in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, will be the largest of six structures to be built across the creek. The reservoir will create a 589-acre retention basin in the forest preserve.

When fully developed, the land around the basin will be a recreational area.

No date for the start of excavation work was specified, but excavation is to be finished by July 1. After the excavation, actual construction and other work would have to be done to finish the basin.

Correction

Timbercrest Builders in Schaumburg contributed $40,200 to Schaumburg Township School District 54 and is not in arrears of a contribution commitment in that amount as erroneously reported in Monday's Herald.

The developer owes the district $13,600 in contribution commitments and has made cash payment of $40,200, a portion of its total pledge commitment of $53,800.

Parents to meet staff of Campanelli tonight

The staff of Campanelli School 310 S. Springstuth Rd., Schaumburg, will be introduced to parents during the school's PTA meeting at 8 p.m. tonight.

An open house is planned for parents of first graders and the second grade mathematics curriculum will be explained.

BEF PRICES will go up and fluctuate, but they'll level off close to where they were during the freeze, according to retailers.

Despite lift on price freeze

Area groceries, restaurants haven't raised beef prices

by the Herald staff

The price freeze on beef was lifted yesterday but many local grocery stores, butcher shops and restaurants did not hike prices as expected.

Retailers predicted that consumers probably will be faced with new meat prices at the end of the week or early next week. What the new prices will be is uncertain at this time, although most retailers said that increase would probably be marginal.

New prices would be determined by the end of the week, according to a spokesman for Dominick's Food Store. He predicted that there will be an up-surge and then a leveling off of beef prices.

William Newby, director of public relations for the Jewel Tea company in Melrose Park, said that they expect prices to increase, but not by much.

"Retail prices will reflect the wholesaler prices," said Newby. "We do expect the possibility of an increase later this week."

"ACTUALLY, THE price increase will be up to the people," said Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights. "It's the simple law of supply and demand. The farmer knows how much to rush to the stores."

Alfred Kruth, the meat manager of Jay's Quality Meats, Arlington Heights, agreed.

"The old theory of supply and demand will take care of itself," he said. "If people do not panic and buy only what they need, then it will all work out."

"We're basically a beef-eating nation and if it's within reasonable price it'll compel them to buy beef," said Kruth.

Most retailers, supermarkets and local meat markets predicted that prices are likely to fluctuate before leveling off.

"Packers and wholesalers will be getting back into operation and making adjustments after being laid off because of the beef price ceiling," said Newby. "In the long run, the prices would be fairly close to the price on beef now."

PRICES WON'T skyrocket either, like pork, veal and poultry prices did when the ceiling was lifted on those items, retailers contend.

"The current price is close to what's reasonable for the consumer to pay," Newby said.

Kruth said customers were accustomed to pay higher prices. "But they'll back away from items that go up, let's say, from $2.69 to $2.99 a pound. They'll turn to the item that is cheaper, like chicken

Historical society wants old school for museum site

The Mount Prospect Historical Society wants to renovate the old St. John's Lutheran School building on Linneman Road for use as a historical museum. Members of the St. John's board of trustees apparently favor the plan.

The possibility of a museum in the red brick building, now unused as part of the school, depends upon two factors. The use of the building as a museum must be approved by St. John's congregation, and the historical society must be able to raise the necessary funds for remodeling and rental of the building which dates back to 1901.

"We had no plans up to now," said Al Juhnke yesterday. He is chairman of the church's trustees. Any use of the building would not include its purchase, he added. "They could never buy the building from us. It's part of the school site."

JUHNKE AND Clarence Schlaver, historical society president, said they have no estimate for what it would cost to rehabilitate the building for museum use. However, members of the historical society did tour the building Friday and afterwards said it would be very suitable for their needs. The society's directors voted unanimously Friday night to ask the church for permission to use the building.

The 1909 school building and the recently completed addition have made use of the original building unnecessary. In 1971, village fire department officials found 25 village code violations in the original building, making its use as a school no longer permissible.

"The building is very structurally sound," Schlaver said yesterday. "Because of its landmark location adjacent to the church cemetery where many of Mount Prospect's first settlers are buried, the school building is ideal for the historical society's use."

SCHLAVER SAID he felt rehabilitation could be paid for through society funds, budgeted village funds and possibly revenue sharing funds from Elk Grove and Wheeling townships. A fund-raising drive, if necessary, could also be held, he said.

The Mount Prospect Village Board for this year did approve $1,000 for the historical society, but the two townships have not yet approved any funds. Schlaver said he hopes Elk Grove and Wheeling township historical collections will be housed in the museum alongside Mount Prospect's historical collection.

Currently, Mount Prospect Historical Society members keep portions of the village's collection in their own homes. This makes it hard to gather them for public displays and prohibits permanent displays, Schlaver said.

In other historical society news, Schlaver said the fifth annual open house of the group will be from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 23 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 400 S. See-Gwyn Ave. There will be exhibits of pioneer crafts and antiques.

Girls establish sea-going Explorer post

by LINDA PUNCH

A group of Mount Prospect girls is challenging the old sailor's adage that women and ships don't mix.

The girls, students at Prospect and Forest View high schools, are members of Explorer Ship 600, a recently formed group focusing on water sports, boating and active camping. The ship is cross-registered with the Girl Scouts of America and the Boy Scout Council.

The group was formed by girls dissatisfied with the senior Girl Scout program.

"We decided to start the ship because the girls themselves thought the Girl Scout program didn't fulfill the need they wanted," Cadette leader Barbara Baker said.

WHILE MOST high school age girls shy away from the Girl Scout image, an Explorer ship doesn't carry the same stigma, according to Nancy Olsen, ship secretary.

"People just don't like the Girl Scout image, but it doesn't bother me any more," she said. "When I tell them how much fun we're having and about the boat, they don't look down on us any more."

The girls will be basing their activities on the Boy Scout sea exploring manual. They are eligible for Girl Scout and Boy Scout awards.

THE BIGGEST PROJECT at hand for the girls is transporting a 30-foot cabin cruiser donated to their post by the Northwest Suburban Council of Boys Scouts. The cruiser is currently lodged in a small town just south of Bloomington, Ind.

Although the girls have two volunteers willing to tow the boat northward, they need a truck capable of hauling 10,000 pounds.

Other projects sponsored by the group include a paper drive last weekend and an on-going car wash, with the girls washing the car at the owner's home by appointment. Appointments can be made by calling 437-7281 or 392-0627.

While boys can join the post, the girls are determined to make a success of it on their own.

"Mr. Baker (post consultant) wants us to learn how to work the boat perfectly," Nancy said. "He wants us to be just like the guys."

Flood program on board agenda

The Mount Prospect Village Board is expected to decide tonight how the community's $4.8 million flood-control program will be paid for.

"I think it's time," Mayor Robert D. Telchert said yesterday. "I hope the decision will be made."

As an aid in deciding what financing method will be utilized, the village board has more than 500 questionnaires returned from residents. In the questionnaires, residents were given a chance to indicate a preference for either an increase in their real estate taxes or a new utility tax.

Village officials are withholding a breakdown of the replies until tonight's 8 p.m. board meeting in the Municipal Building, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. Also on the questionnaire was space for residents to indicate whether they want to switch to plastic bags for garbage collection.

Telchert said he expects and hopes for a large citizen turnout at the meeting.

Senior food service approved by hospital

A food service program for homebound senior citizens has been approved by Lutheran General Hospital, according to Marjorie Boswell, Elk Grove Village health director.

The village senior citizen program is looking for volunteers to deliver the prepared meals to the homes of the elderly.

Anyone interested should contact Kathleen Sloga, senior citizen coordinator, at 398-4567.

Wrong information

Kathryn Gould, project supervisor for Birchwood Trace Apartments, 736 W. Dempster, Mount Prospect, said Daryl Eugene Snowden is not a tenant at the apartments.

Snowden was arrested last week by Mount Prospect police and gave the apartments as his address.

Friendship problems continue

The problems are continuing at Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines.

At a special meeting last night, Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 board of education members unanimously voted 6-0 to go ahead with action to take over site work and rough grading at Friendship.

The board instructed its attorney, Frank Hines, to give the building contractor, Al Berg, notice he has only seven more days to complete the site work or the school district will take over and deduct the cost, estimated to be about $14,000.

That amount would be subtracted from $60,000 in money owed Berg. The amount is to be held until completion of the job.

Dist. 59 Supt. James Ervitt told board members no grading has been done at the school in about two weeks. "Until the grading is done no landscaping work can be done. Unless work is started soon, we'll end up with a sea of mud next spring."

Ervitt said this action was perhaps a preview of things to come. Work in other areas of the building is lagging too, according to the superintendent.

Ervitt told the board no work was done in the school's gym yesterday. The gym is still six to seven weeks from completion.

Ervitt added that work in the auditorium has been minimal. Roof work is still incomplete, as are countless other minor items in the building itself.

AT ITS AUG. 20 meeting, the board voted to release $60,000 of the $120,000 it had held back in money owed Berg.

The retention of a certain amount of the building's total price until it is completed is a standard procedure.

In voting to pay Berg the $60,000, board members asked for "a spirit of cooperation" between Berg and the board. That spirit seems to have gone sour.

Board member Emil Bahnmaier last night questioned whether or not the $60,000 released Aug. 20 had been paid. Assistant superintendent Arthur Perry informed him it hadn't been paid.

Bahnmaier then asked if the board's motion to release to payment could be rescinded. He was told by attorney Hines that it could.

FURTHER DISCUSSION of such a possibility was put off until the board's next meeting on Monday.

Original work on the $1.2 million building was to have been completed Jan. 1 of this year. Continuing construction delays have pushed back that date first to mid-March, then June 1, and to July 1.

Work was still not completed by mid-July and the deadline was moved to school's opening on Sept. 4.

The contract with Berg contained no provisions for a penalty for construction delays.

Board president Allen Sparks was not present at Tuesday's special meeting. No one else was absent.

Man charged: attempted murder

A local man was charged with attempted murder and attempted armed robbery late yesterday afternoon after police said he tried to rob a Des Plaines pharmacy but fled after exchanging gunshots with a druggist.

Wayne Imwood, 21, of 3960 Welwyn Ave., Des Plaines, was arrested about 30 minutes after the attempted holdup of the Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, yesterday morning.

Police refused to release details of the arrest but said that Imwood matched descriptions of the gunman. Des Plaines Det. Al Freitag also said there was "certain physical evidence" linking Imwood to the incident.

POLICE ARE investigating a link between Imwood and two previous armed holdups at the pharmacy last August, but declined to say yesterday whether he would be charged with the robberies.

No one was injured in the shootout which occurred when police said a man entered the store and announced the holdup at gunpoint. The druggist, whom police refused to identify, also drew a pistol and fired two shots at the bandit.

Police said the would-be robber returned shots and fled the store. An unidentified postman told police he heard the gunfire, and saw a man wearing a plaid shirt and baseball hat run from the store. The postman ran to a telephone and notified police.

A search later turned up a stocking mask reported to have been worn by the robber.

In an Aug. 20 holdup, a robber also clad in a plaid shirt and stocking mask fled the store after taking two bottles of an unidentified drug and tying up druggist Frank Altmeyer and a customer.

The store was held up less than a week later at gunpoint by a man who demanded an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood had been scheduled for trial Oct. 9 in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago on another count of armed robbery dating back to last July when he allegedly held up the Hynes Pharmacy in Des Plaines.

Imwood is being held by Des Plaines police on a total of $30,000 bond pending a hearing in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Thursday.

Maryville school land selection at issue

Site-review panel meets

The citizens' action committee reviewing the Maryville school site selection met for the first time last night to organize at the River Trails Dist. 26 administration building.

District residents selected to serve on the committee are Ann Pittman, Bond School; Clarke Robinson, Euclid School; Carl Pope, Feehanville School; Karen Zuck, Indian Grove School; Lynda Marum, Park View School; the Rev. John Smyth, River Road; Nick Glanini, River Trails Junior High School, and Idyll Nipper, citizen-at-large.

Representing the board are Lloyd Demel, president, and board member Mike Sheyker. Dist. 26 acting Supt. James Retzlaff is representing the administration.

Sheyker called for formation of the committee near the end of a 3½-hour meeting last week in which school board members and district administrators attempted to justify their selection of the River Trails Junior High School site for the new Maryville school.

SHEYKER suggested creation of the committee because many of the residents' questions "had not yet been adequately answered."

Committee members are a combination of volunteers and people drafted for the job, according to Retzlaff. He drew up the final list Saturday.

Demel said he hopes the committee doesn't get "into a silly controversy" over the method of selecting committee members.

"Nobody's trying to stack the deck — we based the selections on interest in the district and capabilities," he said. "We think the committee is representative of both sides of the question. We're hoping we have a representative cross section of the community."

"I'd be very unhappy if we run into penny-ante discussions on who is and isn't on the committee — if they want to bicker, I wish they'd go somewhere else," he added.

The group was charged with making a recommendation on the Maryville school site by Oct. 4.

"If they find a better alternative, we're not too proud to say you've got a solution," Demel said.

School tax levy to be unchanged

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education has passed a resolution establishing a 1973-74 levy of $2.80 per $100 assessed valuation.

The levy, the same as this year's rate, must be approved by the Cook County Assessor's office.

In other business last week, the board unanimously approved the 1973-74 teachers' contract agreement. The agreement was unanimously approved by teachers last Friday.

Under the new contract, teachers will receive a 4.2 per cent salary increase and merit pay totaling $35,000.

In a report to the board, Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodsky said district enrollment increased 25 students from last year. He said a final report on enrollment will be presented at the Sept. 12 meeting of the board.

POTAWATOMI LAKE in Wheeling is a common meeting place for the Northwest Commodore Club, which sails working models of ships. Club members have a variety of boats operated by radio control, with masts that resemble fishing poles. Erwin Stevenson, Dist. 59 assistant superintendent, helped to organize the group.

Lil Floros

Andy Swanson of Prospect Heights and two of his pals from Arlington Heights, Shawn Diehl and Roy Weinberg, took a bike ride this summer. And what a ride — 723 miles! They originally planned to ride to Omaha, Neb., but, after two days out, decided that a round trip to St. Louis, Mo. was enough.

It was a riding and camping trip. The boys slept at camp sites, fairgrounds, a variety of places. They cooked their meals, all kinds. Their bikes were very ordinary — two were actually "no speed." They had two flat tires on the trip and one handlebar broke.

Andy said, "We took the trip for no special reason, just as an excuse for three friends to cycle and camp out."

All three attended Hersey High School and played trumpets in the band. Shawn graduated last June and is starting at Eastern Illinois University this fall to study music. Roy and Andy are high school seniors now.

FOUR YEARS AGO, Paul Lambesis and Mary Hutchings graduated from Prospect High School. Both were graduation speakers and both had been part of teacher McNabb's debate team.

Paul went to MIT and Mary went to Brown University. Now, four years later, they'll be classmates again as they both go to Yale to study law.

It should be noted that in the four years Mary spent at Brown, she earned her bachelor's degree in public policy making and also a master's degree in economics. She has received the Harvey Baker Fellowship Award — the first girl to do so. Also, she made Phi Beta Kappa.

Mary's sister, Donna Hutchings, also a '69 PHS grad, has earned her bachelor's degree in drama with honors at Northwestern University and is now a teaching assistant working on her master's degree.

Donna has had the lead in two plays at Northwestern, "Light Up the Sky" and "Our Town." The Miss Gibbs part in Our Town was particularly interesting to Donna because she had played the same part in the same play at Prospect. The Hutchings girls are daughters of the Mount Prospect Public Library's chief librarian, Mrs. L. E. Hutchings.

CATHERINE MARIE BURNS, 707 Can Dots, was recently inducted into the Loyola University of Chicago Chapter of Alpha Sigma Nu, the national honorary society. Only 4 per cent of the students of a class are eligible for membership in the honor society. Students are nominated by university deans on the basis of scholarship, service and concern for others, and loyalty to the ideals of Jesuit higher education.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S Richard A. Dawson, a Civil Air Patrol Cadet, spent three weeks in Belgium this summer as part of the International Air Cadet Exchange. While Dawson and 200 other CAP members were visiting in 22 foreign lands around the world, youths from these same foreign countries were visiting in the U.S. as guests of CAP and the Air Force.

While visiting in Belgium, Dawson had the opportunity to see not only the tourist attractions but also many other things. He was able to visit private homes, meet local people and young people and got a closeup look at the life and customs of the country.

Reading program prizes are ready

The 348 Mount Prospect children who successfully completed participation in this summer's reading program of the public library can now pick up their reward at the library.

That reward, tickets for the Saturday performance of "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," by the Coleman Puppet Theatre, is now available at the library, 14 E. Busse Ave. The 11 a.m. puppet show will be presented at St. Paul Lutheran School Auditorium, 18 S. School St.

A STEAMBOAT has the same attraction to youngsters now as it did years ago on the mighty rivers of the nation — but this boat is a working model playing the Potawatomi Lake in a forest preserve in Wheeling.

Rolling Meadows fire chief is OK after surgery

Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty was reported in good condition yesterday at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago following open heart surgery Sunday.

Fogarty, who suffered a near-fatal heart attack last month and was saved by Rolling Meadows fire department paramedics, underwent five hours of open heart surgery Sunday performed by a team of the hospital's cardiovascular specialists. Doctors performed a coronary vein bypass in which a vein from the leg was transplanted into the heart, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Fogarty, 51, was in good condition following the surgery.

The veteran fire chief was stricken Aug. 16 at his home. A team of paramedics rushed to Fogarty's home and administered electric shock treatment and intravenous medication to revive Fogarty. Doctors at Northwest Community Hospital have credited the paramedics with saving the chief's life.

DR. STANLEY Zydlo, head of the paramedic program at the hospital, said doctors determined some time ago that the surgery would be necessary. He said Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital is one of several Chicago area hospitals equipped to perform the special surgical technique which was required.

The spokesman for Presbyterian-St. Luke's said the surgery could have been performed Saturday, but a supply of type O negative blood, Fogarty's type, had to be stocked for the surgery. The blood was supplied by the Chicago Police Department, the spokesman said.

Fogarty could be hospitalized from three to six weeks following the surgery, the spokesman said.

DR. ZYDLO, Barbara Lyons, a Mobile Intensive Care nurse at Northwest, and Rolling Meadows firemen William

Thomas Fogarty

Schmidt and Lt. Roger Mueller transported Fogarty to the Chicago hospital Saturday. Mueller said the Buffalo Grove fire department ambulance was used to transport Fogarty because it is larger than the Rolling Meadows unit.

Lively, Dempster students will wait for use of pools

by BOB GALLAS

Students at Lively and Dempster junior high schools won't be able to use the swimming pools at their schools for about another three months.

According to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent of administration of Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, the pools have failed to pass Illinois Life Safety Code requirements.

Perry, speaking at last week's meeting of the Dist. 59 school board, told board members the failure to pass was due to an oversight by the firm doing the engineering work on the pool. He said required mechanical engineering for boilers and pool heaters was overlooked.

Correcting the problem, according to Perry, will take from one to three months by the time bids on the project are approved and construction is completed.

THE POOLS were ordered closed last December to Dist. 59 physical education classes until Illinois Life Safety Codes were met. The pools continued to be used by the Mount Prospect and Elk Grove park districts, which were not affected by the ruling. The life safety codes apply only to school districts.

Both pools meet the county health department requirements and the park districts conduct regular swim programs there.

The school board met Tuesday night at Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village in the first of this school year's "on-the-road" sessions, which are at district schools on the first Monday of each month. This session was on Tuesday because of the Labor Day holiday.

The board agreed at the meeting to delay formal dedication for the district's new school, Friendship Junior High in Des Plaines. Plans called for formal ceremonies in early November.

THE CEREMONIES would have been in the school's gym, which isn't finished yet. There is a disagreement between the building's contractor and the subcontractor laying the gym floor on whether the concrete base is level, according to Perry.

When work is started, according to Perry, the job usually takes six to seven weeks.

Plans now call for dedication ceremonies at the school to take place in early spring of next year. Board member Emil Bahnmaler jokingly suggested another date for the dedication of the school, which has been plagued by numerous problems and construction delays. Bahnmaler suggested the school be dedicated on April 1, "April Fools Day."

In other action, the board:

Approved the Northwest Educational Cooperative computer services budget for the '73-74 year in the amount of $549,574. The budget has increased by $17,244 which will cover the cost of a study of the service. The district's share, about $39,000, will not increase because of the additional cost.

Park district tennis tourney results told

BEF PRICES will go up and fluctuate, but they'll level off close to where they were during the freeze, according to retailers.

Despite lift on price freeze

Area groceries, restaurants haven't raised beef prices

by the Herald staff

The price freeze on beef was lifted yesterday but many local grocery stores, butcher shops and restaurants did not hike prices as expected.

Retailers predicted that consumers probably will be faced with new meat prices at the end of the week or early next week. What the new prices will be is uncertain at this time, although most retailers said that increase would probably be marginal.

Any new prices would be determined by the end of the week, according to a spokesman for Dominick's Food Store. He predicted that there will be an up-surge and then a leveling off of beef prices.

William Newby, director of public relations for the Jewel Tea company in Melrose Park, said that they expect prices to increase, but not by much.

"Retail prices will reflect the wholesaler prices," said Newby. "We do expect the possibility of an increase later this week."

"ACTUALLY, THE price increase will be up to the people," said Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights. "It's the simple law of supply and demand. The farmer knows how much to rush to the stores."

Alfred Kruth, the meat manager of Jay's Quality Meats, Arlington Heights, agreed.

"The old theory of supply and demand will take care of itself," he said. "If people do not panic and buy only what they need, then it will all work out."

"We're basically a beef-eating nation and if it's within reasonable price it'll compel them to buy beef," said Kruth.

Most retailers, supermarkets and local meat markets predicted that prices are likely to fluctuate before leveling off.

"Packers and wholesalers will be getting back into operation and making adjustments after being laid off because of the beef price ceiling," said Newby. "In the long run, the prices would be fairly close to the price on beef now."

PRICES WON'T skyrocket either, like pork, veal and poultry prices did when the ceiling was lifted on those items, retailers contend.

"The current price is close to what's reasonable for the consumer to pay," Newby said.

Kruth said customers were accustomed to pay higher prices. "But they'll back away from items that go up, let's say, from $2.69 to $2.99 a pound. They'll turn to the item that is cheaper, like chicken

Trustees approve $30,000 for new traffic devices

The Arlington Heights Village Board of Trustees approved almost $30,000 in supplemental funds last night for new traffic light systems in the village.

The funding, contained in two resolutions, will affect signals along Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights, Goebbert and Algonquin roads. In both resolutions, the original fundings for the projects fell short of the actual cost of the completed system.

The first supplemental resolution called for a payment of $14,252.82 by the village from motor fuel tax monies to pay for signals already installed at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Algonquin-Goebbert Roads. The new payment is the final village installment of its $47,252.82 share for the control system.

THE VILLAGE had previously contributed $33,000 to the project from motor fuel tax funds. It was originally estimated the total village price tag on the project would be $35,689.25. The new appropriation was needed to make up the difference between the projected and actual cost.

Jack Walsh, village president, said of the extra funding, "The lights have already been installed... We are picking up, through motor fuel tax, our obligation."

Motor fuel tax funds are rebates to municipalities based on revenues collected by the state through retail gasoline sales.

The other traffic light resolution passed last night added $15,000 to install an "opticom" system in the signals along Northwest Highway and Arlington Heights Road.

According to Darryl Kenning, assistant village manager, "opticom" is a traffic light over-ride system used for emergency vehicles such as ambulances and fire trucks. The system, besides clearing the path for emergency vehicles through regular traffic, automatically establishes priorities at intersections in cases when two emergency vehicles enter simultaneously at right angles.

THE $15,000 appropriated last night is added to the $7,000 already budgeted for the project.

Competitive bids were not taken because the board said the 3-M Corporation is the sole manufacturer of such a system compatible with the Eagle Signal Co.'s traffic lights used on Northwest Highway and Arlington Heights Road.

Schaumburg woman suicide

A Schaumburg woman shot and killed herself yesterday morning in the Arlington Heights apartment of her friend, a Schaumburg policeman.

According to a spokesman for Northwest Community Hospital, Susan Shufelt died shortly after noon from a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the chest. Miss Shufelt was taken to the hospital by Arlington Heights Fire Department ambulance after the incident.

Police said Miss Shufelt, 20, of 1305 Concord, Schaumburg, was visiting Greg J. Grot, 26, at his apartment, 2175-B S. Toney Rd., Monday morning. She reportedly asked Grot if she could use the bedroom telephone. Grot told police he heard the shot minutes later.

She apparently shot herself once in the left side of the chest with Grot's service revolver, police said. She was breathing with the aid of emergency oxygen equipment when she was taken to the hospital about 11:45 a.m. Doctors at the hospital pronounced her dead at 12:05 p.m.

Widening work on Dundee Road 'on schedule'

State highway officials said yesterday although there have been some delays widening and repaving of Dundee Road to four lanes will be completed by November.

Al Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said the state has asked Greco Contractors Inc., the firm doing the work, to increase manpower and equipment to make up for lost time.

Workers have fallen about a month behind schedule due largely to rain in recent weeks, Sifrer said. On the average, every day of rain delays work about three days, he added.

THE STATE ORIGINALLY set completion of the project for next July, but eight weeks ago said workers were ahead of schedule and could be finished by late October or early November. With the delays, Sifrer said the completion date will now be closer to middle or late (continued on page 5)

Automatic controls smashed

Truck crash lights up day in village

by JOE SWICKARD

The streets of downtown Arlington Heights will be burning in broad daylight until the end of the week.

The lights will be on for an extra five hours daily, according to Bill Bachem, village electrical engineer. He said the lights will be going on three hours earlier and going off two hours later because the automatic control box was smashed by a truck last week.

Bachem estimated that the village will have to pay an extra $1.80 for the longer-burning lamps. The village pays Commonwealth Edison Co. three cents per kilowatt hour the street lights are in use, he said.

THIS TALE OF extravagance began last Thursday night when a truck demolished the control box for about 30 street lights in the business district. All that was left of the $2,000 unit, according to Bachem, was "sparks and carbon."

Bachem said the lights have been turned on with a manual switch since the accident. And because the public works department leaves at 4:30 p.m., the lights go on then instead of the usual 7:30 p.m. The lights are turned off when the men return to work in the morning, two hours after the time the lights would normally be extinguished, he said.

The manual switch is attached to a jerry-wired traffic control box that the village modified and pressed into service for the duration, he said. Bachem said he expected the temporary control box to be used until late this week, when the new controller is delivered.

BACHEM FIGURED the longer-burning fixtures were costing the village and its taxpayers an extra 1.80 per day. This amount is based on a flat rate of 3 cents per kilowatt hour the lights are in operation as charged by Edison.

Bachem said the approximately 30 lights use 400 watts each, and for the extra five hours they expend a total of 60 kilowatts. When multiplied by the 3 cents rate, the village is almost $2 poorer per day.

Bachem said the control box, located in a grocery store parking lot at Vail Avenue and Wing Street, is expected to be back in service "within a week."

Until then, remember to keep the hometown lights burning. And will the last man out please remember to turn on the lights.

Imagine that

Virtually anonymous Civil Air Patrol provides area with numerous opportunities—at a minimal cost

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Imagine a local organization which provides members with the opportunity for flying lessons and aerospace education, campouts, leadership training and more, all at minimal cost.

The Civil Air Patrol (CAP) does all of this. Yet considering the lack of public awareness of the organization, it might as well be imaginary, according to Capt. James Houchens, a CAP commander. He would like to see the situation change.

CAP's long-standing place in American history should, by rights, make it better known to the public. Founded in 1941 as a civilian volunteer auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force, CAP members flew famous air search and rescue missions during World War II.

Since the war, CAP has continued to provide emergency air search and rescue assistance. In addition, the organization has added an aerospace education function which extends to adults and youngsters.

IT IS THE CAP cadet program which is most active in the Northwest suburban area. By missing out on what the CAP cadet program has to offer, area youngsters, who wistfully dream of one day learning to fly, may be missing an invaluable opportunity.

It takes Houchens, who is the commander of the Wheeling Cadet Squadron, a few minutes to describe all the activities which the program includes.

"If you took the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Civil Defense workers all rolled into one and made them aerospace nuts, that's what CAP is," he said.

The Wheeling squadron, which presently includes 16 cadets and three adults, meets at 8 p.m. every Monday at Wheeling High School. These meetings concentrate on aerospace education and leadership training.

ACCORDING to Houchens, a typical meeting includes classroom instruction on flying and some concentration on leadership training, through drills, guest lecturers, or classroom material.

The squadron also offers a range of activities, besides the Monday meetings, in which most cadets participate. These activities include orientation flights, which give cadets their first real taste of flying.

The flights are conducted by qualified instructors as a regular program. After an introductory flight successive flights acquaint cadets with landing and take-off procedures, stalls, turns and other maneuvers. Finally, the more sophisticated aspects of flying such as cross-country and radio procedures are taught to the cadets.

The cost to cadets is normally around $2 for each such orientation flight, Houchens said. This pays for gas expenses.

Other regular activities are camping and other scouting-type activities held on weekends, and a course on basic electronics and radio procedures.

FOR CADETS who are serious about learning to fly, the squadron also provides the opportunity for actual flight training. CAP owns a Cessna 150 trainer plane housed at Chicago's Midway Airport which cadets can use for flight lessons.

While flight lessons are expensive, cadets can achieve their private pilot's license for around $500, Houchens said. Normally, a license would cost more than $1,000, he said.

Beyond the regular activities sponsored by the squadron, cadets also may choose to participate in several special activities.

Every year CAP sponsors one- to two-week training camps at Air Force bases, which cost about $40. Although the sessions cover a variety of subjects, the most popular session is the survival course, Houchens said. In it, cadets are given survival training similar to that which the Army Green Berets receive.

CAP ALSO sponsors an International Air Cadet Exchange program which involves summer trips to a foreign country in Europe, the Near East, Central or South America and Southeast Asia.

Finally, CAP annually offers around $41,000 in college scholarships to deserving cadets. While the scholarships are not restricted to military schools, they are science- and engineering-oriented. In addition, CAP also offers scholarships to help defer the costs of flight training.

While Houchens said CAP "is trying to build leadership qualities and does have some military flavor attached to it," he stressed that CAP is a civilian organization. It is entirely privately-funded and membership has no effect on military status.

WHILE MOST cadets wear uniforms, the uniforms are not mandatory. Also, long hair need not prevent an interested youngster from joining, Houchens said.

In order to join the cadet program, a boy or girl must be between 13 and 18 years old, single, in school and a U.S. citizen. The Wheeling cadet squadron includes communities within a five-mile radius of Wheeling High School, excluding Lake County.

Adults wishing to join CAP must be over 18 and a U.S. citizen.

Annual dues are $8 for cadets, while adults must pay a $26 initiation fee, after which time dues are $21 per year.

Anyone interested in finding out more about CAP is encouraged to attend one of the regular Monday night squadron meetings, Houchens said. Further information also can be obtained by calling Houchens at 359-0408 or 965-4700 or by writing to CAP, P.O. Box 372, Wheeling, 60090.

Charge attempted murder in pharmacy stickup try

A local man was charged with attempted murder and attempted armed robbery late yesterday afternoon after police said he tried to rob a Des Plaines pharmacy but fled after exchanging gunshots with a druggist.

Wayne Imwood, 21, of 5900 Welwyn Ave., Des Plaines, was arrested about 30 minutes after the attempted holdup of the Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, yesterday morning.

Police refused to release details of the arrest but said that Imwood matched descriptions of the gunman. Des Plaines Det. Al Freitag also said there was "certain physical evidence" linking Imwood to the incident.

POLICE ARE investigating a link between Imwood and two previous armed holdups at the pharmacy last August, but declined to say yesterday whether he would be charged with the robberies.

No one was injured in the shootout which occurred when police said a man entered the store and announced the holdup at gunpoint. The druggist, whom police refused to identify, also drew a pistol and fired two shots at the bandit.

Police said the would-be robber returned shots and fled the store. An unidentified postman told police he heard the gunfire, and saw a man wearing a plaid shirt and baseball hat run from the store. The postman ran to a telephone and notified police.

A search later turned up a stocking mask reported to have been worn by the robber.

In an Aug. 20 holdup, a robber also clad in a plaid shirt and stocking mask fled the store after taking two bottles of an unidentified drug and tying up druggist Frank Altmeier and a customer.

The store was held up less than a week later at gunpoint by a man who demanded an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood had been scheduled for trial Oct. 9 in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago on another count of armed robbery dating back to last July when he allegedly held up the Hynes Pharmacy in Des Plaines.

Imwood is being held by Des Plaines police on a total of $30,000 bond pending a hearing in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Thursday.

Meadows fire chief 'good' after surgery

Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty was reported in good condition yesterday at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago following open heart surgery Sunday.

Fogarty, who suffered a near-fatal heart attack last month and was saved by Rolling Meadows fire department paramedics, underwent five hours of open heart surgery Sunday performed by a team of the hospital's cardiovascular specialists. Doctors performed a coronary vein bypass in which a vein from the leg was transplanted into the heart, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Fogarty, 51, was in good condition following the surgery.

The veteran fire chief was stricken Aug. 16 at his home. A team of paramedics rushed to Fogarty's home and administered electric shock treatment and intravenous medication to revive Fogarty. Doctors at at Northwest Community Hospital have credited the paramedics with saving the chief's life.

DR. STANLEY Zydlo, head of the paramedic program at the hospital, said doctors determined some time ago that the surgery would be necessary. He said Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital is one of several Chicago area hospitals equipped to perform the special surgical technique which was required.

The spokesman for Presbyterian-St. Luke's said the surgery could have been performed Saturday, but a supply of type O negative blood, Fogarty's type, had to be stocked for the surgery. The blood was supplied by the Chicago Police Department, the spokesman said.

Fogarty could be hospitalized from three to six weeks following the surgery, the spokesman said.

DR. ZYDLO, Barbara Lyons, a Mobile Intensive Care nurse at Northwest, and Rolling Meadows firemen William Schmidt and Lt. Roger Mueller transported Fogarty to the Chicago hospital Saturday. Mueller said the Buffalo Grove fire department ambulance was used to transport Fogarty because it is larger than the Rolling Meadows unit.

"We had made prearrangements with the hospital to take the chief," Mueller said. Mueller said Fogarty was taken to the hospital Saturday morning and was in good condition throughout the trip.

FOGARTY'S condition during the ride to the hospital was monitored continuously by Northwest Community Hospital, according to Dr. Zydlo.

Fogarty had been in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital for some time following the heart attack. He was reported doing well but was not allowed to take phone calls or have visitors.

Thomas Fogarty

Fogarty has been a fireman in Rolling Meadows for 17 years, including the last 15 years as chief. He had been one of the principal organizers of the Northwest suburban paramedic program, which began last fall.

In Fogarty's absence, Lt. Ted Loesch has been appointed acting fire chief by Mayor Roland Meyer.

Friendship problems continue

The problems are continuing at Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines.

At a special meeting last night, Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 board of education members unanimously voted 6-0 to go ahead with action to take over site work and rough grading at Friendship.

The board instructed its attorney, Frank Hines, to give the building contractor, Al Berg, notice he has only seven more days to complete the site work or the school district will take over and deduct the cost, estimated to be about $4,400.

That amount would be subtracted from $60,000 in money owed Berg. The amount is to be held until completion of the job.

Dist. 59 Supt. James Ervill told board members no grading has been done at the school in about two weeks. "Until the grading is done no landscaping work can be done. Unless work is started soon, we'll end up with a sea of mud next spring."

Ervill said this action was perhaps a preview of things to come. Work in other areas of the building is lagging too, according to the superintendent.

Ervill told the board no work was done in the school's gym yesterday. The gym is still six to seven weeks from completion.

Ervill added that work in the auditorium has been minimal. Roof work is still incomplete, as are countless other minor items in the building itself.

AT ITS AUG 20 meeting, the board voted to release $60,000 of the $120,000 it had held back in money owed Berg.

The retention of a certain amount of the building's total price until it is completed is a standard procedure.

In voting to pay Berg the $60,000, board members asked for "a spirit of cooperation" between Berg and the board. That spirit seems to have gone sour.

Board member Emil Balmuier last night questioned whether or not the $60,000 released Aug. 20 had been paid. Assistant superintendent Arthur Perry informed him it hadn't been paid.

Balmuier then asked if the board's motion to release to payment could be rescinded. He was told by attorney Hines that it could.

FURTHER DISCUSSION of such a possibility was put off until the board's next meeting on Monday.

Original work on the $1.2 million building was to have been completed Jan. 1 of this year. Continuing construction delays have pushed back that date first to mid-March, then June 1, and to July 1.

Work was still not completed by mid-July and the deadline was moved to school's opening on Sept. 4.

The contract with Berg contained no provisions for a penalty for construction delays.

Board president Allen Sparks was not present at Tuesday's special meeting. No one else was absent.

St. Viator housing suit still in limbo

The St. Viator low-cost housing project suit continued to wind its way through the courts yesterday.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen heard status reports from attorneys representing the Village of Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. (MHDC).

McMillen will hear final pretrial statements Oct. 11 in his chambers, according to his clerk, Katy Branch. She said it would be decided at that time whether the long-standing issue would go to trial or would be settled out of court.

The suit involves plans for a low-cost housing development at Euclid Avenue and Drury Lane, on land owned by the Catholic Order of the Clerics of St. Viator. The plan for the multi-family housing in the neighborhood of single-family homes was voted down by the village board in 1971.

After the rejection, on the grounds that it was not compatible with existing housing in the area, the MHDC asked the village to find suitable alternate sites for the project. The village did not.

MHDC filed suit against the village in 1972, charging racial and economic discrimination and challenging the village's zoning powers. Village Atty. Jack Siegel has twice filed motions to have the suit dismissed. His motions have been denied on both occasions.

Widening of Dundee Road on time despite delays

November.

The amount of rain in the next two months will play a critical role in the completion of the project, Sifrer said. He said a lot of rain could delay the project still further.

Sifrer said even with a lot of bad weather workmen will finish two lanes of the highway by winter.

The widening of the road is between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53, in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

SIFRER SAID CREWS are working six days a week, 10 hours a day in an attempt to finish early. The contract with Greco states that construction must be completed by next July or a penalty will be assessed Greco. No bonus is provided if the project is completed early.

The $2.5 million project also calls for the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads south of Dundee Road. Both roads are being rerouted to meet the existing extensions on the north side of Dundee Road. The realignment of the roads is expected to eliminate two bottlenecks which hamper through traffic.

Sifrer said workmen are now removing the old westbound pavement of the road, while traffic moves through on the eastbound and a temporary lane. Workmen will finish tearing out the existing westbound lane Wednesday and will then grade and pave two lanes.

After the westbound lanes are completed, motorists will travel on the new lanes while workmen tear up and widen the eastbound side of the road. Thus, two lanes will be open at all times.

SIFRER SAID IT is less expensive to tear up the existing pavement and replace it than it would be to attempt to restore it. The new pavement is designed so that no major repairs will be needed for 20 years, he said.

Prior to the start of construction the speed limit on Dundee Road was 50 miles per hour in most places. Sifrer said the current speed limit is regulated by workmen. During the day it is about 25 m.p.h. with the speed increasing in the evening when workmen are gone.

State officials said the speed limit on Dundee Road will be 45 m.p.h. after the road is widened.
